BOARD OF ALDERMEN

Only Routine Business Transacted Monday Night

President Carter Presented With a Genuine Irish Shillaleah

The regular meeting of the board of aldermen was held Monday evening with President Carter in the chair. Those present were Aldermen Beck, Bishop, Bosson, Bowen, Cabot, Converse, Day, Doherty, Ellis, Holmes, Hunt, Palmer, Stone, Underwood, Webster and White.

HEARINGS.

President A. D. Claffin appeared at the hearing on petition of the Newton & Boston Street Railway Company to relocate its tracks on High and Elliot streets. Mr. Claffin said that the Railroad Commissioners had ordered the Company to move its tracks away from the trees and posts on the side of these streets as the commissioners considered them so close as to be dangerous.

At the hearing on laying concrete sidewalks on the southerly side of Fairfax street under the betterment act. W. P. Morse said that Mr. Arthur P. Friend the only abuttor who objected had now signed the usual agreement to pay one half the expense.

Another hearing for similar action on the northerly side of Fairfax street brought out strong objections from Mr. Geo. H. Adams who also filed a protest from Sumner Robinson, Trustee.

The hearing on removal of a tree on Crystal street was called and later reopened. Mr. R. A. Vachon said that this tree was opposite his estate and that it so shaded it that the house was damp and he had found it impossible to grow a lawn or raise shrubs. Mr. A. C. Burnham a neighbor, also spoke in favor of removing the tree and said that he had canvassed the neighborhood and found no objection to taking it down.

Hearings on petitions of the Telephone Company for attachments on Grove st., Hull st., Beaumont ave., Jackson road, and for poles on Perkins st., of the Western Union Telegraph Company for attachments Highland and Temple sts., of Joseph W. Crowell to locate a 10 H. P. gas engine 1022 Commonwealth avenue, of John T. Coleman to locate a 10 H. P. gas engine at 661 Washington street and of D. H. Robblee to store and sell gasoline at 24 Brook st. were without interest to the public, as no one appeared.

The request of the School Committee for transfer of $1000 from its fuel appropriation to General account and for $500 transfer to Evening School was referred to the Finance Committee.

Street Commissioner Ross reported that he had completed the laying out of Harrison street and Dickerman road under the betterment act.

Communications relative to municipal insurance and to Postal Savings banks were referred to the Committee on Rules, and a list of licensed coal dealers sent in by the Sec'y of the Commonwealth was placed on file.

Petitions of H. J. Woods for damages on account of change of grade of Richardson street, and of H. S. Williams for refund of taxes paid on trading stamps were referred to the Claims Committee.

Petitions of Morris Greenwood to hurry action on his petition for a junk license, of T. F. Keefe and of H. Meilman for a junk license, of Chas. P. Edwards for a minors license, of J. J. Kenney for a wagon license and permit to transport liquor, were referred to the License Committee.

Hearings Oct. 15th were ordered on petitions of L. A. Sprague to remove a tree on Perkins street, of the Telephone Company for attachments on Chestnut st., Lexington st., River st., and for poles on Boylston st., of the Gas Light Co for poles on Fairfax st., Woodcliff road, Sewall st., and Park st.

Petition of Eliza Dawson et al for a sewer in Shawmut park and Ossipee road was referred to the Public Works Committee.

On report of the Committee on Public Works, a sewer was ordered in Kirk-stall road, a water main in Florence st. to cost $1850; hearings ordered Oct. 15 on laying out of Cook street under the betterment act, for taking land for sewer between Lincoln st and Boylston st., for widening Hancock st., for rounding corners of Boylston and Winchester sts., Boylston and Jackson sts., and Waverly avenue and Kenrick st. On recommendation of the same Committee the City Treasurer was authorized to receive $500 from the Saco & Pettie Machine Works to be expended in work on Oak street, and to receive $1500 from Hon. A. R. Weed to be expended in covering brook channel in school land Crescent st.

On recommendation of the Finance Committee, a grant of $7189 was made for city expenses to Oct. 15, $450 added to appropriation for Health dept., $500 transferred from the Fuel appropriation for Schools to Evening Schools; and leave to withdraw granted Elizabeth S. Warren on application for Soldier's Relief. The same Committee filed its approval of the passage of orders for sewer in Kirkstall road, for sewer between Boylston and Lincoln sts., for a water main in Florence st., and receipt of $900 for Oak st and $1500 for covering brook channel.

On recommendation of the Committee on Public Franchises licenses were granted I. H. Murray, and W. H. Seelye Co. to keep second hand articles, the license fee being also fixed at $5.00: Patrick J. Flannery, John Molenzky wagon license, Wm. L. Carney wagon and permit to transport liquor: N. L. Grant, 206 Melrose st and the Norumbega Park Co to store and sell gasoline. The Telephone Company was also granted relocation of poles on Needham st and Highland ave., permit to remove a pole on Centre st., and the Western Union Telegraph Co. attachments on Highland st and Temple st. Leave to withdraw was granted Abram Shreier, junk license, Morris Greenwood, junk license, Simon Atamian, Common victualler license, Patrick J. Flannery and John Morlenzky, to transport liquor, T. J. O'Brien to move building from Walnut st to Homer st, H. W. Orr to move building Walnut st to Bailey place, and G. W. Dunleavy for 2 pool tables. The last report was accepted by separate vote on request of Alderman Beck, who said that the young man of good character and would keep a quiet, orderly place. Alderman Palmer said that the Committee had not considered the character of the applicant, but had objected to establishing a pool room which might become a loafing place for people from a neighboring town.

In addition to the orders passed on recommendation of committees as above stated an order was passed calling meetings of voters for the state election, Nov. 6th.

During the session a recess was held for committee meeting and adjournment was reached at 9.10 o'clock.

Following the formal proceedings, there was an interesting presentation to President Carter of a genuine Irish shillaleah, tied with a bright green ribbon and with a silver plate with the inscription "President Albert P. Carter from Alderman Bowen and ex-alderman Dennison." The presentation was made in a graceful and semi humorous speech by Alderman Palmer after which Alderman Bowen related the manner in which he had obtained the "big stick."

Fireman Hurt

While responding to a trivial fire early Tuesday night steamer 1 crashed into a sign post at the corner of Centre and Pearl streets and was disabled, the driver being thrown from his seat and considerably injured and one of the horses badly cut.

The alarm came about 7 o'clock from box 24 for a slight fire in the Nonantum district. Within a few moments steamer 1, driven by Engineer Frank E. Judkins in the absence of the regular driver and drawn by three horses, was on its way through Nonantum square. As the steamer turned down Centre street a Cambridge bound electric car of the Boston elevated system came to a stop directly opposite Pearl street. Judkins sent his horses around the front of the car and turned them toward the side street, but he had miscalculated the distance and the outfit crashed into the sign post.

Judkins was thrown from his seat and badly cut about the face and arms and sustained several sprains. The off horse struck his head on the post and fell. The animal was dragged about 25 feet and was badly cut.

Bystanders caught the two other horses, and when the steamer was brought to a stop it was found that the pole was broken. The horses were unharnessed and the disabled steamer was pulled back to the engine house on Washington street by the firemen. It will need considerable repairing.

So forceful was the impact when the steamer crashed into the pole that the iron sign was broken into bits.

The corner is one of the poorest lighted in the city. Numerous complaints have been made from time to time by residents of the vicinity as well as by firemen of the lack of lights at the corner.

The fire to which the steamer was responding was in the house at 91 Dalby street occupied by Michael C. Byrns and family and owned by John Canfield. The damage amounted to but $10. Rats and matches were the cause.

Women

The Newton Ladies Home Circle will hold their first meeting, Wednesday, Oct. 10, in the parlor of the Unitarian church, West Newton.

RECENT DEATHS

Mrs. Peck

Mrs. Sarah A. Peck died quite suddenly at her home on Jewett street last Tuesday. She was a native of Middleboro, where she was born 72 years ago, and she was the widow of the late Dyer H. Peck. Miss Lillian M. Peck, who resides at home and Mrs. James L. Curtis are daughters of the deceased. The funeral will be held from the house this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Allen

Mr. Charles T. Allen, the well known painter and paper hanger on Washington street, died at his home on Crescent street Monday. He had been seriously ill for some time with a complication of troubles. Deceased was 58 years of age. He is survived by a widow, two daughters and four sons. Funeral services were held from the house Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. Julian C. Jaynes officiating, and the interment was in Medfield.

Mr. Wright

Mr. Freeman H. Wright, a well known citizen of Auburndale, died at his home on Washington street last Friday after a brief illness. He was 46 years of age, having been born in Stratford, N. H., April 14, 1860. A widow and three children survive him also his father and mother who are still living in Stratford and are over 80 years of age. Mr. Wright was prominent in the lumber business having been engaged in buying and selling timber lands for the past 20 years throughout New England. The remains were taken to Stratford on Saturday where the funeral was held on Sunday.

Mr. Kirby

Mr. William P. Kirby, a much respected resident of Auburndale died suddenly of heart trouble Friday while visiting his sister in Brockton. Deceased was 53 years of age and is survived by a widow and one son. He was at one time in the employ of the Newton Club and later was with the Newton Street Railroad Company as conductor. Owing to failing health he was unable to perform his duties and at the opening of the season was given a position at Norumbega park. The remains were brought here and the funeral was held from the family residence on Winona street Monday afternoon at one o'clock Rev. John Matteson, rector of the Church of the Messiah, officiating and Master Chester Boney rendered three selections. The bearers were men in the employ of the company and these with many others sent numerous floral tributes. The burial was in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

John Q. A. Harrington

The funeral of Mr. John Q. A. Harrington was held from the family residence on Church street last Sunday afternoon at 2.30. There were many relatives and friends present and numerous floral tributes. Rev. Albert Hammett, pastor of the Newtonville Universalist church, officiated and the interment was in Linwood cemetery, Weston.

Knocked Down

Mrs. Annie Sullivan, aged 80 years, living at 291 Albany st., Boston, was knocked down by a horse ridden by August Peppel of Washington st., while passing through Nonantum sq., Monday. She had just alighted from an electric car. She was taken into a drug store and attended by a local doctor. Luckily she was not slightly injured about the hands and legs, although the horse walked over her as she lay in the street.

Newton Man Honored

We are pleased to note the election to the presidency of the Mass. Board Registration in Pharmacy of our fellow-townsmen, Mr. Fred. A. Hubbard, who has been a faithful member of this board for three years having received his appointment from Ex-Gov. Bates in 1903. Mr. Hubbard served from 1904 to '05 as secretary of this board, being obliged on account of business reasons to give up the office of secretary. The election took place last Tuesday at the State House. Mr. Hubbard received the unanimous endorsement of his fellow members. He succeeds Mr. Henry Adams of Springfield who was president for two years.

New Carrier

Postmaster Morgan of the main post-office at Newton Centre Monday morning received word from Washington that he had been granted a new carrier, who will begin his duties Oct. 15. Charles P. Gormally will be appointed to the place and he will be assigned to the Newton postal station. On that date there will be several transfers in other parts of the city and the number of letter boxes collected at 10 p.m. on the north side of the city will be increased. Charles F. McBride, a carrier for sometime connected

94th Anniversary

The 94th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of St. Mary's Episcopal church was marked by two special services Saturday morning and evening. Both services attracted a large congregation and were well carried out under the direction of the rector, Rev. Thomas L. Cole. Holy Communion took place at 7:30 A. M. In the evening there were a choral evensong. This was followed by the annual feast of St. Michael and all angels, during which there was a miscellaneous entertainment by the young people. Refreshments were served by the women of the parish.

Hardigan-Gleason

Miss Ellen T. Gleason, the daughter of Patrick Gleason of 323 River st., West Newton, was married last week Friday to William J. Hardigan, son of John Hardigan of 58 Walnut st., Waltham.

Sutton-Carter

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth M. Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Carter, and David Sutton, son of Mrs. Mary Sutton Richmond of 48 Beacon st., Boston, took place last evening at the home of the bride, 44 Montvale rd., Newton Centre.

In the presence of a fashionable gathering the ceremony was performed by Rev. Alfred H. Brown, pastor of the Newton Centre Unitarian church. The bride wore a gown of white messaline trimmed with duchess lace. She was attended by Mrs. Adna C. Denison of Dorchester, her sister, as matron of honor. There were no bridesmaids. The best man was Howard Sutton of Lancaster, O., brother of the groom. The ushers were Adna C. Denison of Dorchester, Edward Sutton of Detroit, Donald C. Barnes and Walter O. Adams of Cambridge. The house was artistically decorated with white roses, asparagus and palms. From 8 to 10 o'clock there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, during which Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Carter, Mrs. Adna C. Denison, Mrs. Mary Sutton and Mrs. Richard Sedgwick, the latter a sister of the groom, assisted in receiving the many guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutton will spend their honeymoon in Europe.

Jessup-Tobey

Miss Hattie Mabelle Tobey, a popular young lady of Newton was married Monday afternoon at her home, 26 Jefferson street to Mr. George W. Jessup Jr of Philadelphia. The ceremony took place at three o'clock in the presence of the immediate friends of the young couple, Rev. Frank B. Matthews of the Immanuel Baptist Church officiating. The bride, who was unattended, was gowned in white silk, with pearl trimmings and wore a diamond brooch, the gift of the groom. She carried brides roses. Following the ceremony the bridal couple received their friends, with the assistance of Mrs. Mary A. Tobey, the mother of the bride and Mr. George W. Jessup, the father of the groom. The house was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and ferns and the receiving party stood under a wedding bell with festoons of asparagus vine and roses.

After a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Jessup will reside at 22 Maple street.

Never in the history of Burdett College, Business and Shorthand, 18 Boylston St., Boston, was there a period when it enjoyed as great an all-round success as at the present time. This is one of the large private schools of the world, and one in which every attention is paid to the needs of the pupil. No prospective student is wooed on by false promises, and it is this confidence which people have in the management of the college which accounts for its numerical strength. Situations are found for its minister to their welfare. The courses graduates, and the school never ceases of instruction are so arranged that students enter Burdett any school day in the year. The cost per term of ten weeks is $37.50. But few institutions offer equal facilities with Burdett for thorough training in Shorthand, Touch Typewriting and Bookkeeping.

MARRIED.

COUNTY CONVENTION

MR. EDWIN O. CHILDS, Nominated for Register of Deeds, Southern Dist., Middlesex County.

The Middlesex County Republican Convention is always an interesting occasion and none more so than that held at Lowell last Tuesday. 339 delegates were in attendance from the present county in the state and all the present officials were renominated. For County Commissioner, Mr. Samuel O. Upham was opposed by ex mayor L. B. Chandler of Somerville, but the ballot showed that Mr. Upham was safe in the hands of his friends with a vote of 252 to 84. For Clerk of Courts, Theodore C. Hurd of Winchester was named by acclamation.

The nominating speech being made by Judge Kennedy of Newton. County Treasurer, Joseph O. Hayden was also nominated by acclamation. The Register of Deeds Convention of the Southern District which immediately followed the County Convention was a Newton affair from start to finish. Hon. Edward B. Wilson of West Newton was the chairman, and Edwin O. Childs, of Newton was unanimously renominated for Register of Deeds, the nominating speech being made by Mr. W. F. Garcelon of Newton.

COUNCILLOR CONVENTION

MR. SEWARD W. JONES, Republican Nominee for Councillor.

Mr. Seward W. Jones of Newton Highlands was the unanimous choice of the new sixth councillor Republican convention at Wesleyan Hall, Boston, yesterday noon. 134 delegates attended out of a total enrolment of 246. Mr. William F. Garcelon, chairman of the district committee called the convention to order and Hon. W. W. Rawson, the present councillor was chosen chairman. Mr. Jones was placed in nomination by Congressman Weeks who said in part as follows:

After my election to Congress some two years ago I attended a dinner of the Tantalus Club and sat beside Speaker Cannon. As the successor of the founder of that club I was called upon to make a speech and when I had finished I tried to obtain Mr. Cannon's opinion of it. He said that it was a very good speech, that some of the subjects mentioned were good and some of them new. Then, after he had lighted a cigar, he continued, "but the good things were not new and the new things were not good." Now, on the contrary, the candidate I am going to nominate here is both new and good. He is new because he has never before been a candidate for office, but this does not mean that he has not been active, for he has been one of the most valuable men in politics in the state. But he is new as a candidate. He is also good, mentally, morally and financially. He is a man of brains and active and successful in the business world. He is good morally, because he is a good citizen. A church man without being a Pharisee. And he is a good business man. Newton and others from outside of the district, who know him will be gratified to learn that he is to be rewarded for his long and faithful services. Mr. Jones was then nominated with considerable applause. A committee was appointed to escort Mr. Jones to the hall, and when he appeared, he spoke as follows:

Your committee have informed me of your action in nominating me by acclamation as a candidate for the Governor's Council. I accept the nomination with heartfelt gratitude, fully realizing the honor, which a non-contested nomination carries with it, and should your action be ratified at the polls, I assure you that I will fulfill the duties of the office to the best of my ability.

A contest is sometimes advantageous to a district, sometimes it is not. I am not prepared to say whether it would have been of advantage in this instance or not, but I can assure you that the absence of a contest has added greatly to the peace of mind of your candidate.

The new district is made up of parts of three districts, and is composed of some fifty-three cities and towns in the First, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Middlesex Senatorial Districts, and is strongly Republican. The Republican candidates for Governor's Council last year received about 30,000 votes, while the Democratic candidate received nineteen thousand votes, so under ordinary conditions, your candidate has a fair chance of election.

The indications at present are that we will have a strenuous campaign this Fall for the head of the ticket, and it, therefore, behooves every Republican, not only to stand by the ticket himself, but to do everything in his power to increase the vote. It is Guild and Draper versus Moran and Morison.

The situation here is very similar to the situation in New York, and I cannot do better than to quote the words from the present Republican candidate, Mr. Charles E. Hughes: "Mere victory in this campaign is not enough. We must make the victory so decisive, so overwhelming, that those things for which the opposition stands will be utterly obliterated. We must hit them so hard that they will never again be live issues in this State."

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen I will not detain you further except to express to you my most profound appreciation of the honor, which you have conferred upon me in nominating me as your candidate for the Governor's Council. I thank you most sincerely.

The new district committee will have Messrs. Garcelon, E. T. Colburn and Frank R. Moore as its Newton members. After adjournment the delegates were given a lunch by Mr. Jones at Young's hotel.

Political Notes

On a charge that he carried political circulars into a polling place in this city, Elijah Wood, 47 years old, a florist living on Highland st, West Newton, was arraigned in the police court Saturday morning.

Wood pleaded not guilty. Testimony of patrolman Lucey and Wilbur F. Payne, a ward officer, showed that Wood brought Foss circulars into the ward 3 polling place in A. O. U. W. hall, Tuesday afternoon, while the primaries were in progress, and left them where persons coming in to vote could obtain them. Wood stated that he did not know it was unlawful to carry the circulars into the polling place. He was found guilty and the case was placed on file.

The circulars were discovered late Tuesday afternoon by the warden, who notified City Clerk Kingsbury. The latter in turn notified the police, who secured one of the circulars.

Rev. Edward M. Noyes of Newton Center made the opening prayer today at the Republican state convention. Congressman Weeks made the nominating speech to day at the Republican convention for Governor Guild.

The Republican convention for this district will be held on Monday at the Newton Clubhouse. It is hinted that the convention will not be as harmonious as some others have been.

Remick-Howland

The marriage of Miss Mary Howland, the daughter of Mr. Charles F. Howland of Chestnut street, West Newton to Mr. Frank Woodbury Remick of the same village, which took place on Wednesday afternoon, attracted a throng of guests, completely filling the new Unitarian church of West Newton. This beautiful edifice was opened to the public for the first time on this occasion, and its dark finish heightened the effect produced by the handsome costumes of the bridal party and the attending guests. The church was decorated with a background of palms and a large spray of lilies.

The bride was attended by Miss Ethel Howland, her sister, as maid of honor, and Miss Dorothy Howland and Miss Alice Howland, as bridesmaids. Her niece, little Miss Marjory Howland and little Miss Mary Palmer, dressed in white with white and pink bonnets, and carrying baskets of pink Kilmory roses were a pretty feature of the wedding. The groom was accompanied by Alderman Benjamin S. Palmer as best man and the ushers were Messrs. Arthur Howland Arthur T. Lovett, Oscar M. Remick, Frederic K. Leatherbee, Clifford H. Dwinell, of West Newton, Joseph Remick of Melrose, Frank W. Brigham of Waltham and George T. Howard of Somerville. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and the ring service was used.

A largely attended reception followed at the Howland residence 129 Chestnut street, Mr. and Mrs. Remick being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Howland, the maid of honor and the bridesmaids. The house was decorated in laurel, asparagus vine, and Kilmory and American Beauty roses, the receiving party standing in a bower of green. Mr. and Mrs. Remick will be at home after Jan. 1st, 1907 at 34 Exeter street, West Newton.

Holmes-Lockett

Miss Kate Webb Lockett, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lockett of Highland avenue, Newtonville, became the bride last Tuesday evening of Mr. Tyler Lee Holmes of Pittsburg, Pa. The ceremony was performed at eight o'clock, in the New Church by Rev. John Goddard, its pastor, in the presence of the many friends of the couple. The church was tastefully decorated with green vines and palms for the occasion.

The bride was gown in white liberty satin, with Duchesse lace trimmings and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was attended by Mrs. Walter Warren as matron of honor, dressed in white lace and carrying American Beauty roses. Mr. Arthur W. Hollis was the best man. The ushers were Messrs. William L. Barnard of Hingham, William S. Parker of Jamaica Plain, Palmer Presbury, Walter Warren of Brookline, William Hollings of Newtonville and Hosmer Hammond of Norwich, Conn.

A small reception for a few old classmates followed the ceremony at the Lockett residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes will reside at Pittsburg, Pa.

Gleason-Howes

The wedding of Miss Helen Z. Howes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Howes of this city and Charles B. Gleason of West Medford took place Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents on Park street. There were many guests from this city and Medford.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Alexander S. Twombly, of Newton. The bride was attended by Miss Margaret Mills of New York as maid of honor. The best man was Sydney Gleason, brother of the groom. A reception followed the ceremony. After a trip Mr. and Mrs. Gleason will reside in this city.

Trowbridge-Lowell

At South Framingham, the summer home of Mrs. George F. Lowell of Walnut street, Newtonville, her daughter, Miss Ethel Lowell, last Tuesday afternoon became the bride of Mr. Arthur Simcoe Trowbridge of South Framingham. The ceremony was performed at five o'clock by the Rev. Mr. Carr of the Universalist church of that town.

The bride wore a travelling gown of blue broadcloth, and the decorations were autumn leaves and golden rod. After a wedding trip to the Adirondacks, Mr. and Mrs. Trowbridge will reside at 70 Oak Square avenue, Faneuil, where they will be at home after Nov. 1st.

Woman's World

Conducted by Miss GRACE BURT.

The Newton Highlands Monday Club met for the first time this season on Monday afternoon, October first. The course of study which has been laid out for the winter is on "India." Rev. Franklin S. Hatch, who has spent some time in that country, was the guest of the club and spoke upon India. The next meeting will be at Mrs. O'Connor's.

The Auburndale Review Club began its fifteenth year on October 2, meeting at the home of Mrs. Henry R. Turner. After the business session, the morning was devoted to a pleasing and suggestive lecture on the early Italian and especially Florentine painters by Miss Emma E. Porter who thus introduced the year's work which is to be upon Great Masters in Art.

On the occasion of the annual meeting, the Review Club was delightfully entertained, at the home of the retiring vice-president, Mrs. Arthur C. Farley, and the officers for the year were elected.

President, Mrs. Vine D. Baldwin; vice-president, Mrs. Henry G. Hildreth; secretary, Mrs. Nelson Freeman; treasurer, Mrs. William Fuller; executive committee, Miss S. Alice Ranlett; Mrs. Waldo W. Cole, Mrs. Edward Almy; chairman of Social Service Committee, Mrs. Charles D. Pickard; delegate to Social Service Committee, Newton Federation, Mrs. Mary E. Herron; Current Events Committee, Miss Ella B. Smith; Press Committee, Miss S. Alice Ranlett.

The first regular meeting of the Pierian Club was held at the home of Mrs. H. E. Locke, Wednesday afternoon, October 3. Owing to its being the Tenth Anniversary of the Club, the business of the afternoon was quickly dispensed with, and the remainder of the time given up to sociability.

The house was prettily decorated with pink and white carnations, dahlias, and potted plants.

Solos were rendered by Mrs. Edith Cooper, Mrs. H. E. Child, and Mrs. Alex Dresser. Mrs. Thompson's readings were especially pleasing and her original "Ode to the Pierian Club" was most appropriate to the occasion. The Club History as written and read by Mrs. L. P. Everett was very interesting.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon was the presentations of flowers, to the charter members of the Club, who were present, also to those of the past members who graced the occasion by their presence.

After refreshments were served the meeting closed by all joining hands and singing Auld Lang Syne.

Reception

The ladies' auxiliary of Thomas Burnett camp 10, S of V, Tuesday evening gave a reception to Dr. Laura C. Hughes of Brookline, the new president of the Spanish War nurses' association, at its headquarters, Nonantum building. Dr. Hughes received, assisted by Mrs. Capt. McNamara, NP; Mrs. Margaret C. Skehan, Mrs. W. H. Adams, Mrs. P. L. Armitage, Mrs. W. B. Munil and the Misses Meehan and Kerrivan. Speeches were made by commander-in-chief Frederick Walker of the local L. S. W. V., ex-commander Hayes, JVC Daley of Thomas Burnett camp and Dr. Hughes.

Police Paragraphs.

In the police court Wednesday morning Fred G. Chambers, 17 years old, arrested last night at his home, 450 Water-street, was arraigned on a charge of larceny. He was charged with having entered the house of Jacob Kleigman, a junk dealer, on West street, Nonantum, last August, and taking $19.40 in money and some jewelry. Shortly after the break another Nonantum young man was convicted of being implicated in the affair and was sentenced to an institution. Chambers this morning pleaded guilty, and asserted that while he went into the house for fun someone stuffed some money in his pocket. He said he received only $6 from this unknown but generous friend, and this amount he returned to a member of the family. The case was continued to Feb. 9.

John H. Davis, a local chauffeur, was in court the same morning on two charges. On that of speeding an automobile Sept. 26 he was found not guilty but on that of not stopping when signalled by a policeman he will again be in court Feb. 9. Lincoln Righter and William Cameron, the latter a cab man, were called to the stand but offered little testimony. It was alleged that Davis sped past a carriage driven by Cameron and frightened his horse.

In deference to Mayor Warren's characteristic modesty we have refrained from editorial comment on some of the economies he has effected in some minor civil affairs, although they were well worthy of public attention. The present week, however, has brought to a head, a new contract for street lighting for which Mayor Warren deserves great credit.
The new figures show a reduction from $100 to $90 on are lights from $16 to $15 on gas lights and from $15.50 to $14.50 on incandescent light. These reductions make a saving on the present number of lights of about $4200. We trust the mayor will use the amount thus saved on the much needed extension and improvement of the street lights. We believe that even the most rabid tax hater in the city would be pleased to see our streets properly lighted, and the saving made in the new contract cannot be used to greater advantage than in this direction.

We live in hopes that some time before next spring the water rates in this city will be reduced. We have called attention to this subject so often that we fear it is almost threadbare. The facts still remain that the present rates are producing more revenue than the present expenses of the water department require, and as the statute requires all water revenue to be used for water purposes, the consumer will not get the benefit of the situation except thru a reduction in rates.

Capt. Weeks' Speech

In nominating Governor Guild at the meeting of the Republican state convention today, Congressman Weeks of this city spoke as follows:—

No State in the Union has held the Governorship in such honor or has been so exacting in its requirements as to the qualifications of the candidates for that high office as Massachusetts. Our people have desired that their Governor shall be not essentially a self-seeker basing an ephemeral reputation on promises unfulfilled, but a man of high moral character, of scholarly attainments and of well-known and approved opinions on public questions, with a reputation based on performance. They require a man acquainted with political affairs in such a way that he shall not only appreciate the requirements of the hour, but also wise in judgment growing out of experience, that he foresees the demands of the future.

It is within the knowledge of every delegate here today that the Republican party in this Commonwealth in the past has fully met these requirements in the candidates it has presented for the suffrages of the people. Who can recall the administration of Greenhalgh, Wolcott, Crane and Bates without a feeling of satisfaction, or who has not felt a sense of pride that the Commonwealth contained such citizens ready to respond to their party's call?

To continue their virtues and accomplishments the party last year nominated and the people elected the candidate I am to present to you for your approval today. This action was taken because he had already been weighed in the balance and not found wanting.

For twenty-five years he had labored in season and out of season for the success of the principles which the Republican party represents and for the candidates presented by that party. He had not confined his efforts to local affairs, but had extended his influence to broader fields, especially in aiding to correct dangerous tendencies in 1896 and again in 1900 when in the West he faced not only political antagonism, but violence and riot, shoulder to shoulder with our great President, Theodore Roosevelt.

Not only as a party man but as a student of public questions, broadened by a large experience in public affairs, he has shown his fitness for the high office to which he was nominated and elected last year.

No sane man changes the faithful servant or the wise counsellor or the doctor in whose hands he entrusts his life, if the change can be avoided; no business house changes the experienced employee, the skilful manager or the wise director, unless for exceptional reasons.
No sane political party changes its tried and proven leaders until disqualification or party custom or precedent demands such change.

The Republican party of Massachusetts is a sane organization. We have tried our Governor one year and now by his works we know him and from them we are able to estimate his future acts. Based on this all important standard, as well as party precedent, he is entitled to a re-nomination. His year in the Governor's chair has been one of the most trying in the history of the Commonwealth, but he has met its requirements; he has not permitted public clamor or to prevent his sustaining the verdicts of our courts; neither race nor religion has been allowed to prejudice his judgment in the selection of suitable men to represent the Commonwealth in any public position, if there are those who are disappointed in appointments made or not made, I say to them—and I challenge them to deny it—that in discharging his duty under his oath he has been actuated by a purpose not merely to maintain high character and efficiency in the public service but to contribute to its advance and uplift.

He has made many recommendations and the resulting legislation in now on the statute books; notably by his suggestion the management of the police force of Boston has been re-organized on a basis so sound and so scientific that for the first time a Democratic Mayor of Boston has been compelled to praise the work of a Police Commissioner appointed by a Republican Governor.

The Savings Bank Commission has been re-organized and new legislation has been adopted which safeguards the earnings of the thrifty Massachusetts, always a leader in all humane legislation, as has been already set forth in our platform adopted here today, once more takes the lead in an act which compels universal medical inspection of school children and the truant officer has been placed in a position to co-operate with the factory inspector—being given new and increased powers so that the children of the Commonwealth shall be taken from the workshop and placed in the schools.

But why particularize? After an exceptionally active year the Governor has proven that his administration has met the requirements of the hour, that he has continued the high standards of the past and that he has kept Massachusetts in the fore front in legislative and administrative acts which go to benefit all classes and conditions of our citizens.

For all these reasons and in response to the manifest demand of the people I take great pleasure in presenting as the Republican candidate for Governor and in moving his nomination by acclamation, Curtis Guild, Jr., of Boston.

Looks like an electric light, doesn't it?

It isn't.

It's the new Welsbach No. 82 Socket burner.

Burns gas, of course.

Which means you get the effect of electricity at about one-third the cost.

Built not only for combination fixtures, so the fixture looks all electric, but mighty fine on a side bracket.

It's the newest thing we have—and we're rather proud of it.

Newton High's Church OpenedInteresting and Impressive Services For the Week

The new church edifice of the Newton Highlands Congregational Society was formally dedicated last Sunday morning with an audience which completely filled the beautiful auditorium. The program included the organ prelude, Chorale in E, the Doxology, the prayer of invocation by Rev. Dr. Henry J. Patrick, reading of the Commandments and Beautitudes by the pastor, Rev. Dr. George T. Smart, an anthem, "Te Deum" by Foote, reading of the Scriptures by Rev. Dr. A. E. Dunning, editor of the Congregationalist, the offering, during which the choir sang "How Lovely are thy Dwellings," a hymn, the Sermon, by Rev. Edward C. Moore of Harvard University, on "The Transmission of Life," after which the Building was formally presented for dedication by Hon. Edgar W. Warren, chairman of the Building Committee and accepted by Mr. Clarence S. Luit-

Grant sight to the blinded,—and foul lepers heal; May sin-blighted souls here Christ's tenderness feel; Here comfort be shed for sad mourners, by Thee;
And lives grow more loving, fit temples for Thee.

Here shall Bread and the Cup give communion with Him Who the cup of salvation hath filled to the brim;
And joy from the Holy, make joyful this place, As in Heaven, where His Angels see God face to face.

New Reading Room at Newtonville

This much needed adjunct of the Newton Public Library was thrown open for the first time Monday, Oct. 1st, 1906. It occupies two attractive corner rooms in the Masonic Temple Building, Newtonville, and is under the effective charge of Miss C. L. Williams, whose experience in library work, and large acquaintance in Newtonville, especially fits her for this position. Newtonville has long desired to have a permanent branch of the Library located within its limits and several efforts have been made in the past to raise the necessary funds. Some four years ago, a fresh attempt was made and $250.00 raised, but the matter rested there until last spring, when the

Alcorn-Wyeth

Miss Ethel Wyeth, the daughter of Mrs. Annie Wyeth, was married to Mr. William Stewart Alcorn of Waltham, last evening at her home on Rowe street, Auburndale. Rev. John Mattison of the Church of the Messiah tied the nuptial knot in the presence of the families and immediate friends. The bride wore a pearl gray travelling suit and carried brides roses. She was given away by her brother, Mr. Frederick W. Wyeth, and was accompanied by her sister, Miss Alice M. Wyeth, as maid of honor. The best man was Mr. Fred Douglass of Auburndale.

A reception followed until ten o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Alcorn being assisted in receiving by Mrs. Wyeth, the Misses Wyeth and Mr. Douglass. The house was decorated with crepe paper and cut flowers the bridal couple standing under a huge wedding bell. Mr. and Mrs. Alcorn left amid a shower of rice and confetti for a wedding trip to New York state and upon their return will be at home after Nov. 1st in Waltham.

The show rooms, of McKenney & Waterbury Co., 181 Franklin, corner Congress Sts., are worthy of a visit to all interested in the art of lighting fixtures for the home. There are over one thousand lights, showing effects to meet all decorations and a display of Electric and Gas Table Lamps, with Art Shades, which make most acceptable Wedding and Anniversary Gifts.

McClure's for October is full of keen vigorous articles and delightful fiction. First of all comes Lincoln Steffens' masterly study of the Juvenile Court of Denver, with its picturesque stories of "bad kids," and its vivid, human portrait of Judge Lindsey, the man who has created a new method of dealing with juvenile offenders. Burton J. Hendrick continues his history of Life-Insurance in "The Raid on the Surplus," a remarkable story of extravagance, waste, and graft. George K. Turner tells how Galveston has cut down her city expenditures, cleaned and lighted her streets, and controlled disease and vice under a new form of city government—a political experiment which every citizen of America ought to study. C. P. Connolly, in the third chapter of "The Story of Montana," relates the dramatic story of Whitelaw's exposure of Clark's bribery of the Montana legislature—a narrative of exciting incident and splendid movement.

The fiction in this number covers a wide range of subject and treatment. Harvey J. O'Higgins, in "Tammany's Tithes," tells a powerful story of an essentially American tragedy. Percival Gibbon contributes another of his striking South African tales of adventure and romance. James Lincoln, in "One of the Eighty Thousand," writes of the Spanish-American War, from Spain's point of view. "The Confluence," by James Hopper, is one of McClure's most successful love stories, and "Kilbrogan and Kilbrogan," by Hermine Templeton, is a charming comedy full of humor and Irish magic. Kipling completes his series of Robin Goodfellow tales with "The Treasure and The Law," a story of the Ghetto of the Middle Ages. "A Rain Mood," by William Aspenwall Bradley, and "Salute!" by A. E. Housman, are two pieces of delicate and singing verse.

The illustrations are an artistic accompaniment to this striking fall number. Drawings by Howard Pyle, wonderfully in accord with the romantic spirit of the story, illustrate Gibbon's "The Second-Class Passenger." Edmund J. Sullivan has made amusing pictures for Hermine Templeton's Irish tale, and Frederic Dorr Steele puts some of the picturesque beauty of Spain into his little vignettes for "One of the Eighty Thousand." Andre Castigne, W. Glackens, and Thomas Fogarty complete this notable list.

weiler, chairman of the Standing Committee. The minister, Rev. Dr. Smart and the audience then joined in the act of dedication, which was followed by the singing of a hymn and the benediction.

Sunday evening was devoted to a Fellowship service in which representatives of all the Newton Congregational churches joined. Rev. Edward M. Noyes responded for the First Church, Newton Centre, Rev. Dr. Prudden for the Second Church, West Newton, Rev. F. S. Hatch for the Eliot Church, Rev. Dr. Peloubet for the Auburndale Church, and Rev. J. T. Stocking for the Central Church. A pleasant feature of the evening was the greeting from Rev. Samuel H. Dana, D. D., of Exeter, N. H., the first pastor of the church.

The social side of the church work was emphasized Wednesday evening when a reception was given the church and congregation by the Ladies' Church Aid Society. The beautiful Sunday School room was crowded with the many friends of the Society who greeted each other with mutual congratulations on the new church home and its fine facilities and comforts. The guests were received by Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Smart, Hon. and Mrs. E. W. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Seward W. Jones, Mrs. A. F. Hayward and Mr. F. R. Hayward. Refreshments were served by a bevy of young misses and Handley's orchestra rendered music. A delightful feature of the evening was the singing at the close of the reception of "America," "Auld Lang Syne" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

The exercises continue this evening with a Preparatory lecture, on Sunday with a Communion service at 10.30, Sunday School consecration at 12.15, a Christian Endeavor Service at 7.30 at which Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., will speak.

Dedication Hymn

(Tune, Lyons.)

O Thou, to whose glory this Temple is raised, For its strength and its beauty Thy name shall be praised, May each stone from foundation to turret out-shine With the Light that illumines thro' Thy Spirit Divine.

Its altar-fires kindle with flame from above; Touch lips here to speak with hot coals of Thy Love; May saints here with righteousness ever be crowned,
And these arches with songs of salvation resound.

Newtonville Improvement Association took hold of it. A committee consisting of F. T. Benner, C. D. Cabot and F. L. Nagle presented the matter anew to our citizens and in a short time secured cash subscriptions of $750.00. This, with the $250.00 already in hand, made up the minimum sum of $1000.00 usually required by the Library Trustees before a branch can be established.

The Trustees have co-operated with the Newtonville Committee in getting the rooms equipped and opened in so short a time. On January 1st, the beginning of the new fiscal year, it is understood the City will take over the rooms and their furnishings and assume all further expenses.

On the opening day, the two rooms were well stocked with fiction and current literature which could be taken out on card application the same as at the Central Library. It is understood that a good assortment of the most popular books will be kept here for reading room or home use. These books are supplemented by magazines, papers and the usual reading room literature. Collections of photos will be shown from time to time and the various educational agencies of a modern library in this direction will be fully exemplified.

The rooms are reached by a private outside staircase from Walnut street, on the south side of the building next to Dr. Talbot's. They are now open from 10 to 12, 3 to 6 and 7 to 9.

New Jewelry House

The commodious jewelry and art store of Messrs. Maynard & Potter in the artistic new Berkeley bldg., at Berkeley and Boylston streets opened last Monday. The establishment will be in every way worthy of its location in the heart of Boston's best residential district, as its fittings and furnishings are tastefully rich and elegant, and its stock comprises the choicest selections in its varied and comprehensive lines.

Diamonds, fine jewelry, sterling silver ware, rich cut glass, imported china, art wares, useful leather goods, umbrellas, electrolers, are some of the goods which the new house will carry in endless variety, and at a range of prices to meet the requirements of any purse, from one dollar up into the thousands. An important specialty with the firm will be a specially selected list of articles for gifts suited to every occasion, the prices and quality of each article fully guaranteed. They will also carry a special line of rhinestone jewelry, very handsome for evening and theatrical wear, running in price from one dollar up to seventy-five dollars.

Another specialty, certainly an important one in this vicinity, is a full and beautiful line of Christian Science emblems.

The new firm of Maynard & Potter is composed of Abbot T. Maynard, for many years partner and general manager in the well-known jewelry house of A.

Literary Notes

A notable prize contest, open to all artists, is announced in the Woman's Home Companion. That magazine offers for the best covers, in color, five prizes aggregating $3,500—the first prize, $1,500, the second prize, $1,000; the third, $500, and the fourth and fifth, $250 each. There are no restrictions as to subject, style, number of colors, or medium of expression, and the competitors may submit any number of designs.

The only stipulations are that every design must be complete, without lettering, no unfinished design being considered; every design must be in proper proportions to reduce to the dimensions of the magazine page—ten by fourteen and one half inches; designs must be sent prepaid to the Prize Cover Editor, care of the Woman's Home Companion, Madison Square, New York; every design must have the name and address of the sender plainly written on the back, and competing designs must be received by January 16, 1907, when the contest closes.

The publishers announce that an impartial jury will award the prizes absolutely on the merits of the designs without regard to reputation of the artists, that unknown artists are especially welcome, and that they may wish to buy at the artists' regular rates, ten or more covers selected from the designs submitted for which prizes are not awarded. The jury of award will consist of Mr. I. H. Chapin, of Scribner's Magazine; Mr. Robert I. Collier, of Collier's Weekly; Mr. Alexander W. Drake, of the Century Magazine; Mr. Will H. Low, the well-known artist and art critic, and Sir Caspar Purdon Clarke.

THEATRES

Keith's Theatre—A show that promises to move with the briskness that adds so much to the enjoyment of a vaudeville program will be "on" at Keith's next week. Its head-liners will be Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Crane, Morris Cronin and Troupe, the Elinore Sisters, Wylie's Circus, Fields and Ward, the Village Choir, "Princess Trixie," Barry and Halvers, Fred and Pauly, and Mabel Sinclair, surely a most attractive list. "Everybody's Up," is the title of the new protean farce to be given for the first time in Boston by Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Crane. It is the only one of the protean acts in which the comedy element predominates. The idea of the act is Mr. Crane's own conception, while Edmund Day worked out the plot and wrote the dialogue. There are no less than four acts on the list that are special importations from Europe for the Keith Circuit and will be seen only in the Keith houses. Morris Cronin and Troupe, who do a juggling act that is simply bewildering in its rapidity of action; Wylie's Circus, said to be the best trained animal act the European variety stage can boast of; Fred and Pauly, whose gymnastic act is notable for its new tricks, and Mabel Sinclair, the English ventriloquist who does by far the best act in the line ever done by a woman. Three better comedy acts than those of the Elinore sisters, Fields and Ward and the Village Choir would be hard to find. The Elinore Sisters are great laugh-makers, Kate's eccentric methods finding a capital foil in May's neat work. There is no better team of conversational comedians and parodists in vaudeville than Fields and Ward. They have a bunch of new material. The Village Choir will render several new selections, "Princess Trixie," "The Horse with the Human Brain," who is to stay another week; Barry and Halvers in their jolly singing and dancing skit; the Burkes, with some clever piano playing as their leading feature; Gertrude Gebest, a captivating comedienne; Pucella and Orben, whose dancing will create a sensation; Archer and Crocker, acrobatic humorists, and the Kinetograph will fill out the program. A concert for the benefit of St. Mary's Infant Asylum will be given Sunday evening, October 7th.

Tremont Theatre—Mr. Henry W. Savage, whose name needs no introduction to the American public, being as he is, easily the premier of impresarios of English opera, has two productions of the coming season, which he looks upon as the culmination, the crowning efforts of his managerial and artistic career. We refer to Puccini's opera entitled "Madam Butterfly," which has had a phenomenal success in England and on the continent, and to Reginald de Koven's, "The Student King." "The Student King" is of special interest to Bostonians just now, as it opened at the Tremont Theatre last Monday evening, to one of the most distinguished as well as the largest audience ever gathered in this popular theatre. Every theatre goer knows of Reginald de Koven and his phenomenal success as a writer of brilliant light opera, and "The Student King" is said to be quite as tuneful and charming as any of its predecessors, rivaling even "Robin Hood" itself. The librettists are the late Frederick Ranken and Stanislaus Sange, name which guarantee more than ordinary merit. The period lends itself to elaborate scenic effects and to beautiful and picturesque costumes, and Mr. Savage has spared no expense to make the production one that will long be memorable. While there is a vein of sentiment and romance in the opera, the keynote is mirth and jollity and there are many very laughable scenes. The cast has been selected with the greatest care and contains a list of artists most unusual in light opera, or even in grand opera. Lina Abarbanell, who is singing the leading female role of the Princess Ilsa, arrived in America only a little over a year ago, but won immediate success as one of the prima donnas of Herr Conried's forces at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. The other members of the company include Flavia Arcaro, a contralto and delightful comedienne as well; Alexander Clark, so well and favorably known for his comedy powers; William C. Weedon, the popular tenor; Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Alice Judson, Thomas C. Leary, Ditmar Popkin, Fanny McIntyre, Eva Fallon and others. The chorus comprises eighty people, and the special orchestra is under the direction of Arthur Weild.

Grand Opera House—When "Ruled Off The Turf," A. H. Woods' big sporting comedy-drama comes to the Boston Grand Opera House next week, we will have an opportunity of seeing Georgie Mack, in a brand new character Jack King, the jockey, in which part the little comedian is said to be immense. "Ruled Off The Turf" is a play that simply throbs and thrills with sensations. It tells of the struggles of a jockey to remain honest against strong temptations and at the risk of his life. In the face of fearful odds he finally wins out and triumphs over his persecutors at the finish. An extremely excellent company of players have been secured to support Mr. Mack and their efforts ably second those of the little comedian himself. A bunch of very attractive Show Girls are a pleasing and unusual feature with a play of this kind. Matinees will be given as usual on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Golf Competition

The competition for the Women's Amateur Golf championship of the United States, open to all Women Amateur Golfers belonging to Clubs which are members of the United States Golf Association, and to those foreigners visiting this country who may be invited by the Executive Committee of the Association, will be played on the course of the Brae-Burn Country Club, West Newton, men's championship, first match play round. 1.30 P. M.—Consolation event for the non-qualifiers. 18 holes medal play handicap. Prize presented by Brae-Burn Country Club. Entries close for this event, Monday, October 8th, at 6 P. M.

Saturday, October 13th, 10 A. M.—Women's championship, final match play round. 1.30 P. M.—Mixed foursome medal play handicap. 18 holes. Prizes presented by Brae-Burn Country Club. Entries close for this event Thursday, October 12th, at 6 P. M.

The tournament committee consists of Harry L. Ayer, chairman, George A. Frost, Henry B. Day, B. S. Palmer, F. B. Witherbee, G. E. Gilbert, A. D. Locke, W. A. Young, W. B. H. Dowse, C. I. Travelli, E. F. Woods, Andrew B. Cobb, T. W. Sprague, A. H. Gilbert, H. L. Burrage.

Lasell

Lasell Seminary opened with a full house to overflowing of young women rather more mature than usual. Among these are seven pairs of sisters and seventeen sisters of previous pupils. Five from California, three from Texas, etc.

A course of lectures by Leon H. Vincent will be given at the Seminary on October 4th, 11th and 18th; his subjects being "Irving and the Columbian Voyages," "Prescott and the Conquest of Mexico," and "Parkman and the Story of New France." Friends are welcome.

Enterprise Arrives

After a cruise of three months and twenty-eight days in the North Atlantic, the Nautical Training Ship Enterprise arrived at Boston Saturday morning about 9 o'clock. The ship left Boston May 31st on the thirtieth annual cruise, and during the summer visited the following ports: Havre, Gibraltar, Algiers and Funchal. The commanding officer is Comdr. William F. Low, U. S. Navy, who has been the efficient superintendent for the past four years.

The Enterprise is an auxiliary vessel, having both steam and sail power, and the summer term, which lasts from May 1 to October 1, is devoted to instructing the cadets in the practical duties and exercises of the seaman and marine engineer. In the Massachusetts Nautical Training School, on board the U. S. S. Enterprise, the State offers to young men free excellent training and instruction.

These cadets, upon the return of the Enterprise to this port, complete their two years' term: Laurence K. Batchelder, Melrose; Geo. C. Bosson, Reading; Walter H. Crafts, Boston; Lewis A. Jones, Middleboro; Wm. H. Lee, Roxbury; Clarence E. Nutting, Cambridge; Philip S. Bates, Southville; Arthur G. Burbank, Carver; Carl E. Colony, Brookline; Michael J. Doherty, Wintthrop; Victor M. Foster, East Boston; Bradford N. A. Gladding, New Bedford; Wm. R. Webster, Worcester; Frank C. Wilmarth, Saunderville.

The Enterprise will be berthed for the winter at the Commonwealth Pier, a dock owned by the state of Massachusetts, near the South Union Station.

Associated Charities

The directors and visitors of the Associated Charities were addressed at their meeting on Sept. 28 by Miss Annie Ellis of Newtonville and Mrs. Starkey of Newton Centre on the subject of the two Day Nurseries in our city.

Miss Ellis, the leader in the establishment of the Nursery at Nonantum told the Society in the spring of her plan, and was advised to start at once with such money as she had in hand, as it has been abundantly proved that it is easier to raise money for an enterprise already in operation, than for one that is only talked of. Not every one would have had the courage to take advice so strenuous, but Miss Ellis and her helpers had, with the result that there is a Day Nursery at 414 Adams street, only partially equipped to be sure, but with a thoroughly competent nurse caring for about fifteen children a day. This nursery will be continued as long as there is money in hand to maintain it. If there comes a time when there is no more money, the nursery will close. It requires an income of a thousand dollars a year, and Miss Ellis has received pledges which will support it for possibly four months more.

The Nursery at Newton Centre has been running about three years. It had taken and still takes great effort on the part of a devoted few to secure its financial support. It often cares for twenty-three children a day. All the work that this implies, is done by Mrs. Starkey and one very young assistant. This nursery labors under a great disadvantage. It is up-stairs in a building on the corner of two busy streets, and the children can not be let out-of-doors at all. It does seem that public-spirited Newton Centre might secure a better location. At Nonantum, the nursery is on the ground floor, and has a large yard with a tree and a swing, and is to have a sand garden.

In both these nurseries the danger is recognized that such institutions may encourage mothers to go out to work, who would be doing infinitely better for their families by using all their energies inside their homes, but besides that there are many widows supporting families of children, in Newton, the Associated Charities seldom has less than thirty on its list, it is very difficult in these days of high prices, to save enough out of a laboring man's wages, to clothe four or five children, and the mother must supplement the income to some extent. How the children are to be cared for while she is doing it, is a problem to which the Day Nursery has been the only satisfactory answer thus far.

These two Day Nurseries are distinctly Newton charities, and are heartily recommended to the liberality of our citizens by the Associated Charities.

Y. M. C. A.

The Newton Young Men's Christian Association has already started on its fall work. Gymnasium classes are in full swing. The Camera Club has planned for an exhibition to be held the latter part of October. This exhibition will be free to all and is for the purpose of showing the work that is being done by the club. The Chess Club members are also busy securing members to represent the association in the Metropolitan League into which they have been invited. The Sunday afternoon services for boys and young men 12 years of age and over will be resumed next Sunday, October 7th, at 3 P. M. The month of October will be known as "Pastors' month," the speakers for those Sundays being ministers of prominence in this and other cities. Rev. Geo. S. Butters, of the Methodist Episcopal Church of this city, the man who made himself so popular with our younger men last year will open the series with an original story written for the occasion, "Reddy the Left End or a Struggle in Self Control". All will be cordially welcomed at these services, which are short, interesting, and full of enthusiasm. The Bible Clubs will get together for a few minutes on the same day to outline courses, elect officers, etc.

October 17th, will be open night to members and their gentlemen friends. There will be games in the gymnasium and an entertainment in the hall. Next week the full announcement of the program will be given. The great Mock Trial in charge of Col. Newton, of Worcester, will take place Wednesday evening Oct. 31st, in the Eliot Hall. Save the date. There will be fun for all who attend.

Miss Jackson

Miss Caroline Bennett Jackson, daughter of the late William Jackson, passed away Monday at the old Jackson home-stead on Washington street. She was the last of a large family of children and was related to many residents of Newton. Deceased was a native of Boston, where she was born 87 years ago, and during her long residence in Newton she had been active in Eliot church, the Library, where she was an assistant for a number of years, and in many charities. Funeral services were held from the house Wednesday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. Dr. Wolcott Calkins and Rev. Franklin S. Hatch. The Mendelssohn quartet rendered "Rock of Ages," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and "Bethany." There were many relatives and friends present and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The interment was in the family lot in the Centre street burying ground.

Police Paragraphs

John F. Keefe, 17 years old, son of C. W. Keefe of 81 Main st, Watertown, an expressman, was before the police court Monday morning charged with illegal transportation of liquor. He was arrested at Nonantum Saturday night. The case was put over to Saturday to secure more witnesses.

Pasquale Divito, an Italian living at 30 Cook st, Nonantum, was arraigned in court the same morning for alleged in the evening he was arrested for drunk fined $10. He was said to have drawn a razor on the neighbor and an old, dull one was found upon him.

Pulling trolleys off electric cars at Norumbega park Saturday night cost Swan Norden of Auburndale $10. Early in the evening he was arrested for drunkenness but was later released. He then went back to the park, it was asserted in the testimony, and amused himself by pulling the trolleys off the cars.

At a meeting of the Newton branch of the Massachusetts police mutual aid association held at headquarters at West Newton last week patrolmen Charles H. Tainter, R. J. Goode and A. S. Kimball were chosen delegates to the annual meeting at Springfield, Oct. 8.

THE MINISTERS' PLACE AMONG MEN

Sermon by Rev. A. L. Hudson of Channing Church

The Ministers' Place Among Men, the opening address delivered by Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson at the biennial meeting of the Unitarian Ministers of the United States and Canada held at Petersham, Mass., Oct. 1-5 was as follows:

Why is it becoming so difficult to secure active, energetic young men of forceful personality for the work of the protestant ministry? Such young men, for instance, as those who take high rank in other professions, and who in commercial and industrial circles become successful managers of banks, railroads, manufactures and other important interests? Or, to approach the same question from another point of view, why has such a change taken place in the temper of our New England families, in the choice of an occupation for their sons? A generation ago it was the rule for each New England household of any of our Congregational churches, Unitarian or Orthodox, to present one or more of its most stalwart and promising sons for the ministry. Now it is the exception.

If our own denomination only were affected, we might conclude that this reluctance on the part of young men to enter the Unitarian Ministry is due to their unwillingness to risk all the hopes and ambitions of a life time in the service of a small and not rapidly growing body, whose noblest representatives are disestablished in collective gatherings of other Christian people. But the fact is that other protestant churches are feeling the effect of the same adverse discrimination.

In the Hartford Seminary Record for August Dr. English of the Orthodox Congregational church makes a report compiled from the replies of about fifty college and seminary presidents and pastors of that denomination, who were thought to be most conversant with the situation concerning candidates for the ministry. In this report he states: "The students in Congregational Seminaries during the past ten years have increased eighteen per cent, and the theological students coming from Congregational colleges have during this period decreased forty per cent, and from New England colleges fifty-four per cent." Then, adopting another basis of comparison, he adds: "The percentage of theological students to the number of churches has fallen from 12 per cent in 1892 to 68-10 per cent in 1905." Dr. English suggests two principal causes for this evident unattractiveness of the ministry as a calling: First, inadequacy of ministerial incomes; second, loss of prestige and influence of the profession. These are certainly valid considerations for any young man who is contemplating the ministry, no matter how serious his purpose or devoted his aims. But it seems to me that, in so far as these things influence the decision of young men at all they do so only as subordinate factors of a more fundamental objection.

Every man in choosing a career wants to engage in some occupation which is intimately connected with actual life. He wants to be in the push of the stream, instead of paddling about in a side eddy. And just at this point arises the fatal objection to the choice of the ministry,—that it has come to be regarded as somehow unrelated to the main currents of the world's progress. The remark of a business man to an eminent educator, whose son had decided to enter the ministry, is typical. "I supposed," said he, "your son would go in for something real." Now it is quite useless for us, who have already committed ourselves to the ministry to deny the implication contained in this remark. If we are to meet the objection successfully, we must seek out and overcome the underlying causes which create and keep alive this impression of unreality. If we cannot do this then we must sit helplessly by and see our noble profession relegated to the limbo of outgrown things, while its ranks,—so long made up of men as robust mentally and physically as the land produced,—are refilled by mediocre and effeminate apologetes, whose calling has degenerated into that of mere functionaries.

These "underlying causes" are not remote; nor are they difficult to analyze. Many of them are to be found in certain personal limitations which are much too common in our profession—some of them of minor importance, others more serious, but all tending, with cumulative force, to prejudice our standing among men. Let me mention a few of the more obvious of these limitations to be more fully considered later on:

1. A certain aloofness of ministers from other men who are engaged in various kinds of business and professional activity;
2. Little professionalism in speech and dress and manner;
3. Exaggerations in pulpit statements, so habitual as to become unconscious, intended to enforce moral teachings, but in fact creating distrust in the minds of men accustomed to accuracy in statements of fact;

4. Becoming extremists in special reforms, thus putting themselves out of harmony with practical reformers, and losing the confidence of business men;
5. Willingness to become beneficiaries of special privileges which set them in a class apart;
6. A tendency to drop into easy going habits of thought and action, which lessen their energy and arrest their growth.

It would be possible to continue this catalogue of personal limitations; but these will be sufficient for the purposes of this discussion. Moreover no one of them taken by itself, nor the whole of them taken together, reaches the chief point of our difficulty.

The main reason why the work of the ministry seems unreal is that the very thing with which it is chiefly concerned has come to be regarded as comparatively unimportant. A large and growing majority of the people in so-called Christian countries, if we except the communists of Greek and Roman Churches, have ceased to look upon religion as absolutely essential to the individual or collective life. To their minds it may still have its uses, but these uses lie at one side of the large activities which occupy the lives of busy men and women. More than this, in their view, it not only has been thrust aside by the world's work, but it has been left behind by the world's progress. It belongs with the concerns of a past age—an age of individual superstition and ecclesiastical tyranny. In that age the church maintained its supremacy because it was supposed to hold the keys of eternal life with power to bestow immortal joy and immunity from endless suffering. With the passing away of this view religion has become remote from the vital interests of our time, along with alchemy, astrology and other outgrown fancies of the race; the church has become a negligible quantity and the minister merely an eminently respectable functionary who may be called upon at fitting occasions to read the burial or marriage service, comfort the sick and unfortunate and maintain appropriate services in the churches for those who still care to attend them.

Naturally young men hesitate to enter a profession thus handicapped by popular prejudice. At the same time the prevalence of such false and unjust estimate of the minister's place among men should be, to every man in the ranks a challenge to disprove so mistaken an opinion and overcome so unfair a prejudice. But how? What is the remedy for a whole profession thus courtously assigned to the position of respectable onlookers at the world's stage of action? In what way may the minister assert himself and take his rightful place among men?

Manifestly if he is to pluck out the mote of prejudice out of his brother's eye, he must first cast out the beam that is in his own eye. And there is no doubt that the personal limitations peculiar to ministers, which have been already referred to, do much to strengthen and confirm this mistaken view of the pulpit and the church, even though they are not primarily responsible for it. It becomes then our first task to review these with open minded frankness and to look for a fitting remedy. This may not lie in every case with the ministers alone. I have no doubt that in many instances the laymen have contributed to the very causes which have produced their prejudice. But in any event, we must first of all be sensitive to our own short comings and conscious of our need of personal reform.

Take the matter of aloofness of ministers from other men which is one of the more serious limitations. Whose fault is it, and how shall the fault be corrected? In the first place, there is apt to be a radical defect in the minister's education. Almost as a matter of course the theological graduate on taking his first parish, is quite ignorant of the varied practical interests which absorb the time and attention of his laymen; and as the average layman is apt to be about equally ignorant along lines of modern theology, there is at first a gulf between them which is notably well represented by Mark Twain in his effort of Buck Fanchaw's pal, Scotty, to negotiate with the newly arrived divinity student concerning the funeral of his friend. This gulf may be bridged in time, provided the minister is "a good fellow." Good fellowship alone, however, is insufficient. He must recognize the necessity of making a serious effort to comprehend the point of view of laymen and to gain some information concerning the practical interests which occupy all their faculties for six days in the week, and a large share of their thought on the seventh. A minister is apt to hesitate about going to the office or place of business of any of his laymen; and such hesitation is right and prudent. As a rule he should not go without an errand or an invitation, but if he has any tact it ought not to be difficult for him to make an errand or secure an invitation. He may have to overcome a preliminary shade of suspicion that he is going to be a bore; but if he is in reality a good fellow he will be fully compensated by the cordiality which will be extended all the more heartily when he has disproved the suspicion. Having gone thus far it should not be forgotten that the purpose of the visit is the enlightenment, not of the layman but of the minister. The latter should not be led either by his own inclination, or the formal politeness of his host, to talk about religion or the affairs of the parish, except in so far as required to do so by the necessity of some real errand; but should rather lead the layman to instruct him in matters connected with the latter's business which the minister does not understand and of which he should be glad to learn. Wherever time and leisure permit a genuine and unobtrusive interest on the part of a minister is sure to win a hearty response from any of his laymen, and almost without exception the gain to the minister from such a visit is greater than he would get from the same amount of time devoted to the most up-to-date and able treatise on economics, philosophy or ethics. For what he may learn from such a visit is not an isolated set of unrelated facts, but quite the contrary an insight into the common commercial, industrial and financial currents of the life of the time, which will enable him, through first hand information, to correct or supplement the false or incomplete deductions or theories, while at the same time gaining the point of view of practical men who are doing the world's work instead of theorizing about it.

Then, too, as the layman discovers in his minister a genuine interest in the things which constitute so much of his own life, he will take pleasure in discussing with him the plans and problems which most closely concern him, thus bringing the two men into intimate relations of mutual confidence, respect and sympathy. It is a truism, that a house going pastor make church going people; but it is equally true that the minister who shows himself really interested in the affairs of his men, will soon find them ready to stand shoulder to shoulder with him in those things which are supposed to be more especially his concern. They may at first do this merely because they believe in him; but if he is the right sort of a leader, they will soon be taking responsibility in the affairs of the church with the same heartiness, because they believe also in the things for which he stands.

Concerning the second specification, those professional peculiarities in speech and dress and manner common among a certain class of ministers, there is little to say and much to avoid. The clerical garb, the uncouth tone, the use of churchy phrases, the professional manner, which proclaim, in social gatherings, or on the street, "here comes the minister," draws around him an invisible but effectual barrier which hinders mutual understanding and confirms in the mind of everyone who meets him the impression of unreality against which we must strive. The remark of one of our official household a year or two ago, that Unitarian ministers seem to be chiefly occupied for six days in the week in trying to act as if they were not ministers, leads us to hope like the First Player, that "We have reformed that indifferently with us." But the retort of Hamlet still applies: "O, reform it altogether!"

The exaggerations of the pulpit have become proverbial. The reports of sermons in the Monday morning papers afford ample occasion to make the judgments. Has the serving of wine at some private dinner been chronicled in the society columns of the preceding week, then the fashionable women of the metropolis are condemned en masse by some sensational preacher as tipplers, inebriates and thoroughly immoral persons, though the preacher may have no personal knowledge whatever as to the character or habits of a single member of the class he so wantonly attacks. If the playing of bridge at social gatherings has been mentioned in the press, then some pulpit is found denouncing this dragging of young women into the mire of moral degradation by means of this wide spread craze for gambling. Should the sermon theme touch on the distribution of wealth, we are quite sure to find a sweeping statement that all great fortunes have been amassed by methods worse than piracy or highway robbery, and that the possessors of such fortunes are men unworthy to be recognized among decent people. In like manner corporations of all kinds are apt to be described as existing chiefly for the purpose of violating law and perverting justice. Whatever special evil is attacked is usually referred to as increasing every year to a most alarming extent, though well informed and reliable writers may have noted a steady but gradual improvement in that particular line for the past two or three generations. But let us not exaggerate this evil. At its worst it is a weak and senseless striving after sensational effects. At its best it is a mistaken effort at forcible and convincing speech, since, in the very nature of things, among thoughtful people, a guarded statement is more convincing than a reckless one. In any event it is seriously prejudicial to the standing of the pulpit. For although the purpose of the exaggerated statement may be to strengthen the influence of moral verities, its actual effect will be to weaken the influence of the preacher, especially among men who in their own conversation are

Saturday, Oct. 6

Via BOSTON & ALBANY R. R.

Tickets good going Saturdays on regular trains, except No. 10, returning on regular trains to and including the following Monday

3 DAYS' OUTING, $3.40

The time to visit the Berkshires is when the leaves are turning. The foliage is now taking on its richest hues and colors are gorgeous—red, yellow, purple and gold. Greylock, Sugarloaf, and other Berkshire mountains provide inspiring beauties of landscape.

This hill country is famous for its lovely walks and drives, and trolley lines afford easy means of travel through northern and southern Berkshire.

The trip from Boston to Pittsfield over the Boston & Albany R. R. is through the most picturesque section of Massachusetts.

Ere the Berkshires are reached, many beautiful hills, valleys and streams may be seen from the car windows—Mt. Mansfield, Mt. Tom, Mt. Greylock, Mt. Washington, and the Connecticut River at Springfield, the graceful elms of the Westfield meadows, and the winding Westfield River, all add to the delights of the trip.

Special Rates at Berkshire Hotels and Boarding Houses for these excursions. For advertising matter, call on ticket agents, South Station, Trinity Place, City Office, 366 Washington Street.

accustomed to keep their statements of fact carefully within the limits of those things that are personally known to them to be true. It is not sufficient that the minister shall refrain from stating as true that which he knows to be false. A higher standard of accuracy than this may reasonably be expected of him, viz., that he shall never give the sanction of his own statement to any assertion which he does not know to be true of his own personal knowledge; and that he shall not repeat upon information any statement which he has not ample reason to believe to be true, and which he could not verify if challenged. Extreme cases of exaggeration such as I have quoted, substantially from actual reports, are, I believe, exceptional, and confined to preachers who would hardly satisfy any of our committees on fellowship. But when we pass to lesser degrees of exaggeration in the pulpit, I fear, it must be confessed that, with but few exceptions, "the trail of the serpent is over them all." The fact that the pulpits statements of a minister usually pass unchallenged, owing to the time and place of their delivery and the nature of his office, constitutes a temptation and a danger which should be kept in mind whenever he prays for help "to lay aside the sins which so easily beset us."

Every minister who undertakes to discuss matters lying outside the range of his own experience, should heed carefully the advice given by a distinguished lawyer to a beginner who came to him asking the secret of his success. "I will tell you," said the experienced advocate, "in four words: Always verify your references!"

4. Closely allied to the exaggerations of the pulpit and equally prejudicial to its influence, is the tendency to take extreme and untenable positions in matters of special reform. Take by way of illustration two particular social ideals which have been the aim of reform effort throughout the Christian centuries, and, to some extent, long prior to our era—Peace and Temperance. Every right-minded person desires the triumph of both. But when it comes to the method of attainment, there is a wide diversity of opinion among people who are equally sincere, moral and high-minded. Out of this diversity three distinct classes emerge: The laissez faire obstructionist who opposes any interference with the existing order of things; the theoretical idealist who ignores existing conditions and tendencies, and demands that the thing which is ideally perfect shall be adopted as an immediate programme; and the practical reformer who stands for progress toward the ideal just as fast and just as far as the existing status will permit. Over against him stands the inertia of those who wish to retain the present order unchanged, while too often his best efforts are neutralized by the distrust and antagonism of the impractical theorists, who, with their impossible programmes, are continually furnishing arguments to opponents of all reform. Most laymen who are interested at all in ethical progress, belong to this class of practical reformers, while the tendency with ministers who have never come in touch with the practical working out of reform measures, is to range themselves with the theoretical idealists. If peace is desirable they argue, then it is wicked to build warships; and appropriations to maintain a powerful navy are worse than wasteful—they are a menace to the welfare of the country and a reproach to the Christian character of its people. It is vain, that practical reformers call attention to the fact that the position of our country as a naval power enabled its president a year ago to bring pressure to bear upon the belligerents in the most destructive war in the history of the world, and helped secure an honorable peace on the eve of a gigantic battle; that the same influence is even now bringing about more peaceful and friendly relations among fretful and warlike South American countries; and especially that the one man who stands most prominent today in the world's regard as a promoter of peace, is the man who publicly advocates the policy of carrying a big stick as an aid to the persuasiveness of gentle speech. All these things pass for nothing in the presence of their demand that those in authority shall act as if universal peace were a present reality.

In like manner in dealing with the subject of temperance, since drunkenness is recognized as an evil they conclude that all moral people should be earnest advocates of prohibition, notwithstanding the fact that abundant evidence can be produced of the failure of this method of dealing with the problem in most cities and larger towns. It is not because these men are bigoted or Pharisaical that they hold these extreme positions. Some of them may be such; but those who best represent the type are men of pure and lofty motives, sweet and noble in character, most inspiring and helpful in personal and pastoral relations; but they have never learned to adjust their ideals to actual conditions nor to realize that a compromise which falls far short of their ultimate aim may be the best programme for today. Hence, without at all intending it, they help to emphasize the fatal impression of the unreality of our profession.

I approach with some hesitation the most delicate phase of the limitations of ministers, their willingness to become the beneficiaries of special privileges as such. Too often, I fear, it begins in the

Divinity School, owing to the mistaken kindness which has found expression in the form of aid for worthy young men preparing for the ministry. It would be far better in most cases for the young man to take more time and pay his way; the loss of time being more than compensated by the independence acquired, as well as the practical knowledge gained. The evil effects of this kind of a start for the ministry, are well set out by J. C. Holland in his description of the character of Peter Mullens, an extreme illustration of the type. Having as he supposed, says Dr. Holland, "given himself up to the Church he was always looking for gifts. No gifts humiliated him. He lived by them; and his willing dependence on others had robbed him of the one thing which could make him of any use to the church—his manhood." This disposition to receive gifts which are bestowed merely because he is a minister, and not in the ordinary way of personal friendship becomes worse as he enters the active ministry; because it places him in an attitude toward other men, which differs chiefly in degree from that of the Mendicant Friars. But worst of all is our position when, in sickness or old age, we are forced to become beneficiaries of some fund, however designated, which is charitably provided for "Ministerial Relief." I am compelled to admit that such provision is a present necessity, and that we all have a weather eye on that fund which President Eliot is so thoughtfully fostering, and feel a gratifying sense of security with each new bequest. But let us frankly acknowledge that, in principle such a fund is as absurd as would be a similar provision for infirm and indigent lawyers, decrepit and destitute doctors, or worn out and broken down statesmen. If the minister is to stand on the same self-respecting basis as men in other professions, then he must have the same opportunity for independent self-support.

This involves two questions: adequacy of income, and the age limit. I do not believe, with Dr. English, that men are deterred from entering the ministry by fear of being underpaid, not because they do not consider the financial side of life; for such a claim would be prompted either by folly or affectation. But every vigorous young man feels confident of his ability to take care of himself and those dependent upon him, wherever you may put him, and doesn't ask to be guaranteed an income in advance. But the humiliating spectacle of seeing members of the profession he is about to enter, or their widows and orphans, made objects of charity, may well give pause to any high spirited young man.

If ministers are to give their time to the demands of their profession, and rely upon it for support, then their salaries should be sufficient to support their families in a manner suitable to their surroundings, and still leave a margin for investment to meet those contingencies which it is the duty of every man to provide for. I wish to emphasize this feature of annual saving and investment; for I believe there exists an absurd and illogical prejudice against it among both ministers and laity—a feeling that is somehow worldly and unworthy for a minister to save up any portion of his salary to provide for future needs. Now in our best philanthropy we are trying to educate the lower classes to refuse aid as far as possible, and to bend every energy to become self-supporting. Why then should it seem commendable that ministers pursue a policy that is certain to make them and their families at some time and in some form dependent on the charity of the inclined, unless it happens that the minister has a source of income outside of his profession? Save in the case of such fortunate but very exceptional person it is the duty of every minister as a good citizen to make provision for the future needs of himself and family, and equally the duty of his parish to make it possible for him to do so. Thus only may we hope to maintain our standing among men.

It remains to consider the age limit as affecting the earning capacity of the minister. There is a popular tradition that at the age of fifty the minister encounters a "dead line" beyond which the experienced man stands at a disadvantage in competition with inexperienced youth. But at fifty, men in other walks of life are just beginning to realize the results of their previous efforts. The lawyer, the doctor, the writer, the statesman, the banker, the manufacturer and the merchant have just reached the period when their judgments are soundest, their achievements most excellent, and their opinions and services most eagerly sought for. It would seem a strange anomaly if ministers alone become useless at an age when other men are just arriving at their best. Manifestly there is some misapprehension which may be corrected by considering this phase of the subject in connection with the tendency of ministers to fall into easy-going habits of thought and action. The fact that a minister is left to decide what use he shall make of each particular day and hour out of a large range of legitimate duties, conditioned only by the Sunday service and the occasional function, presents a constant temptation to choose, perhaps unconsciously, the thing which is most congenial. And since his training has been so largely along the line of reading and study, his choice is apt to take the form of gratifying his delight in books to the exclusion, or at least the partial neglect of other interests which should command the liveliest exercise of his energies. This temptation is rendered all the more dangerous because it is so easy to justify himself on the ground of the necessity of keeping his mind in touch with the thought of the time, while overlooking the equal necessity of keeping his sympathies in touch with the life of the time. To be of service the minister must be a growing man, alert and sensitive to all that interests humanity, keeping alive the enthusiasm and the constructive imagination which lend ardor to youth, while gaining all the time in breadth and maturity of judgment. If he fails entirely to do these things he may well become useless at fifty or even sooner, just as a doctor or a lawyer would become useless to his patients or clients who should lose touch with the world's progress as affecting his profession or just as the merchant would fail who undertook to carry on his business by methods in vogue even twenty years ago.

In any occupation a man ceases to be useful when he ceases to grow. And in so far as ministers have neglected this obvious principle, a preference on the part of the parishes for young men indicates nothing more serious than the triumph of hope over experience, which sees in every new and untried preacher a possible realization of the pulpit's need for vigorous and progressive men.

On the other hand there are not lacking notable instances among us of men whose usefulness has increased as their age advanced and who have rendered their most valuable service long past fifty or sixty or even the biblical limit of "three score years and ten." There is no need to mention the name of one who, when well past four score, remains in active service, occupying most acceptably the position of chaplain of the leading legislative body in the land, while at the same time responding to constant demands for lectures and sermons and literary work. A delighted thrill of active, glowing human interest is stirred by the thought of another of our ministers, who at the same advanced age, after a life singularly rich and happy in the service of humanity, and still retaining the vigor of a robust manhood, is at present in sole charge of the most important church in our denomination. Other instances, hardly less striking might easily be mentioned—all tending to illustrate the same reassuring fact, that there is no dead line for a live man.

In general, as applying to the limitations of the clergy, I believe the standing and prestige of our profession would be greatly enhanced by a serious effort on our part to follow both the precept and example of the president of our nation in his well known theory of life, of which he says: "I wish to preach, not the doctrine of ignoble ease, but the doctrine of the strenuous life."

Turning to the more serious difficulty which confronts us, the indifference of the modern world to religion itself, we find that the pulpit has always commanded attention and respect when it has spoken with authority. True this authority in the past has been based upon false assumptions, which have been thoroughly disproved by the advance of modern thought. And since the apologists for these false assumptions insisted upon identifying them with religion, it is not surprising that indiscriminating minds should accept the logical conclusion that religion itself has been discredited.

But religion is the fundamental unity which binds all life in one with the Universal. It is founded on eternal Truth and must survive all mistakes and changes in the doctrines put forth in its name. It is a vital principle growing and expanding in the soil of human need, and in the atmosphere of moral progress, and its function is the sympathetic service of mankind in all the processes of its upward growth. It cannot be discredited by advancing thought, for it is itself the very heart of evolution. Its need is greatest in an age of greatest progress, and its authority should not be less but more, because it appeals to the enlightened reason, rather than to the lower faculties of fear and superstition. Never before has there been such an opportunity as that which belongs of right to the prophet of the new faith to speak with the note of clear and positive authority when he proclaims the laws of the living God as the controlling sanction of the moral order. But he must recognize the fact that this is no time for feeble apologies or the presentation of religion as a tentative philosophy of life. He must be the exponent of a living creed, one who has realized, in his own experience, the vitalizing power of rational religion, and has comprehended in his contact with the world, the universal need of such religion as the only adequate solution of the complicated problems of the time.

It is too much then to expect, that with renewed courage and larger comprehension of our responsibility, we may restore our noble profession to its honorable place and ancient prestige; that the pulpit of the future may again attract to itself strong men, filled with a passion for righteousness; and that when new truth breaks forth it will be given from that pulpit with logic more compelling than ecclesiastical authority, a persuasion more convincing than creeds, and a fraternalism so fine and high that men may comprehend their kinship to one another and their dependence upon almighty God?

McManus Named

Representative Edward L. McManus of Natick was nominated last Monday afternoon for senator from the first Middlesex district at the Republican convention held in the Newton clubhouse. The full number of delegates, 49, were present and Mr. W. F. Kingsbury of Holliston was chairman and Alderman Albert P. Carter of Newton was secretary. The delegates were called to meet at three o'clock but on account of an error in the time set in the Natick credentials it was necessary to adjourn until 3.30. The committee on Credentials first reported 48 present and at the suggestion of Mr. Bancroft of Natick the Chair asked if any delegate had omitted to send in his credential. There was a hearty laugh when Mr. Bancroft proved to be the person who had the missing credential.

Before coming down to the important business of the day, a district committee consisting of the chairman of the town committees, the chairman of the city committee of Newton, the chairman of the senior citizens committee of Newton and the member of the state committee from this district were elected a district committee for 1907. Mr. William M. Flanders was elected a member of the state committee by acclamation. The district committee was given authority to fill a vacancy in the nomination made by the convention.

With this minor business out of the way, the ground was cleared for action. Mr. Cutter of Ashland then nominated Mr. George L. Hemmingsway of Hopkinton, saying in part—The towns of Natick, Watertown and the city of Newton have had the senatorship for the past 9 years. We of the western end of the "desert" have stood by your nominee loyally, particularly by Judge Dana. We have been told that when it was our turn we should receive loyal support in turn. Natick has had during the past 9 years, a senator and district attorney, and has now the County commissioner and a member of Congress. She has had all she is entitled to. Framingham ought to have the nomination this year, but objections have been made to the man whom Framingham desires. We who live in neighboring towns and who know him have no such objections. We believe in him and trust him. But Mr. McPherson, knowing these objections has stepped aside, and has now withdrawn from this contest in favor of Hopkinton and we now come asking the nomination of Judge George L. Hemmingsway of Hopkinton, with the united support of all the towns west of Natick with one exception. Mr. Cutter then pleaded with the delegates to use the Golden Rule and to do unto others, politically, what they would like to have done unto them.

Mr. Cutter's speech was well received; it was clear, concise, and directly to the point. Mr. Charles Bancroft of Natick then nominated Mr. McManus in a rambling and tiresome speech, in which he had the bad taste to ridicule Mr. Hemmingsway and Hopkinton. He said that his candidate had had an active, varied and energetic experience as a lawyer and knew the needs of the district. He was not a paragon; he was human. A good lawyer, and excellent legislator and well thought of in his own town. He represented a class which Republicans must recognize if we intend to control the state and nation. And it was only right and fair to accord a nomination to a man of this class. The ballot was then taken and Mr. McManus received 35 votes and Mr. Hemmingsway, 14. Mr. McManus was then escorted to the hall and accepted the nomination saying in part, in an eloquent speech, that he did not consider this a personal victory, but a victory for the principles for which he had been contending since he was 18 years of age. He believed that the Republican party knew neither, race nor creed but welcomed all who supported American institutions. He referred to Judge Dana as "an ideal legislator" and said that while he could not expect to attain his high standard he would serve so that he could return the flag at the end of his term, unsullied and unstained. He would so conduct himself as not to cause you to blush for shame and would win your respect and esteem.

Following adjournment, the delegates were given a lunch by Mr. McManus.

Renominated

At the Republican congressional convention for the twelfth district last Saturday noon at Wesleyan Hall, Boston, Congressman John W. Weeks of Newton was unanimously renominated by acclamation. Mr. Seward W. Jones of Newton called the convention to order and the Newton members of the district committee later elected were Messrs. Frederick Johnson, William F. Garcelon, Seward F. Jones and Charles E. Hatfield.

Captain Weeks was nominated by ex-alderman George Hutchinson, who has had the honor of naming Mr. Weeks for every political office he has filled. Mr. Hutchinson spoke as follows:—Mr. Chairman and Delegates, With entire confidence I ask you to unanimously re-nominate as Representative to Congress from the Twelfth District the Hon. John W. Weeks of Newton.

It is not necessary that I be otherwise than prudent in my praise, for you all know as I know that we would be equally justified in nominating this candidate for any office within the gift of the voters of this commonwealth, or of this nation.

His constituents may expect from him all that they have any right, or reason, to expect from any man and then expect still more and he will fully meet and satisfy their most exacting demands.

But with this nomination we accomplish far more than the satisfying of our pride, or the securing of a representative of exceptional ability and reputation. By this example we help to hasten the time when the sacrifice of personal comfort on the part of a candidate, and grateful recognition on the part of a constituency, shall elevate the entire public service to the magnitude and glory of genuine patriotism.

Hon. John W. Weeks, while we officially nominate him with our voices, our votes and our applause, we at the same time as instinctively, and as earnestly, express our personal affection and esteem.

Captain Weeks was escorted to the hall and made a brief speech of acceptance.

The delegates were then given a lunch at Young's hotel as the guests of the Congressman.

BUZZARD'S BAY MANSION AT A HIGH FIGURE

John Q. A. Whittemore of Washington St., Newton, Buys Albert L. Dorr Place

One of the most important sales closed in Buzzards Bay for many years is the transfer of the Allerton L. Dorr estate, situated in the easterly part of Wareham, near Buzzards Bay station. The property was purchased by John Quincy Adams Whittemore, and while the price paid is not made public the reported consideration is $135,000.

The grantor of the property is a well-known clubman. The estate is known as "The Moorings" and comprises about 50 acres of fine land, having more than a mile of frontage on the sea, with handsome macadamized drive running from the state highway to the house.

It is said by those who are in a position to know that this is the record sale on Buzzards Bay, even exceeding the price for which the Nickerson property of 1000 acres was sold. The situation is a magnificent one, being near the handsome Cleveland, Williams, Hunnewell, Parkinson and other fine estates.

The buildings are spacious, there being a mansion house superbly decorated and containing every known modern convenience for a high-class estate. Another important feature in connection with the property is that the former owner had a large hangar in keeping with the mansion. The stables are luxuriously appointed, as are the extensive greenhouses. There is a large billiard hall and many other features which go to make up a high-class residence.

No pains or expense had been spared in making "The Moorings" a delightful summer home, Mr. Dorr having expended thousands of dollars in beautifying the grounds, which contained rare shrubs and trees, thus giving a very pleasing effect to the entire surroundings.

The broker in the sale was Horace S. Crowell, and to him falls the distinction of making the largest sale of real estate closed on Buzzards Bay.

Aged Woman Dead

Mrs. Jane Parker Kendrick, the widow of Humphrey P. Kendrick, died in Newtonville, October 4, 1906. She was born in Hollis, Me., February 2, 1814, and was nearly 93 years of age. Her parents were Solomon and Rhoda C. McKenney and of the fourteen children of this family she is survived by one, Mrs. Nancy Hodgson of Saco, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendrick had a family of eight children, Frank A., who died in the war of the Rebellion; Susan, who died in infancy; Nancy, who is Mrs. W. W. Nitcher, Ellingham, Ill.; John W., who died at Averna, Ill., March 1880; Clara, now Mrs. C. K. Blaisdell, Billerica, Mass.; Marcella, now Mrs. Alfred Pierce, Newtonville, Mass.; Clementine, now Mrs. Henry Burnes, Saco; Humphrey B. Kendrick, at present of Boston, Mass.

For 74 years Mrs. Kendrick was a constant member of the Saco Methodist church and with her husband helped to establish it.

The funeral services were held last Saturday afternoon at the Laurel Hill chapel, Saco, Me., Rev. Walter Canham, pastor of the School Street Methodist church, officiating. There was singing by Mrs. James H. Fenderson and her son, James Fenderson. The bearers were Charles Gilpatrick, David Buck, Charles Sands and Addison Goudy.

Lane-Pike

Under an arch of woodbine decorated with white carnations, Miss Ethel James Pike of Merrimac, Mass., became the bride of Mr. Rollo E. Lane of Eliot, this city. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride in Merrimac last week Thursday evening at 6.30 o'clock.

The bride was dressed in white silk cut in princess style and was accompanied by Miss Blanche Fullington of Merrimac as maid of honor and Bernice W. Judkins as ring bearer. Mr. Nat Edmonds of Chichester, N. H., was the best man and Messrs. Stanley and John F. Judkins of Merrimac were the ushers. A reception followed the ceremony.

About Town

The first meeting of the season of the Unitarian Club will be held Thursday evening, Oct. 18, in the main auditorium of Channing church. Supper will be served to the members at 6.30 in the banquet hall and at 8 o'clock addresses will be made on the subject, "Church and State," by Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, D. D., Hon. John D. Long and Hon. John W. Weeks. The public are invited.

Assistant Adjutant General Wilfred A. Wetherbee of the State G. A. R. was visited at department headquarters Saturday by a committee representing those who went to the National encampment on the headquarters train and was presented with a handsome diamond Masonic past master's jewel watch charm as a token of appreciation of his labors for their pleasure and comfort during the trip.

The new auxiliary of the Carpenter's District Council of Newton, Waltham, and vicinity, organized last week with thirty members. The officers chosen are as follows: President, Mrs. H. R. Robblee; vice president, Mrs. William Purdy; recording secretary, Mrs. Walter McPherson; financial secretary, Mrs. Joseph Dicks; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Ellice; conductor, Mrs. William W. Jonah; warden, Mrs. J. H. Johnson.

Football

Newton high and Volkmann played an exciting contest in which neither team was able to score on the old Newton A. A. grounds Friday afternoon before one of the largest crowds of spectators which has assembled on the grounds in many months.

The Volkmann lined up a little heavier than the Newton players, but the contest was close throughout both periods and the aggregations were very evenly matched. Twice Porter, Newton's right half back, got within striking distance of the goal. In the first period he tried a drop kick from the 25 yard line and missed by only a few inches. In the second period he tried the same play from the 20 yard line and again slightly missed.

During the game two candidates for membership in the P. B., one of the school fraternities, were put through initiation stunts and made to deliver political speeches, much to the amusement of many of the spectators.

—Rev. Dr. Robert W. McLaughlin, who was in charge of the services at the Congregational church last Sunday, gave an intensely interesting address at the missionary conference in the evening on his "Impressions as a pastor in the Home Missionary Fields of the Interior." Dr. McLaughlin is now pastor of one of the leading churches in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and is the nephew of R. R. Meredith, who for so many years conducted the Saturday afternoon Bible class.

Hanson-Swett

A wedding of considerable interest to friends was that of Mr. William Hanson of Faxon street and Miss Madeline Ida Swett of Watertown. The ceremony took place Thursday afternoon of last week at the residence of the officiating clergyman, Rev. Frederick M. Brooks, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd. The groom has been for a number of years a member of Grace church choir, the Newton Y. M. C. A., Newton Ward and City Committee and holds a position in the office of the Union Bank & Trust Co. On their return from a wedding trip to New Brunswick, Mr. and Mrs. Hanson will make their home at 29 Faxon street.

Examination for Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

There will be an examination in Room One, Newton High School Building, Newtonville, on the afternoon of November 9th and the forenoon of November 10th for the purpose of securing a candidate for nomination to fill the vacancy now existing at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., from the Twelfth Congressional District.

The examination will be adapted to those who have completed the first year in any good High School and will be upon the following subjects:—English, Geography, History of the United States, Arithmetic and Algebra through Simple Equations. There will also be a physical examination.

All who wish to enter this competition should be at the Newton High School Building, Room One, as early as 1.45 P. M. on Friday, November 9.

From the four highest on the list a Principal and three Alternates will be named for final examination, which may be taken at Boston or Annapolis in April or at Annapolis only in June next.

The preliminary examination, on November 9 and 10, is open to all young men resident in the District who, at the time of the final examination in April or June, will be between the ages of sixteen and twenty. The law on this point is that "a candidate is eligible for examination on the day he becomes sixteen and is ineligible on the day he becomes twenty years of age."

For further information application should be made to Hon. John W. Weeks, Representative in Congress from this District, who may be addressed at his office, No. 53 State St., Boston.

Locke-Parker

At the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Parker in West Newton last Saturday noon their older daughter, Miss Josephine Miriam Parker was married to Mr. Horace Edward Locke of Cambridge. The ceremony was out of doors and was performed by Rev. Edward Abbott, D. D., rector Emeritus of St. James Episcopal church, Cambridge.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Edith Parker, and the best man was Mr. Horatio L. Baker of Troy, N. Y., a cousin of the bridegroom. Mr. and Mrs. Locke will spend their honeymoon in Canada and on their return will reside on Haskell street, Cambridge.

Reduced Rates

Patrons of the Boston & Albany Railroad will be interested to learn that the new tariff to go into effect November first will establish the two cents per mile principle. The new rates to the more important points from Boston are as follows:—

To Albany, $4, instead of $4.50; to Springfield, $3.05 instead of $3.40; to Worcester, $2 instead of $2.25 and to Worcester 90 cents instead of $1.00. No change has been made in the rates from the Newton stations.

The renomination of Governor Guild and of the entire republican state ticket will again give the best citizens of Massachusetts an opportunity to continue a high grade of men in official power in this Commonwealth. The state needs men who will protect the community by upholding its courts, not by opening its jails: by appointments for the good of the service, not for the good of the party, and by standing loyally by the honor of this old Commonwealth, not by holding her up to ridicule. We believe the voters of Massachusetts will heartily support "the man who does" rather than "the man who dares."

The renomination of Congressman Weeks has been a certainty since he took his seat in the 59th Congress last December. Massachusetts needs men of Captain Weeks' calibre in the national house, to urge legislation for Massachusetts' interest thru party action. Men, who while members of the republican party, are yet broad enough to take an independent stand when the situation arises.

The republicans of Newton lost a splendid opportunity last Monday at the senatorial convention to heal over the political sore which has existed between Newton and the western end of the district for many years.

Kenway--Tucker

Miss Elsie Vose Tucker, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W.
Tucker of Newton was married at her home on Church street last Wednesday night to Mr. Herbert W. Kenway of Washington, D. C., the son of Mrs. H.
P. Kenway of Fairmont avenue, Newton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wolcott Calkins of Newton in the presence of the relatives and intimate friends. The bride wore a wedding gown of white chiffon cord with duchesse lace trimmings. She was accompanied by Miss Ruth Jennison of Cambridge as maid of honor, and Miss Edna Blake, Mrs. M. C. Freeman of Malden, Miss Ethel Bourne of Chelsea and the Misses Florence Harding, Florence Kenway and Rosalind Kenway of Newton as ribbon girls. The ushers were Messrs. Robert H. W. Lord and George C.
Agry of Newton. A reception was held immediately after the ceremony.
Mr. and Mrs. Kenway being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Tucker and Mrs. Herbert P. Kenway. Mr. and Mrs. Kenway will reside at Washington, D. C., where they will be at home after December 1st.

O'Halloran--Claffey

The wedding of a well-known Newton man and a Chelsea young woman took place in Chelsea, Wednesday evening, when Miss Mary A. Claffey of that city became the bride of Patrolman Edward P. O'Halloran of the Newton police department.

In the presence of a few immediate friends the ceremony was performed at the parochial residence of St. Rose church by Rev. Henry T. Grady. The best man was Patrolman James B. Dugan of this city and the maid of honor was Miss Frances E. McDonough of Woburn.

There was a reception immediately after the ceremony at the home of Mr.
Patrick A. Claffey, a brother of the bride. During the evening Mr. and Mrs.
O'Halloran received about 300 guests.
Upon their return from a trip to Washington the couple will make their home at 28 Clinton street, this city, where they will be at home to their friends after Dec. 1.

Whitehill--Johnson

The beautiful new Unitarian church at West Newton was again the scene of a brilliant wedding last Wednesday evening, when Miss Lucia Osgood Johnson of Mt. Vernon street, West Newton, plighted her troth with Dr. Robert Whitehill of Cambridge. The church was decorated with palms and ferns, and completely filled with the relatives and friends of the bride and groom.

The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by the pastor of the church, Rev.
Julian C. Jaynes, assisted by the father of the groom, Rev. John Whitehill of North Attleboro.
The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white messaline, princess lace and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was accompanied by Miss Melita Crawley of Brookline as maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth W. Johnson, the bride's sister, and Miss Bernice Leach of Newton Centre, as bridesmaids, dressed in white dotted net over yellow liberty satin, and Miss Elizabeth G. Whitehill of North Attleboro as the flower girl. The best man was Dr. Walter A. Davis of Boston, and the ushers were Messrs. Daniel A.
Johnson of Plymouth, Parker L. Johnson of South Ste Marie, Mich., Dr.
Charles G. Pike and Dr. Norman G.
Reach of Boston, Dr. Rufus H. Gould of Worcester and Howard K. Alden of Cambridge.

CAPT. AND MRS. E. M. CROCKFORD.
Fifty Years Wedded.

At the Malden Y. M. C. A. rooms last evening, Capt. and Mrs. Edmund M.
Crockford celebrated their golden wedding. Capt. Crockford will be remembered as a well known former Newton resident. The event was observed by a reception and entertainment attended by over 100 friends including many of the prominent Malden citizens. The rooms were attractively decorated with flags and flowers. At eight o'clock a musical and literary program was given in which the Misses Florence, Ivy, Lucy and Gladys Crockford, Margie Bates, Grace Goodwin, Mildred McCormick, and Miss Malcolm took part.

Capt. Crockford was a native of Som-ershire, England, where he was born in 1834. He followed the sea for some 18 years as a young man and obtained the title of captain. Coming to the United States in 1882 he first settled in Waterloo, N. Y., and has resided in several places in New York state and in Massachusetts, including a stay of seven years in Newton. He is now in charge of the Malden Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Crockford was Miss Charlotte Rowe before her marriage and is also a native of England, where her marriage to Capt. Crockford took place fifty years ago. Capt. and Mrs. Crockford have five living children, Charles Crockford of Newton, George Crockford of Ames-bury, and Edmund and John and Miss Bessie Crockford of Malden.

Dedication Services

The beautiful new church of the West Newton Unitarian Society will be formally dedicated next Sunday evening at 7.30 P. M. A distinguished array of Unitarian clergymen will assist Rev.
Mr. Jaynes in the services, including Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, D. D., President American Unitarian Association, Rev.
Francis G. Peabody, D. D., of Harvard University, Rev. Francis Tiffany, Rev.
Adelbert L. Hudson and Rev. Alfred H.
Brown.

Mrs. Healey Dead

Mrs. Catherine Healey, who was injured at the Newtonville station last Friday morning by being struck by a train, died at the Newton hospital in the afternoon. She had suffered from a broken arm, two broken ribs, a fracture of the pelvis, a terrible cut on the head, and scores of bruises. Mrs. Healey is survived by four sons and two daughters. Requiem high mass was celebrated at the Church of Our Lady Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. James F.
Kelley, officiating, and there were many relatives and friends present. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.
The interment was in Calvary cemetery, Waltham.

A Narrow Escape

Edward Eggleston of Chapel street, employed at the Silver Lake Cordage mill had a narrow escape last Saturday noon. While repairing some overhead machinery, his overalls caught in a set screw and pulled him against a rapidly revolving pulley, with which his left arm came in contact. His cry for help was heard by Miss Nellie Bryson, who tried to cut the cloth with scissors which were dull. Failing to make any impression on the overalls, Miss Bryson jumped to the floor and pushed the emergency button to stop the machinery.
Eggleston was taken down considerably cut and bruised and Miss Bryson received much praise for her timely action.

High School Notes

On last Friday the football team played a 0 to 0 game with Volkman. The game was hard fought all the way through. Tuesday the strong Hyde Park team went down to defeat at the tune of 11 to 0, before our band of players. The features of the game was Donahue's quarter-back kicks for Newton, which proved consistent ground gainers.
The new members were initiated into the P. B., one of our secret societies, last week. The initiation afforded much amusement to the spectators, but not, however, to the ones who were performing the stunts.

There are prospects for a school choir this year. It will be the first one for a number of years.
Last Saturday there was a tennis tournament for the boys at the Neighborhood Club, West Newton. Edward Woods, Lovett Hall and Horace Kendall were the winners. The girls will have a tournament October 17.
Bishop Lawrence will speak to the school next Wednesday morning in the assembly hall.

At a meeting of the Junior Class on Tuesday, Carl Holbrook was elected president, Elinore Johnson, vice president, Clarence Stewart, treasurer, and Gwendolen Lowe, secretary.

Unitarian Club

The first meeting of the Unitarian Club of Newton for the season will be held in Channing church and parlors next Thursday evening. There will be a reception and dinner at 6.30 o'clock for the members followed at 7.30 by an organ recital in the main auditorium and at 8 o'clock by addresses on "The Church and the State" by Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, D. D., Hon. John W. Weeks and Hon. John D. Long. The public are cordially invited to attend the recital and hear the addresses.

The Travellers' Club

The Travellers Club will hold its first meeting for the season, Monday, October 15th at the residence of Mrs. Albert D. Auryansen on Jenison street. Lunch will be served at 1.30. The topics for the year will be Norway and Sweden and the program Monday will be as follows: "The Vikings," by Mrs. A. D.
Auryansen; "The Sages," by Mrs. G. W.
Auryansen; Reading by Mrs. D. S.
Blampied. At the annual meeting held recently the following officers were chosen for the coming year: President, Mrs. F. W. Chase; secretary, Mrs. G. C.
Clark; topic committee, Mrs. G. H. Wilkins, Mrs. D. S. Blampied, Mrs. C. C.
Clark; critic, Mrs. E. S. Nagle. Club meetings are held alternating Monday afternoons from October to May.

C. E. CONVENTION TO BE WELCOMED

Worcester will Greet Christian Endeavorers Oct. 25-29

Worcester people of all Protestant denominations will throw wide open their doors to welcome the thousands of Christian Endeavorers who will visit the heart of the Commonwealth on the occasion of the annual state convention of Christian Endeavor, which is announced to take place in this city Oct. 25-29, inclusive.

Plans are being made for the biggest convention in the history of Christian Endeavor in the old Bay State, and it will not be the fault of the Worcester phalanx which is arranging the details, if that is not the case. For weeks and months committees have been arranging the spiritual and physical, the educational and recreation diet upon which the Endeavorers will dine while they are under the hospitable roofs of the Worcester hosts, and no expense, no amount of energy, have been spared in elaborate efforts to bring about a grand climax to the many great conventions which the Endeavorers have taken part in during the last quarter of a century in the State of Massachusetts.

There are several strong features in connection with this convention, which will make "Worcester '06" the mecca for all Endeavorers throughout the state. First and foremost is the most attractive program which has been arranged. Then there are the equally attractive features in this city of churches, the fact that it is the heart of the Commonwealth, consequently second to none as a convention city for accessibility from all points of the compass, the well-known hospitality of its people, and the ample accommodations for the biggest meetings.

The royal blood of the Endeavor movement, which pulsates through the heart of the Commonwealth, reaches through its many arteries into the most widely settled section of the state. Transportation is rapid and sure, and the accommodation is limited only by the royal fellowship and friendship of the people.

The speakers for such a convention are always a strong feature, and this is no exception in the case of Worcester. Gov. Curtis heads the list, among the most prominent of the orators, Rev. Dr. W. H. P. Faunce, president of Brown university, himself a Worcester boy, is on the program. Among others who will speak and take part are: John T. Duggan, who, though a Catholic in creed, is sufficiently broad in his catholicity to extend a warm welcome to the delegates to Worcester; President George E. Copeland of the State Christian Endeavor, another Worcester boy who has attained the pinnacle of fame in state Christian Endeavor work; Rev. J. A. Francis of the New York State Baptist association; Rev. Dr. Andrew Burns Chalmers, pastor of Plymouth church, Worcester; Rev. Clifton H. Mix, Pilgrim church, Worcester; Rev. Dr. A. Z. Conrad, Park Street church, Boston; Rev. A. E. Harriman, of Lynn; Rev. Dr. L. C. Barnes, First Baptist church, Worcester; Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, Boston, father of the Christian Endeavor movement; Rev. G. W. Walden, president of the Australia Christian Endeavor union; Rev. J. H. Denison, Boston; Rev. George E. Kungott, Lowell; Rev. F. P. Haggard, Boston; Rev. Dr. John F. Gennep, Amherst college; General Secretary Von Ogden Vogt, Boston; Rev. H. A. Manchester, East Boston; Rev. Hiram Conway, John Street Baptist church, Worcester; Rev. Carl Stackman, from South Africa; Rev. J. Spencer Voorhees, of Adams; Rev. Me-Leod Harvey, First Presbyterian church, Worcester; Rev. Asher Anderson, Boston, secretary of the American Missionary association; Rev. Dr. Samuel L. Dick, Trinity Methodist church, Worcester; Rev. W. W. Weeks, of Springfield; Mrs. Carrie Wentworth Kincaid, Worcester; Rev. Dr. E. P. Drew, Old South church; Rev. Dr. William T. McElveen, Boston; Congressman Rockwood Hoar, Speaker John N. Cole of the Massachusetts House of Representatives; Fred L. Willis, general secretary of the W. C. A.; Miss Emma Ostrom Nichols, East Lexington.

This is the first time in the history of Massachusetts Christian Endeavor when the convention will last over four days. The program will begin each day with a quiet hour from 8.30 till 9.30 a. m., conference from 10 a. m. till noon; public services at 2.30 and 7.30 p. m.

The great public meetings are to be held in Mechanics hall, the largest auditorium in the city, capable of seating 2000 persons, and the conferences will be in the churches. On Sunday there will be a meeting for women in Mechanics hall, and one for men in the Franklin Square theatre, while the Endeavorers of Boston will conduct open air services on the common. Sunday evening the delegates will attend services in the various churches, after which there will be a grand farewell rally in Mechanics hall, beginning at 8.15 p. m.

A specially attractive service has been arranged for the Juniors. It will be in charge of Mrs. Carrie Wentworth Kincaid, assisted by Mrs. L. A. Spalding. This exercise will consist of a display of the principles of the Junior Endeavor department, with the successive steps to the senior division and up into the church, all of which will be seen in the building of a bridge on the platform of Mechanics hall. It will be of wood and cardboard, and after it is all erected the Juniors will walk over it. Every plank, the stones, lamps and flags of the bridge will have an emblematic song or story in connection with them, and these will be repeated by the children.

The convention sessions at the open-air will be presided over at the open-air by George E. Copeland of Worcester and the vice-presidents will preside at the other sessions.

The assignment of the delegates to their places of entertainment will be made in Washburn hall, underneath Mechanics hall, and that will be done by an efficient corps of attendants as soon as the delegates arrive and register. They will then be furnished with the official program and badges. The first session of the convention takes place on the afternoon of Oct. 25 in Mechanics hall.

Elaborate arrangements have been made for the musical exercises at the convention. There will be under the direct charge of J. Vernon Butler of Pilgrim church, and he will be assisted by Dana J. Pratt, Milton C. Synder and H. G. Harris. Four choruses under the direction of these leaders will be rehearsing the same anthems, and the C. E. chorus of 300 voices will sing selections from the new C. E. hymnal.

The entertainment of the hundreds of delegates is in good hands. They will be furnished sleeping accommodations and breakfasts, while dinners and suppers will be purveyed in the churches on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. On Thursday night a banquet will be given to the State, County and Local union officers. Friday evening a Junior tea is arranged for at the Old South church and junior superintendents and workers of the state are invited.

The convention is financed by a committee which is now arranging for the sale of shares at a dime per share, and in this way it is hoped to raise some $800 or $1000, which is all that will be required to pay the expenses.

The state motto is "Unity and Evangelism."

The Boston & Albany, New York, New Haven and Hartford, and the Boston and Maine railroads have issued excursion fares from all points in the state for the convention.

A strong reception committee, under the direction of Louis Warren, will meet each train on arrival to care for the delegates. The hotels of the city, which are ample for all demands, have made rates for room and board at from $1.50 to $3 per day.

Here are the Worcester Endeavorers who are at the head of the arrangement of details: Chairman, H. L. McCluskey, 106 Chandler street; vice-chairman, D. Wendell Donley, 9 Gardner terrace; secretary, Miss Nettie S. Kellogg, 80 Oread street; treasurer, Elwell V. Dexter, 554 Main street; finance, E. T. Chapin, 7 Jacques avenue; reception Louis Warren, 67 Piedmont street; entertainment, Mrs. R. W. Robinson, 343 Chandler street; registration, Elmer A. McGowan, 16 Brittain square; place of meeting, F. A. Gaylord, 340 Highland street; press and publicity, G. McKenzie, 554 Main street; music, J. Vernon Butler, 4 Charlotte street; Junior, Mrs. Carrie W. Kincaid, 140 Chandler street; and Mrs. L. A. Spalding, 5 Enfield street; evangelistic, Rev. R. S. W. Roberts, 15 June street; decoration, J. Howard Joynes, 81 Foster street.

The executive committee held a meeting and dinner last evening at the club house when committees were arranged and plans made for the coming season.

Field Day

Members of the board of aldermen were guests of Mayor Warren last Saturday on the annual inspection of the city property and work. The party started from City hall, West Newton, at nine o'clock in eight automobiles and included Mayor Warren, President Carter, Aldermen Burr, Cabot, Holmes, White, Clarke, Doherty, Beck, Weston, Hunt, Bishop and Converse, Street Commissioner Ross, City Engineer Farnham, Water Commissioner Whitney, Buildings Commissioner Elder, Overseer of the Poor Fowle, Chief of Fire Dept. Randlett and Health Agent Libbey. The first stop was made at the Newtonville Truck house where a hitch up was made and the men showed the aldermen how to slide down the brass pole. The Craft street stable of the street department was thoroughly looked over with many flattering comments. A flying visit was then made to the site of the proposed Nonantum school house and over the recently reconstructed Dalby street. The Water department pipe yard and stable on Watertown street was next in order and its appearance commented upon.

The Auburndale avenue stable also interested the aldermen as the next stopping place. At the West Newton Engine House there was another hitch up, a little faster than at Newtonville, and an interesting exhibition of hose work on Lincoln park. Two streams of water from a hydrant were thrown fully 125 feet in the air, showing the heavy pressure of our water supply on the lower levels of the city. The two streams were then put into a twin coupling and the water turned on. Three men were able to hold this stream and the hose getting away from them, caused a funny exhibition for a few minutes. The stream of water twisted and turned on the lawn and the men throwing themselves upon the hose were spun around like tops. The next stop was at the work of rebuilding the Concord street bridge at the Lower Falls. A brief visit was then made to a section of Waban, where owners of four new houses are asking for sewer facilities. Commonwealth avenue from Washington street to Hammond street was thoroughly looked over. The automobile travel on this road has literally taken the top completely off of it, and some twelve thousand dollars will be required to place it in proper condition. Commissioner Ross had laid a portion of the avenue near Fuller street with a preparation called "Tartar" and careful attention was given it by the aldermen. This construction calls for a light layer of tar and pitch spread over the usual macadam, the top screenings being placed on top of the tar and rolled. The result is something like a tar roofing and will require time to prove its wearing qualities. So far as known the construction seems best for automobile travel. Its cost is but 5 cents per square yard, or 1,000 a mile for a road way as wide as Commonwealth avenue. The view from the top of Waban reservoir was enjoyed for a moment and the party then proceeded to the Newton Centre engine house thru Hammond and Beacon streets. Fire headquarters with its array of glittering mechanism was an attractive sight, but the schedule allowed only a brief stop. Glen avenue bridge, the grade crossing work on the south side of the Newton Centre station were passed rapidly. A stop was made at the work on the Paul brook near Oxford road, and at the Centre street abutment, where the best general view of the entire work can be obtained. A quick run thru Newton Highlands and Walnut street to the Newton Clubhouse and lunch, was appreciated. Over an hour was spent enjoying the hospitality of the Mayor and when a return was made to the automobiles, Alderman Palmer joined the party. A stop was made on Crystal street where the residents desire a tree removed, and the new bridge at Hyde street and Boylston street were inspected. The next point was the new culvert, just completed for the East branch of the Charles river at Boylston street. The uselessness of this work was openly commented upon. From there the party went to the Pumping station and the great improvement over the preceding year in the matter of lighting was noted. A beautiful ride followed thru the woods on the Needham side of Charles river to the Kenrick bridge, thence thru Nahant and Winchester streets to the almshouse. Mr. Fowle's needs were here placed before the aldermen and a careful inspection made of the entire building. While this was being done, Mr. Ross gave a few minutes of pleasure to one of the inmates, 89 years of age, by taking him on a little automobile ride. From the Almshouse, the Oak Hill streets were inspected, a turn made at the stone crusher at Florence street, a stop made at the Stearns brook improvement on Walnut and Dedham streets and a run over the recently macadamized streets of Newton Highlands. The last place visited was the north side of Centre street bridge and the gathering rain clouds caused the party to quickly scatter to their homes.

The Monday Club of Newton Highlands will meet with Mrs. Smart on Monday afternoon next.

The regular meeting of the Executive Board of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs will be held at the New Church parlors on Monday morning, October 15, at 10.15. Any members of the Federation are allowed to attend, but only officers and regular delegates are entitled to vote.

W. H. Davis Club

About forty members of the William H. Davis Club enjoyed an Old Fashioned New England supper in the parlors of Eliot church Tuesday evening. At the business session president A. L. Babbitt stated that plans were being made for the annual professional production of the club and that several speakers had been engaged for subsequent meetings who would give lectures and talks on subjects covering a wide field of interest. Later monologues were given by Mr. Ernest Wright and songs were sung by the club.

Dance and Whist

A whist party and dance under the auspices of the Newton Hospital Catholic Aid Society will be held in Bray Hall, Newton Centre, Friday evening, October 26. Whist will be played from 8 to 10, dancing following until 12. Music, Kurtz orchestra.

Keith's Theatre.—In line with the superlative excellent vaudeville shows of the past few weeks at Keith's will be the program arranged for next week. It will be headed by two features of more than ordinary interest—George Evans and Master Gabriel and company. George Evans stands today as the leading monologist on the stage, a burlesque comedian whose humor is keen and of the most enjoyable kind. He has recently made a record at Keith's Theatre, Philadelphia, that has never been equaled in America. In five weeks he has been the top-line feature at that house and has delivered a new monologue each week. He comes to the Boston house for a run. Master Gabriel who first won fame in the varieties as a member of the team of Lamar and Gabriel, and later became a star in musical comedy as the original "Buster Brown," is to appear in a new sketch called "Auntie's Visit." He plays the role of "Buster," supported by a company that includes George Ali, who is cast as "Spike," Buster's dog, Al Lamar, Vida Perrin, Nan Dodson, Maurice Hageman and Ed Lamar. John W. World and Mindell Kingston are favorites of the highest standing with the Keith patrons and their return in their delightful comedietta will be a most welcome event. An act that has won a great reputation in Europe, Herr Graiss and his two trained baboons, is to make its first American appearance. Mary Dupont and company, in a sketch called "Left at the Post," and Lucier, in a budget of fun entitled "The Fool's Errand," Franco Piper, the famous banjo juggler; Elizabeth Murray, with songs and stories; the Arlington Four, a quartet of clever young comedians; Adair and Dahn, wire performers; the Gagnoux in feats of equilibrium; Chris Smith and the Two Johnsons, "real cool" singers and dancers; Belle Venola, a pretty contortionist, and new Kinetograph pictures will all be on the list.

Tremont Theatre.—The Boston public evidently likes "The Student King," the new light opera at the Tremont Theatre, which is now in the second week of a highly successful four weeks' engagement. It is some time since the music lovers of Boston have been so unanimous in their praise of a new composition as has been the case of Reginald DeKoven's score for this delightful romantic opera. The opera is in three acts, and each is a gem of beauty. A most unusual feature, which has received much favorable comment, is the male chorus of thirty trained voices. This is, without exception, one of the most successful innovations the light opera stage has ever had, for it is the first time that the percentage of male voices in an organization of this kind has been so high. Of course there is also a chorus of girls, and very pretty girls they are, too. One of the pleasant surprises of the cast has been Miss Lina Abarbanell, the grand opera singer, who has forsaken the grand for the lyric field. Alexander Clark, too well known in Boston to require commendation, has scored the success of his career as King Rudolph, the leading comedy character.

Real Estate

Henry H. Read has leased the following houses the past week. Mr. Frank Clark's house No. 129 Cypress St., Newton Centre to Mr. Geo. H. Nolte of Weston. Also Mrs. Swain's house No. 72 Crescent Ave., Newton Centre to Mrs. Eldridge.

The management of Burdett Business College, 18 Boylston St., Boston, recently issued a very courteous invitation for people to visit the institution in order to view one of the largest private schools in the world. The visitor cannot help noticing the splendid standard of discipline which is maintained at this college, as he sees its many students earnestly at work acquiring an education which will enable them to earn a livelihood. Each graduate is presented with a Free Life Membership in the highly-organized Employment Bureau, which is one of the features of this modern-spirited school. The cost per term of ten weeks at Burdett for instruction in Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Bookkeeping and general business practice is $37.50. Each Monday morning witnesses a large addition to the Burdett College student ranks, so great is the demand for seats at this school.

Y. M. C. A.

We were passing across the street just a short distance from the Square when he climbed onto the car and dropped like a windfall apple into a seat. He lived a hundred numbers or so up the street, and to gain time had sprinted to the car.

He didn't say much for a while after getting aboard; just a nod of greeting and acquiescence to the statement made concerning the weather; we were well acquainted, too.

He had been about five years out of college when he had been the mainstay of the track team. To jump off his porch and do a three minute walk in a one minute run, seemed to him, the most natural thing in the world to do. Yet, here he was panting like a hunting dog and grasping the lower border of his ribs as if afraid of losing his watch.

After a short time he took me into semi-professional confidence and expressed his anxious surprise that he, a many-medalled athlete, should have been as able as ever to show the distress of a patriarch was certainly unimpaired.

The same mistake is common among business men. The health of youth is an invested health; it cannot be called upon for instant service, unless by constant practice it is kept at call.

Our ex-athlete was sound and healthy but he was "not working at it" he was simply riding out his momentum. There is a time when momentum must slacken and cease. If a man is thoughtful he will keep his reserve fund of energy replenished, rather than run until it is all gone and trust to luck for a lift.

Health, like rubber, deteriorates more from non-use than from use. The way to save it is to use it. The business man and any man whose occupation makes but small physical demand, must keep his health by extraordinary measures. It can't be neglected without sure penalty.

A "Word to the Wise," etc. join the Business Men's Class at the Y. M. C. A.

which begins work on Saturday, October 20th. Just an hour in the "gym" from 5 to 6, will do wonders for you and make you feel like a new man.

The Basket-Ball candidates are requested to report at the "gym" on Monday night, Oct. 15th. Prospects are bright for the best teams that ever represented the association and competition will be keen for the various positions. Three teams will be organized if enough capable men report.

All classes, except the Business Men's, which starts next Saturday, Oct. 20th, are now running on schedule time and with greatly increased interest and attendance.

Miss Hallett

Miss Maria B. Hallett, daughter of the late B. F. Hallett of Boston, passed away at her home, Church street, last Monday after a long period of ill health. Deceased was 70 years of age. Funeral services were held from the house Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Wolcott Calkins officiating and the remains buried at Mount Auburn.

Cozy Homes

The discovery of a new wick principle—so effective and yet so simple that it's a wonder no one thought of it before—has so revolutionized the manufacture of oil heaters and lamps that explosions, smoke and smell, caused by imperfect wick arrangement, may safely be regarded as things of the past.

This new wick attachment is to be found on the Perfection Oil Heater. Interesting tests show that, although the heater gives intense heat, the wick cannot be turned too high or too low—absolute safety thus being assured. One other feature which is worthy of mention is the smokeless device which prevents all smoke and odor. The portability of the heater also commends it for general household use. Heater is very light and can be easily carried about. Its simple operation, usefulness in heating water and warming cold rooms make it a most handy and useful article in any home. This heater is so far superior to other oil heaters, and is of such fair price that its universal adoption is but a matter of time.

The Rayo Lamp, which is made by the manufacturers of the Perfection Oil Heater, is without doubt the best lamp for all-round household use. It is equipped with the latest improved burner, and gives a bright, steady light at small cost. Suitable for any room, whether library, dining-room, parlor, or bedroom.

The Perfection Oil Heater and the Rayo Lamp form a combination that for real home comfort cannot be equalled. When consideration is taken of the simple operation of both heater and lamp, their absolute safety, the intense heat generated by the one, and the bright and steady light given by the other—all without smoke or smell—their value in any home, large or small, can be somewhat appreciated. Sold by all good dealers.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by William L. Roberts of Boston in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to The Brookline Savings Bank, dated October 4, 1896 and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Lib. 2488, fol. 372, will be sold at public auction for breach of the condition of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, on the premises hereinafter described on Monday the 22nd day of October, 1906 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage and therein described substantially as follows: To wit: Main parcels of land in that part of Newton in the County of Middlesex, and Commonwealth aforesaid, called Newton Centre, shown on a "Plan of property of E. G. A. Isenbeck" drawn by French & Bryant dated February 6, 1897 and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book of plans 102 plan 9 and are part of the land conveyed by Stoughton Bell to said E. G. A. Isenbeck by deed dated March 18, 1896 and recorded with said Deeds, Book 247, page 1. The first parcel is bounded as follows:—Beginning at a point in the Westerly line of Westbourne Road and in the Northernly line of a parcel of land conveyed by J. L. Palmer to Julian E. Severance by deed dated August 29, 1896 and recorded with said Deeds, Lib. 2483, fol. 507, and thence running Westerly by said said Severance about one hundred and eight feet to a passageway or forty feet wide street; thence running Northernly on said passageway about two hundred and seventy feet to Ward Street; thence running in curved lines as shown on said plan by the Southernly line of Ward Street and Westerly line of Westbourne Road three hundred and forty-seven and 31-100 feet more or less to the point of beginning and containing about 29,600 square feet. Said parcel is conveyed together with and subject to any rights of way or otherwise in said forty feet wide street.

The second parcel is shown as No. 16 on said plan and is bounded Westerly by Westbourne Road and by two curved lines, respectively fifty-seven and 64-100 feet and forty-two and 74-100 feet; Northernly by lot No. 15 on said plan ninety-eight and 57-100 feet; Easternly by lot No. 18 on said plan seventy-two and 74-100 feet and Southernly by lot No. 17 on said plan eighty-three and 53-100 feet; containing 7906.3 square feet; being the same premises to William L. Roberts conveyed by Jane L. Palmer by deed dated December 6, 1898 and recorded with said Deeds. The restrictions therein referred to are believed not to be applicable to the granted premises. The premises will be conveyed subject to any and all unpaid taxes and sewer assessments and to any outstanding tax titles. $300 will be required to be paid in cash at the time and place of sale when other terms will be announced.

Every Day Life Club

The Every Day Life Club, an organization intended to interest all the men of Auburndale of whatever creed, held its first dinner and meeting for the season last Wednesday evening in the Century church parlors, Auburndale. After dinner which was served at 7 o'clock, Dr. George A. Bates gave an interesting lecture on "The Ultimate Elements of the Body" illustrated by diagrams and microscope. Following the lecture the club formally organized and elected these officers: Pres. Mr. Isaac S. Dillingham; vice pres., Mr. Wyeclyffe Spaulding; secretary, Dr. George A. Bates; treas., Mr. Rufus Estabrook; member executive committee, Rev. F. C. Haddock.

The club expects to have lectures on Wireless Telegraphy from Prof. Winslow of Lasell, on Immunity from Disease by Dr. Leary of Tufts and Mr. Wilbur of New York on Travels.

50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Parkman Baldwin of Newton Centre celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage Monday evening last at their home on Ripley terrace, the reception being attended by many family friends from Nashua, N. H., Winchester, Boston and the Newtons. The couple received many beautiful gifts, congratulatory messages and floral remembrances. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin were married at Nashua, N. H., on Oct. 8, 1856, and there were present at the golden wedding anniversary four ladies who attended the marriage.

Beside Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin in receiving were Mr. and Mrs. A. S. McDaniel of New York, the last named their only daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin have been residents of Newton Centre for a score of years, and are active members of the Unitarian church there. Mr. Baldwin has been connected with the paper house of Stone & Forsyth for 20 years, and is just as keen a business man now, apparently as when he started.

Mrs. Jordan

Mrs. Stativa P. Jordan, for many years a resident of Bacon street, Newton, died last Tuesday at the Newton hospital of troubles incident to old age. Mrs. Jordan was born in Belfast, Me., and was over 81 years of age. She was the daughter of Capt. Robert Combs and the widow of Abram Jordan. She is survived by two sons, Harry Jordan of Franklin, Mass., and Frank Jordan of Newton. Funeral services were held at the undertaking rooms of Short and Graham Thursday afternoon, Rev. Frank B. Matthews of the Immanuel church, officiating, and the interment was at Mt. Peake cemetery, Waltham.

The Newton Ladies' Home Circle will hold their first whist of the season at the residence of Mrs. E. F. Dow, 43 Warwick road, West Newton, next Wednesday, from 2.30 to 4.30 P. M.

Boy Seriously Hurt

Lewis Tsao, a Chinese boy of eighteen years, residing with Miss Clara M. Cushman of Richardson street, Newton, was badly hurt early on Wednesday morning while riding his bicycle by colliding with a wagon owned by H. E. Jhonnot and driven by Sidney Chant.

Tsao, who attends the Bigelow school, had been allowed to go home on an errand, and was riding his bicycle on Vernon street towards Centre street. At the corner of Centre street he ran into the wagon and was thrown to the ground, striking his head. He was picked up in an unconscious state and after receiving attention from a physician in a nearby store, was removed to the Cushman residence. He was in this country for the purpose of receiving an education, as his father had done before him. The elder Tsao is a professor in the Imperial College at Peking and the physician and surgeon to the North China Imperial railway.

Many Hearings at Ten O'clock Session Monday Evening

Subject of Police Pensions Introduced and to be Considered Later

Routine business only was before the aldermen at their meeting last Monday evening. Vice President Ellis presided in the absence of President Carter and the others present were Aldermen Beck, Bishop, Bosson, Bowen, Burr, Cabot, Day, Doherty, Holmes, Hunt, Palmer, Stone, Underwood, Webster, Weston and White.

At the hearings on petitions of the Telephone Company for attachments on Chestnut street, Lexington street, and River street, no one appeared. There were several petitions of the Gas Light Co. for pole locations. On Fairfax street, Mr. F. J. Burrage said that the pole was now on his front lawn and he wished it removed. On Sewall street Mr. A. E. Mann asked for a postponement as several abutters were unable to be present. On Woodcliff road, Mr. R. F. Alvord said he wished the electric light and was in favor. On Park street a remonstrance was sent in from Mrs. E. L. Waitt.

On petition of L. A. Sprague for removal of trees on Perkins, Mr. Sprague appeared and said this tree was directly in front of his walk and if removed he thought the adjoining trees would meet in their tops. There was no one directly or indirectly interested except himself.

On the hearings for altering and widening Boylston street at Jackson street, Boylston street at Winchester street, Waverly avenue at Kenrick street, and of Hancock street and for taking land for sewer between Lincoln and Boylston streets, no one appeared. On the laying out of Cook street under the betterment act, Mr. Hugh Murnaghan said he had lived on the street for 15 years and had tried hard to get it accepted. Mr. John Keating said all but a few abutters were in favor and were willing to pay their share of the expense. Henry Duggan and Pietro Saurio also spoke in favor, and there was no opposition.

The appointments of William H. Thomas and of Thomas J. Lyons as constables were received from the mayor and confirmed. The mayor also transmitted the claim of John P. Leahy for damages for the death of Cornelius Lane, killed while in the employ of the city and it was referred to the Claims Committee.

Petitions of Mary F. McGraw for intelligence office license and of G. W. Dunleavy for 2 pool table licenses were referred to the License committee. Petition of Nagle et al for sewer in Crafts street was referred to the Committee on Public Works and later, on favorable report, was ordered constructed. Petition of Rivinius et al for concrete sidewalk Irvington street under the betterment act was referred to the same committee. On petitions of H. E. Bothfeld et al for removal of trees on Centre and Richardson streets and of A. E. Mayell et al for hearing on petition for junk license of Morris Greenwald, hearings were ordered for Nov. 5th.

On recommendations of the Finance Committee, a grant of $23,733.33 for city expenses to Nov. 15 was ordered, various transfers authorized in the School, Police and Health departments and the rate of interest on unpaid taxes established. The same Committee also approved the passage of orders recommended by the Public Works committee.

On recommendation of the Public Works committee orders were adopted for water mains in Albemarle road, Brookside avenue, Commonwealth avenue, Wachusett road, and Gay street, $1135, laying out Cook street under the betterment act and appropriating $675 for construction of said street; relieving City collector of collection of sewer assessment of W. C. Boyden, Foster street; and authorizing receipt of $608 for work on Stearns brook. The same committee reported no action necessary on order for sidewalks, southerly side of Fairfax street and ought not to pass an order for sidewalks on the northerly side of same street.

On recommendation of the Public Franchise committee the Telephone company was granted attachments on Hull street, Beaumont avenue, Grove street, Jackson road and relocations on Boylston street, the Newton & Boston St. Rwy. Co. was granted a relocation of its tracks on High and Elliot streets, J. W. Crowell permit to locate a 10 H. P. gas engine on Commonwealth avenue, D. H. Kobbler, to keep and sell gasoline on Brook street, Chas. P. Edwards a minor's license, and John J. Kenney was granted leave to withdraw on petition for a wagon license and to transport liquor. Alderman Webster queried the recommendation of this committee that junk licenses be granted to H. Meilman and to Timothy F. Keefe. Alderman Palmer stated that Meilman had been done an injustice by the application of the rule requiring citizenship as a qualification to receive a junk license, as he had filed his papers two years before. He had a good record and kept a clean place. The license was granted. Alderman Webster objected to granting any new licenses when the Keefe petition was under consideration. He thought there were enough licenses now in force and that it was not necessary to grant any more. Alderman Palmer said that the applicant was of a class which would improve the junk business and that the Chief of Police said that 15 licenses were none too many. Alderman Weston said that Keefe was the type of a man whom the city ought to have in the junk business. The license was then granted.

An order accepting the provisions of Chapter 108 Revised Laws authorizing the granting of police pensions was referred to the Committee on Rules.

Alderman Weston of the Rules committee then presented the proposed draft of the revised ordinances which have been under consideration for some months. He urged the passage of the ordinances to be enrolled in order that they might be printed at once. Alderman Holmes objected to voting on them until he had had an opportunity to look them over and the matter was assigned for the next meeting of the board.

At the request of Aldermen Webster the Board of Health was asked to furnish the details of expenditure for Care of Contagious Sick during 1906 and at 10.15 o'clock the board adjourned.

Miss Bryer

Miss Harriet Sherman Bryer passed away at the home of her sister, Mrs. Isaac M. Lord on Camden road, Auburndale, last Thursday after a long period of failing health. Deceased was a native of Boothbay, Me., where she was born 76 years ago. Funeral services were held from the house last Saturday afternoon, Rev. Dr. R. L. Greene, pastor of the Immanuel Methodist church, officiating, and the interment was in Mount Hope cemetery.

Mrs. Pierce's Funeral

A large number of relatives and friends gathered at the family residence on Park street, Newton, last Friday afternoon, to pay their final tribute of love and respect to the memory of Mrs. Asa T. Pierce. Rev. Franklin S. Hatch, acting pastor of Eliot church, officiated and the Mendelssohn quartet rendered the selections, "Face to Face," "Heavenly Love Abiding," and "Still, Still with Thee." The interment was in Mount Feake cemetery, Waltham.

Thomas Lippy

Mr. Thomas Lippy, a well known resident of Nonantum, died at his home on Adams street last Saturday after a long illness. He was forty eight years old and was a native of Preston, England. He is survived by a widow, two sons and two daughters. Mr. Lippy was in the vegetable business until he was compelled to give up, owing to his failing health, some months ago. Requiem mass was celebrated at the Church of Our Lady, Monday morning at 9 o'clock and the interment was in Calvary cemetery, Waltham.

Among Women

The Review Club met last Tuesday with Miss Smith and Mrs. Cole. After the business session and an interesting talk on current events by Miss Smith, the morning was given to the program committee, Mrs. Huggles chairman, and Miss Smith, Miss Haskell, Mrs. Farley, and Mrs. Davidson, who read carefully prepared and instructive papers on Giotto's Influence on his Contemporaries, Ruskin's Giotto, Fra Angelico, Chiberti, Brunelleschi, and Donatello.

The fall meeting of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs will be held at the New Church, Newtonville, on Tuesday afternoon, October 23, at 3.30. Mr. Ralph Albertson of Boston will speak on "Two Years of the School City in Massachusetts." This promises to be a meeting of unusual interest and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity. The public is cordially invited, while a special invitation has been extended to the teachers of the city.

By invitation of the Peabody's Woman's Club, the State Federation will meet in Peabody on Wednesday, November 7, at the South Congregational Church. Luncheon tickets at fifty cents can be obtained from Miss Frances A.

Porter, 44 Washington street, Peabody, by sending money and addressed envelope as usual before November 6. The program will be announced later.

The Monday Club of Newton Highlands opened its season of work on October 15, with papers upon "British Rule in India" and "The Sepoy Mutiny" and "Cawnpore and Lucknow." Tennyson's and Whittier's poems on Lucknow were also read. The club will meet with Miss Webster next week.

The annual opening reception of the West Newton Women's Educational Club will be held at the home of Mrs. E. N. L. Walton on Friday afternoon, October 26, from three until five o'clock.

The next meeting of the Newton Ladies' Home Circle will be held at the residence of Mrs. E. D. Childs, 391 Lexington street, Auburndale, on Wednesday, October 24. Meeting to be followed by social hour and tea.

New Rector

Rev. Harry W. Perkins, who has just accepted a call to the rectorship of the Church of the Redeemer, Chestnut Hill, comes to this city from Christ church at Burlington, Ia., where he has been rector for almost 12 years.

Rev. Mr. Perkins began his rectorship of the little church at Chestnut Hill attended by many of the wealthy residents of that suburb Monday. While all of his work has been in the west, Rev. Mr. Perkins is nevertheless a Boston man, having first seen the light of day in the Hub city. He also received his early education in Boston.

In 1887, after some years of private study, his family having moved to the west, he followed them and at once began to study for the ministry, being graduated from Nashotah theological seminary in 1892. His first work was as assistant rector at St. Paul's church, Milwaukee. The following year he was called to Grace church, Hinsdale, a suburb of Chicago. Two years afterward he received a call to Burlington, Ia. This was in 1895, and he has remained there up to now. His work in Christ church has been most successful, a handsome stone parish house being built five years ago and a commodious rectory being erected during the past year. In recent years Rev. Mr. Perkins has spent his summers at Mattapoisett, where he has frequently officiated in St. Phillips church.

Two automobiles collided one night last week on Commonwealth avenue, near Temple street, while going in opposite directions on the extremely southerly side of the boulevard. A woman was thrown out of one of the machines but was not seriously injured. The smaller automobile was badly damaged.

It was nearly midnight when a big car occupied by five persons was being driven easterly. A somewhat smaller car containing four persons was going west at a fair rate of speed. When but a short distance apart both chauffeurs turned toward the middle of the boulevard and the machines came together.

The woman was thrown out of the smaller car. This machine was considerably smashed and was taken to a garage for repairs. The occupants were taken back to Boston in a borrowed automobile. After slight repairs the big automobile was again in running condition and its occupants continued their ride. The police did not find out the names of the occupants of either automobile or the numbers of the vehicles.

Reception

In the parlors of Central church, Newtonville, last Tuesday evening a reception was tendered to Rev. and Mrs. Jay T. Stocking from 8 to 9 o'clock. The ushers were the Misses Levins, Nickerson, Paton, Rolfe, Taylor, Whitney, Crain and Caldwell. From 9 to 10, refreshments were served at small tables, by the ladies of the committee in charge of the affair, and music was provided under the direction of Miss Lillian West. The rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion with potted palms and autumn foliage.

The voters of this grand old Commonwealth are confronted with a condition, not a theory, in the political contest for the governorship now pending. The situation is somewhat similar to that of the nation in 1896, when the common honesty of the American people was threatened with the plea for cheap money. Now the people of this state are called upon to choose between a champion of common decency and morality, respect for the law and high ideals on one hand and the debauchery of the judiciary, the use of legal machinery to gratify political animosities and attain private ends, and a disgusting sensationalism on the other.
There should be but one answer to the question on November 5th, from a constituency which has honored itself by the election of such men as Roger Wolcott, John D. Long, Murray Crane and others of that class. But it is not enough to say that the answer will be as we anticipate next month. It is not well to take such things for granted. The "unthinking masses" who inhabit our aristocratic districts, and whose thoughtlessness in neglecting their franchise rights, has contributed to so many defeats in the past, should be urged again and again to enter their protest thru the ballot against Moralism, Hearstism and all that those isms imply. The political honor of the Bay State is at hazard, and patriotic citizens of all parties should unite under the banner of Governor Guild to work and pray that "God Save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

The laying out of Cook street, Nonantum, under the betterment act by the aldermen last Monday evening is a decided compliment to the careful and onerous work done by Alderman Doherty.
This street, one of the most thickly settled in the Nonantum district, has always been an eye sore for many years on account of its unkempt appearance.
Efforts to induce its abutters to contribute towards the expense of putting it in condition for acceptance by the city have hitherto proved futile. Alderman Doherty deserves great credit for bringing conflicting interests into harmony and for the improvement of the Nonantum district, which will follow.

The local Army post is to make an effort to procure a pension for police Captain John Ryan, who has been in bad shape physically for some time. It is first necessary to have the act authorizing the pensioning of police, accepted by the aldermen and then induce the city authorities to act on Captain Ryan's case. There is no doubt but what the sentiment of the city is in favor of granting police pensions. When the firemen's pension act was presented for a referendum a few years ago it was accepted by a substantial vote altho that act is far less satisfactory in its details than the police statute.

At the Fair

Among the interesting exhibits at the Boston Food Fair now being held in the Mechanics Building in that city, we note the handsome booth of the Dwinell-Wright Co., who exhibit their celebrated White House Coffee. Thousands of cups of this delicious beverage are given away by this enterprising firm. The rival bread makers, the J. G. and B. S. Ferguson Co. and the George G. Fox Co. occupy adjacent booths. The Fox Company has decorated its booth with leaves of bread of different shapes and display their well known Creamalt bread. The Ferguson Co. exhibit their products in a most attractive manner and both concerns give away many samples of their toothsome wares.

Mr. James H. Valley of Watertown is the Democratic nominee for senator in this district. Mr. Valley will receive a handsome vote in his own town.

The Democratic county ticket is Dr.
Patrick E. Sullivan of Lowell, for County Commissioner; Nathaniel A. Atwood of Medford for Clerk of Courts and John O'Brien of Townsend for county treasurer. Their chances of success at the election are not flattering.

The Building of the Tabernacle

To the "Willing-Hearted" of the Newton Highlands Congregational Church "And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the Children of Israel that they bring me an offering * * * and let them make me a sanctuary that I may dwell among them." Moses then as God commanded Spoke unto the congregation.

So they came, both men and women.
Many as were willing-hearted.
All whose hearts were stirred within them.
And brought bracelets, ear-rings, tablets.

Every man that offered offerings Offered gold or brass or silver.
Offered to the Lord his offerings.
Every man brought blue and purple, Scarlet, and the finest linen, Goats' hair, red skins, skins of badgers.
The wise-hearted of the women Those whose hearts were stirred in wisdom Spun with hands and brought the spinning.
Rulers brought the stones of onyx, Stones for spind and for breastplate.
Spice and oil for light and incense.

Thus Bezabeel, son of Uri, Whom the Lord filled with his spirit In the wisdom and the knowledge For devising works so curious.
Then he wrought and taught the others.
Every man whose heart stirred in him Stirred to work as God commanded Wrought in gold and brass and silver, Curious work and cunning carving.
Weaving, brodering and fine linen.

Now these men received from Moses All the offerings of the people!
Offerings free brought every morning.
Till the stuff was all sufficient And too much and then the people Had to be restrained from bringing!
"So Moses finished the work * * * and the glory of the Lord filled the Tabernacle."

Reception to Pastor

The annual reception to Rev. and Mrs.
Julian C. Jaynes by the West Newton Unitarian Society was held Wednesday evening in the new Parish House of the Society on Washington street, Rev. and Mrs. Jaynes were assisted in receiving the four hundred guests by Mr. Josiah E. Bacon, chairman of the Building Committee, and Mrs. Bacon, and Mr. Edwin B. Haskell, chairman of the Standing Committee, and Mrs. Haskell. The young men of the church acted as ushers and the reception was held in the Sunday School room. An orchestra behind a screen of palms and ferns, rendered music thruout the evening.
The entire building was thrown open for inspection and many took occasion to look over the new church and to make selection of pews and seats, which will be auctioned off next Monday evening.
The tables in the new banquet hall were presided over by Mrs. George Hutchinson, Mrs. John W. Weeks, Mrs.
Charles H. Ames and Mrs. George A.
Frost, assisted by a score of young ladies.

Unitarian Club

The first meeting, for the season, of the Unitarian Club was held last evening at Channing church and the attendance of members was one of the largest in the club's history. An informal reception was first held in the parlors followed by supper which was served at 6:45 o'clock.
About 130 members and guests partook of the bountiful repast among those seated at the head table being President George Hutchinson, Rev. Dr. Samuel A.
Eliot, president of the American Unitarian Association, Congressman John W.
Weeks and Hon. John D. Long, the special guests of the club. Others near them were Rev. J. C. Jaynes, Rev. A. H.
Brown, Hon. A. R. Wood, Rev. A. L.
Hudson and Messrs Daniel S. Emery, G.
Fred Simpson, F. W. Stone, D. F. Barber, F. H. Burt and Henry Whitmore. A short business session was held later at which the president thanked the members for the honor conferred upon him by the club and the treasurer reported a satisfactory balance in the treasury.
Three new members were elected and with the fourteen new names proposed will make a membership of about 180.
While the audience, which filled the main auditorium, was gathering, Mr. Henry T. Wade gave an organ recital the following program being rendered:

Toccata and Fugue Bach Andante D flat Lemare Offertoire C minor Batist Romance Lemare
Intermezzo Gaul

At 8 o'clock President Hutchinson called the meeting to order and the subject, "The Church and the State," was given a thoughtful, able and logical consideration by Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, Hon. John W. Weeks and Hon. John D.
Long.

"America" was sung at the close of the evening's program.
It was announced that the next meeting would be held in the Unitarian church at Newton Centre when the speakers will be by Rev. Julian C. Jaynes of West Newton, Rev. Adolphe L. Hudson of Newton and Rev. Alfred H. Hudson of Newton Centre. The three addresses of last evening will be printed in full in next week's issue of the GRAPHIC.

Elise W. Read and others. Samuel Barnard was the broker in the transaction.

Man Killed

Joseph Peach, aged 48, a section man employed on the Boston & Albany railroad and living on Border st, West Newton, was instantly killed about 7:45 Wednesday morning by being struck by a locomotive about 100 feet east of the Auburndale station.

Peach had started to cross the tracks when a locomotive in charge of Engineer E. Floyd backed into him, crushing his head and feet. The locomotive was backing down from Riverside, where it had taken water, to pick up freight cars.
Peach was taken into the Auburndale railroad station, but was beyond help.
Medical Examiner West viewed the body.

Peach had for a number of years been employed in the section gang under foreman M. J. Cilley. The conductor of the freight train from which the locomotive had been temporarily detached was P.
J. Carr.

Willis-Ball

Miss Gertrude A. Ball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Ball of Springfield and John Howard Willis of Berkeley, Cal., formerly of Waban, were married Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. A. P.
Reccord pastor of Unity church, Miss Sarah W. Ball was maid of honor and H. P. Blackinton of Hooisick Falls, N.
Y., was best man. The house was prettily decorated with palms and cut flowers. The wedding march from "Lohen-gren" was sung by Misses Clara and Ruth Willis, Miss Strong of Waban, and Miss Mary Thayer of Boston. About forty guests partook of the wedding breakfast which followed the ceremony and reception after Mr. and Mrs. Willis left on the 12th for Berkeley, California.

High School Notes

The football team easily defeated Dedham High on last Friday. Nearly all the substitutes were tried out. Porter played the star game. The score was 18 to 0. The team met its first defeat Tuesday by a questionable decision in the game with Roxbury Latin. Roxbury making one goal from the field in the first period. Captain Fritz Ely played for the first time this year. A pretty forward pass by Burrison to Porter was the feature of the game. Score Roxbury Latin 4, Newton 0.

In the tennis tournament finals Lovett Hall '10 was the victor.

The first copy of the Review was issued Wednesday. It is much improved over last year's.

At a meeting of the Junior class on Tuesday it was voted to tax each member fifty cents for the year's expenses.

Bishop Lawrence spoke to the school Wednesday morning in the Assembly Hall. "Force of Habit" was the topic of his talk.

Next Wednesday the football team goes to Southboro to play the St. Mark's team.

Mr. Manning

Robert Henry Manning, son of Mrs.
Theodore Manning of 559 Centre street, died early Thursday morning at the Newton Hospital. He had been ill four weeks with appendicitis. He was nineteen years old, and was a member of the senior class of the Newton High School. He was interested in athletics, being a member of the High School Golf team. Funeral services will be held at his home Saturday morning at eleven o'clock.

Y. M. C. A.

The Sunday afternoon services for the Young Men and Older Boys has started off with two of the best gatherings that the old building has ever seen. The first meeting was in the hands of Rev. G. S.
Butters, pastor of the Methodist church of this city, and he with his usual tact and originality put his theme into the form of a foot-ball story, "Reddy the Left End or a Struggle in Self Control".
The story made such a deep impression on its hearers and the news of it spread to such an extent that for upwards of a week different ones were asked to repeat it for the benefit of those who were not able to be present at its first reading.
The second Sunday in no way fell short.
Rev. J. T. Stocking, of Newtonville, had for his subject "Three M's" (1) The Making of Money. (2) The making of a Mark. (3) The making of a Man. On October 21st Rev. E. C. Camp of the Phillips Church, Watertown will be present and give the address.

The association "Open house" on Wednesday last was unusually well attended. A steady stream of visitors were shown around the building, having the many phases of the work explained to them, and interested in the games, gymnasium and etc. The entertainment by Mr. Walter Eccles was excellent.
Throughout the evening he held the crowded hall as only a high class versatile performer can. His character impersonations carried the house by storm, the songs and readings were ludicrous, and the experiments in fake magic closed an entertainment well worth hearing.

The basket ball team for this season will probably be the strongest that has yet represented the association. Upwards of 25 men were out at the first nights practise, which was short but fast. There will be considerable competition for positions. The first business men's class opens Saturday.

CLAFLIN GUARD NOTES.

Next Monday night marks the 1st anniversary of the new administration, and in looking backward over the year's work the officers feel that they have wasted no opportunity, but on the contrary feel that their every effort to promote the welfare and efficiency of the Clafin Guard has been remarkably successful. It will most assuredly be a banner year, the year 1906, in the history of the company. One can never tell what might happen in the future, but in looking over the records of the past years, we fail to find one that equals, in regard to range work, drill, and sight seeing trips, the year 1906, and Capt. Guilford is to be congratulated and commended for a year's duty nobly done.

Thanksgiving Day at the Armory will be observed by a Sunlight Hop and dance.

Corp. Wm. Love has been promoted Sergeant, and Private Albert H. Randall, promoted to Corporal.

MARRIED.

At the residence of Mr. Charles R. Burnap on Nevada street Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock his daughter, Miss Jessie Burnap was united in marriage to Mr. George Rufus Colby of East Weymouth, Rev. J. T. Stocking, pastor of Central church, was the officiating clergyman. The affair was a very quiet one only the relatives of the two families being present.

Davis--Kelso

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Frederick Ingraham on Arlington street, Newton, last Tuesday night, occurred the marriage of their sister, Miss Alice May Kelso and Mr. Laurence Wilbur Davis of Newton Centre. The wedding knot was tied at seven-thirty o'clock by Rev. Frederick E. Heath of the Bowdoin Square Tabernacle of Boston the bridal party entering the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. William S. Sargent of Boston. The flower girls were Miss Genevieve F. Davis, sister of the groom, and Miss Carolyn Ingraham, niece of the bride, while the bridesmaids were the Misses Catherine Mears of Newton Centre and Blanche N. Roberts of Brookline. Mr. A. Maxwell Stone of Newton Centre was the best man.

A reception followed the ceremony until ten o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Davis being assisted in receiving their friends by Mr. and Mrs. Ingraham and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur G. Davis, parents of the groom.

The ushers were the Messrs. Harry A. George, Colby Dill and Elmer W. Davis of Newton Centre and Mr. Frank E. Travis of Holliston.

The house was decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums and music was rendered thruout the evening by the Collins trio.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis will reside at 37 Chesley road, Newton Centre, where they will be at home after December first.

Boys Club

Major Sidney Peixotto, who is to make an address at the Hunsell Club, Newton, next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock, is one of the most interesting workers with boys in this country. He has been engaged in the development of an ideal work for city boys for the last fifteen years, and the success of his efforts has received the highest commendation wherever an interest is displayed in work for boys. The Columbia Park Boys' Club, of which Mr. Peixotto is the head worker, has developed within itself such remarkable conditions that it seems, at first thought, incredible to believe that boys are capable of performing such wonderful results that have been obtained in this work. It has invaded every field of boy energy and carried them to a remarkable degree of perfection. This club has an admirable military organization which is headed by a band of thirty-five pieces, a drum and bugle corps of twenty-five pieces and three military companies of forty boys each. The entire club is trained in the most difficult gymnasium work and it has achieved wonders in its outdoor sports, entering the field of baseball, and track athletics, in the most successful way. The club is famous for its unique theatricals, which have been given all over the State of California each year, and the club also contains a singing organization of thirty-five boys, which has given classical concerts for the last six years. The manual training work is of the highest quality especially in the artistic side of this work. Besides these great interests within the club, the summer camps and the famous walking trips, which have been led by Major Peixotto himself and covered all

DEDICATED

Fine New Building of West Newton Unitarian Society

Simple and Impressive Services Last Sunday Evening Before a Large Audience

Another beautiful church edifice has been added to the fine buildings of this city, as the dedication last Sunday evening of the new structure of the First Unitarian Society in Newton at West Newton was the second affair of the kind which has taken place this fall.

Nearly one thousand people gathered in the beautiful Gothic edifice on Sunday evening to join in the act of dedication, which was characterized by its simplicity and spontaneous enthusiasm. The large audience joined heartily in the congregational singing, which has always been a delightful feature of the service at this church, and listened with attention and eagerness to the glowing words of Rev. Dr. Francis G. Peabody who delivered the sermon. The program included the Organ prelude by Mr. Charles S. Johnson the organist; singing of the Doxology; prayer by Rev. Francis Tiffany, a former pastor; reading of the Scriptures by Rev. A. L. Hudson of Channing Church, sermon by Dr. Peabody; presentation of the keys of the building by Mr. George H. Ellis in behalf of Mr. Josiah E. Bacon, chairman of the Building committee; acceptance of the keys by Mr. Edwin B. Haskell, of the board of Trustees; the act of dedication by Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, the pastor, and the people; the prayer of dedication by Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, president American Unitarian Association; chanting of the Lord's prayer and the benediction. The hymns which were interspersed in the above service were read by Rev. A. H. Brown of the Newton Centre Unitarian church. All of the officiating clergymen wore robes, and the pastor will continue that custom in the future.

Dr. Peabody's sermon was on "the open door" and he spoke in part as follows:—

"There are two kinds of religion which make their appeals to opposite sides of human life. They have the same source, but move in opposite directions. One kind of religion thinks of life as at rest; the other thinks of life as in motion. One is the answer to the prayer for peace; the other is the answer to the prayer for progress. One is the religion of repose; the other is the religion of action. Every little that we know is thus the gate to the great unknown, and every little done is the way to the possibility of doing more.

"Now this leading of us from room to room and from door to door—from gifts of liberty to richer gifts of duty—is nothing other than religion. It is often fancied that the religious life is a restrictive discipline, but no greater mistake can be made about it than to reduce it to the monastic, the ascetic state of mind. Submission, self-denying, renunciation, are asked of every man. But the first appeal of the religion of Jesus in the modern world is to the sense of power, of initiative, of action, and of desire. It asks of you not a denial, but an affirmation—not a renunciation, but an acceptance—not an abandonment of your convictions, but the repulsive power of the new convictions.

"What is life but just to pass from room to room of the great house of experience and find each room more ample and more satisfying? What has one a right to ask of life but just a chance to enter into the larger world and the larger service? And what is the great mistake of life? It is to halt in the ante-chambers of experience, and never learn how spacious life may be. That is the kind of religion, then, which, in gratitude and in hope, we dedicate this church to-night."

The report of the Building Committee as read by Mr. Ellis and the reply of Mr. Haskell follow:—

In behalf of the Building Committee,

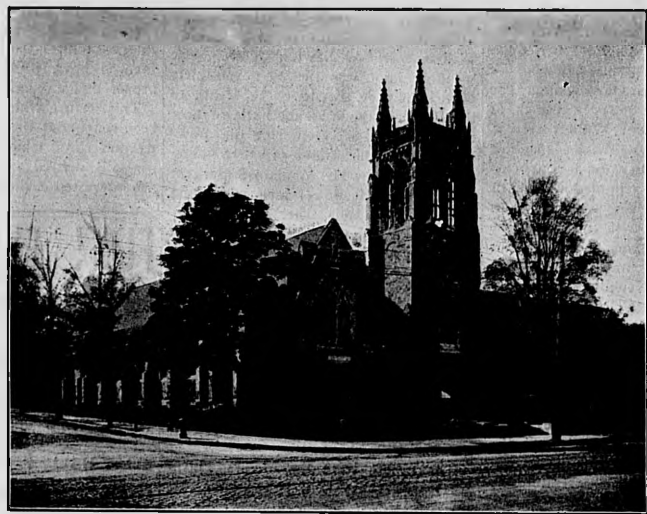

I beg to report that a parish meeting held Nov. 14, 1904, it was determined to build a new church, and a building and finance committee was appointed. Our first thought was to find a suitable location, and it is the unanimous opinion of your committee that we acquired desirable grounds, central, with ample room. After careful consideration, Messrs. Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson were selected as architects, enabling your committee to have the benefit of their large experience in church building. Plans and specifications were prepared during the winter. With proposals for erection of buildings in our hands, sketches and drawings were shown at a parish meeting held April 24, 1905, and the sum of $135,000 was appropriated for church and land. General contract for the buildings was made about May 1, 1905, and they were delivered by the contractor practically complete on Sept. 15, 1906, the date originally agreed upon. Subsequently, contracts were made for the heating, ventilation, lighting and plumbing which were executed to the satisfaction of your committee. The corner stone was laid with appropriate ceremonies Sept. 17th, 1905. It was deemed expedient to have the assistance of an inspector or clerk of the works for more than a year, and your committee feel that we have secured well constructed buildings carrying out the full extent of the architects. By obtaining the services of Messrs. Olmstead Bros., for our grading, we have succeeded in procuring a treatment of the grounds which completes the setting of our church. The old organ has been removed to our present location. The seating capacity of the church is 604 on the floor and 68 in the gallery. The bills are not all in but we shall slightly exceed our appropriation, largely through more extensive grading plans than we had anticipated.

We desire to acknowledge with thanks the subscriptions received from those who are not connected with our society. The Easter offering which was so generous showed your committee how general was the interest in our new church. The carving of the twelve stone corbels which add so much to the interior was the gift of individuals and various societies connected with our church in memory of former members of the parish. The pulpits in the church and Sunday school room also the font were given by the Sunday school. The furnishings of the church and Parish house were contributed by the women of the society. A memorial window already placed, was given in memory of one who was not only a generous giver, but an earnest worker in promoting the welfare of this society. Three other windows are already promised.

The committee feel that we have a dignified church worthy of the architects, a commodious parish house well adapted to the uses of the various societies connected with our Church, the whole complete in all its details. To you, Mr. Haskell, representing the Trustees, I turn over the keys of this building with the wish that it may prove all that we have tried to make it, a home for our society. Mr. Haskell replied as follows:—

With feelings of pleasure and satisfaction, shared by all, and on behalf of the Board of trustees, I accept from you, the representative of the Building Committee, the keys of this completed church and parish house. In doing so I know I represent the sentiments not only of the Trustees, but of every member of the parish, when I express to you our appreciation of the valuable service of the Building Committee, and, without detracting from the work of any others—all of whom have done well—especially of the service of Mr. Josiah E. Bacon, who adds modestly to his other virtues, as the chairman of your committee. We did not need to be convinced of his ability for this work. There was, from the first, a general consensus of opinion that we had the right man in the right place, and we have been delighted to observe, as the work progressed his zeal, diligence and patience in the midst of a swarm of annoying details. Neither the errors of famous architects nor the blunders of indifferent or incompetent workmen could weaken his courage or disturb his serenity. It is an opinion shared by many that the hard work he has performed has really done him good. His friends have watched his spiritual growth from month to month and seen his face shining with an increasing light. I have had the fancy that if we could look deeper we might detect the sprouting wings. As it is impossible for us to pay the debt we owe Mr. Bacon and his associates, it may be some compensation to them to be assured that they have earned our gratitude and high esteem.

I believe I that may broaden the thought I have expressed in regard to the chairman of the Building Committee and say that the work of building this new church, so courageously undertaken and so cheerfully carried on to its end, has conferred a moral benefit on all who have taken part in it; and what does not always happen in such cases—that we are more closely united, as a parish at the end of the work than we were at the beginning. There have been differences of opinion, but they have been harmoniously adjusted. Our discussion and our work together have made us better acquainted with each other and have strengthened our sentiment of friendship and brotherhood.

I have always admired the spirit of the people of Florence who, when about to build their great duomo, they resolved in public assembly to build the most beautiful church in the world. Whether they realized their ideal or not the sentiment did honor to a noble and artistic people. In some degree we shared that spirit when we refused to be content with mere utility, and made the effort to add the element of beauty to the work of our hands.

We have built a worthy building and are now to dedicate it to the Worship of God. It is in every way suitable to the highest and noblest service of which man is capable. Let us not forget that the people of this parish must supply the spirit that shall dwell in it, to make it more and more, as the years go on, the scene of faithful, cheerful work, to help make the world better. So may it be for us and our children and our children's children.

The new building is constructed of Weymouth seam face granite with trimmings of Indiana limestone. It is built in the form of a quadrangle with the nave of the church forming one side. In the centre is a courtyard, to which there is a carriage entrance passing under the tower. On the north, south and west sides are the kitchens, banquet rooms, ladies' parlor, Sunday school rooms, committee rooms and the pastor's study. The interior finish of all these rooms is black cypress, with hard pine floors. In the ladies' parlor the walls are covered with burlap. Large rugs are scattered at intervals and many of the rooms have open fireplaces.

The church proper has a seating capacity of about 600. The galleries, pews, chancel and furniture are of heavy oak, while the truss work is covered with black cypress. On each side of the large auditorium are six corbels, the work of John Evans, given as memorials to Mr. Josiah B. Chase, by Mrs. J. B. Chase; to Mr. and Mrs. George D. Clark, by their daughter, Miss Mary Clark; to Mr. George Frost, by his son, George A. Frost; to Mrs. Elizabeth L. Botume, by her daughters, Mrs. Alley and Mrs. Myrick, and her son, Mr. Frank Botume; to Mr. George L. Lovett, by Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Hall; to Mildred Hall, by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Hall; to Dr. Frederick L. Thayer, by his friends; to Mr. Edward P. Bond, by his friends; to Mrs. Esther A. Tiffany, by members of the Ladies' Aid Society; to Mr. and Mrs. William H. Stewart, by their daughters, Mrs. Pratt and Mrs. Hosmer; to Mr. Theodore A. Fleu, by members of the Junior Parish; another, not yet inscribed, by the Women's Alliance.

The pews are cushioned in imperial velour of a dark red shade, which is matched by the carpet in the aisles. The thousand worshippers spring to their feet Sunday evening in the beautiful new Unitarian Church in West Newton in response to an invitation from the Pastor to join with him in the act of dedication.

They had just listened to the dedication sermon by Professor Francis C. Peabody of Harvard University upon the text "Behold I set before you an open door", which was a clear view of the duty of the Christian of the present day, as was the physical vision of the speaker, for Dr. Peabody did not for a moment bring to his assistance the aid of the proverbial professor's gold bowed spectacles, but read his manuscript as clearly as he prompts his thoughts. The act of dedication was by far the most impressive feature of the evening, and when Pastor and people joined at its close in repeating the final response:

"O Lord, the Father eternal, who knowest the love and sacrifice built into these walls, help us to make this house holy by the holiness of our lives and the devotion of our strength to the service of the world, so indeed may it become to us and to our children's children a House of God, the very gate of Heaven. Establish, O Lord, the work of our hands—yes, the work of our hands, O God establish them!"

There were many who felt that the finishing touch had been given to a great undertaking. Nothing better enforces the dignity of purpose and the spirituality of motive in the dedication of a church to the service of God and humanity than simplicity in the dedicatory exercises, and the services at West Newton on Sunday evening were indeed a fine example of such simplicity.

There was an entire absence of pomp or ceremony, and from the organ prelude to the benediction by the Pastor, one was reminded more than once of that lofty passage in the Scripture which affirms that "God is a spirit and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth". The exercises were participated in by the Rev. Francis Tiffany, who offered the prayer of invocation; Rev. Alfred H. Brown and Rev. A. L. Hudson of Newton; Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, who offered the prayer of dedication; Dr. Peabody, already alluded to, and the Pastor, Rev. J. C. Jaynes, who has so faithfully and ably served as Pastor for twenty-one years, and in completing the suggestion of simplicity found everywhere in the program, with the exception of the organ prelude, the music was composed entirely of congregational singing.

An interesting feature of the exercises was the presentation of the keys of the new building by Mr. Josiah E. Bacon, Chairman of the Building Committee. The report of Mr. Bacon was read by Mr. George H. Ellis, another member of the committee, and the keys were accepted in behalf of the Society by Mr. Edwin B. Haskell of the Board of Trustees, in a speech which proved to be one of the gems of the evening. Mr. Haskell made a very flattering and just allusion to Mr. Bacon for his devotion to the arduous labors in bringing the new church to completion within the time specified, the corner stone having been laid September 17th, 1905. The church was therefore, dedicated less than thirteen months after the laying of the corner stone.

As one contemplates the growth from weakness to power of the Society which began public worship in West Newton in the Hall of the hotel on Washington Street sixty-two years ago, he is impressed with the fact that the men and women who have been instrumental in the hands of God in lifting the Society to such a position of power and influence as it now enjoys, are still active in shaping its destinies. With now and then an exception, when some faithful one has fallen in the harness, the first Unitarian Society of West Newton is strong and vigorous, contributing most liberally to the Treasury of the American Unitarian Association; the Newton Hospital and other charities, and realizing the reward which comes to a cheerful giver. Time and space prevent going into details regarding this beautiful dedication service to a greater extent than has been here taken. No better can this brief and imperfect reference to the exercises of last Sunday evening be closed than to repeat the words of the act of dedication, where the people responded:

"To all that sweetens our daily life, to the tender meanings of childhood and home, to all that sanctifies the cradle and brightens the star of hope above the grave, we dedicate this house."

Boston Food Fair

The Boston Food Fair, now being held at Mechanics' Building, Boston, is on a much larger and finer scale than any previous food fair.

The decorations are entirely unlike those of any other exposition, every inch of the decorative work being part of one general color scheme. One of the two great main halls from floor to ceiling is entirely of white, blue and gold, various hues and tints being used to produce an effect never before equalled in the world. The other main hall is of red, green, white and gold, the colors blending in a manner very pleasing to the eye. A person who has not seen the Fair cannot imagine how beautiful this grand uniform color scheme is or how beautiful are the booths which are of such architecture and built along such harmonious lines as to present a picture more beautiful than has ever been witnessed at even the best and largest of world's fairs. The electric light display itself is little short of marvelous, there being thousands of separate electric lights in the arches of the booths along the balcony of one of the halls, high up amid the decorations, and here and there throughout the entire building. There is a very refined look about the whole fair, and everybody who has seen it has gone into raptures over it.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the Fair is the fact that four or five very fine entertainments such as "Ben Hur," "The San Francisco Disaster" and "Howard's Moving Pictures" are kept going almost continuously, and without any extra charge for admission or seats, the Fair Management having adopted the unique policy of having no extra charges for side entertainments.

The only extra charge of any description is for seats in the balcony during the band concerts, 10 cents being charged in the afternoon and 25 cents in the evening. The low admission price of 25 cents admits a person to all the various entertainments, with their beautiful colored photographs and scenes, and enables a person to take in the entire fair. The Fair is advertised as "The Most Beautiful Exposition in the World," and General Manager Frank H. Haynes feels positive that this is not overstating it a particle.

Sousa and his band give concerts daily, afternoon and evening at the Fair. The Band is assisted by Miss Ada Chambers, soprano soloist, Miss Jeanette Powers, violin soloist, Herbert L. Clarke, cornet soloist, and other renowned artists. The program for the Sousa concerts has been prepared with exceptional care, and captivates everybody. Miss Ada Chambers, the soprano soloist, has a voice which has been compared with that of Madame Nordica, possessing singular beauty and carrying qualities. She is an American girl, and New York critics say she has been endowed by nature with a remarkable voice notable for the fresh and sympathetic quality as well as the carrying power of its tone. Although young in years, she has acquired a skill rarely reached by the best soprano singers in the world. The other soloists are also great favorites everywhere.

There are to be excursions to the Food Fair from all over New England.

THEATRES

Keith's Theatre.—Military bands are always a great attraction in Boston, which is one reason why many of the greatest organizations of the kind have played engagements at Keith's Theatre. A new one will be added to the list the coming week—Amers' Royal Hussar Band. This band has but recently arrived from England, where it is recognized as the premier military musical organization of the period, even better than the famous bands of the Guards regiments. Its very youthful director is H. G. Amers, late Lieutenant of the Northumberland Hussars, with which regiment he started as a drummer boy at the age of 10, finally becoming its leader when only 17 years old, on the death of his father. One of Lieut. Amers' strong points is his ability to arrange programs that suit all tastes. "The Honey Boy," George Evans, is giving ample proof of his surpassing ability as a monologist this week. For a half hour at every performance he makes his audiences laugh to the tear point. Evans is at Keith's for a run and will change his monologue every week. The Ussems, European equilibrist, come direct from the New York Hippodrome, where they have just finished a long engagement. Their act is one of the most amazing of the day. A baboon that "loops the loop" and another that does many cute tricks will be introduced by Herr Graiss, the famous animal trainer. Everhart, "The Timber Scientist", greatest of the hoop rollers, Lucy and Lucier, in an uproariously funny skit; Milt Wood, the wonderful wooden shoe dancer; Thomas Keough and company in a protean comedy playlet; Murphy and Francis, two of the cleverest colored performers in vaudeville; Arthur and company in a pantomimic comedy; two pert soubrettes named the Ramsdell Sisters; Guertin and Lamb, in feats of jumping, Morton, Temple and Morton in a brisk comedietta, and the Kinetograph with new pictures, will complete the bill.

Tremont Theatre.—At the Tremont Theatre next Monday night "The Student King" will enter upon the fourth and last week of its engagement. It is some time since Henry W. Savage has offered to theatre-goers of Boston an operatic morsel which has pleased them so thoroughly as this one has evidently done. Every night during the past three weeks the Tremont has been crowded to capacity, and the applause and laughter of the audience has been good to hear. The tale of the student of Prague who, while playing at king for a carnival day, meets and falls in love with a real princess who is masquerading as a milk-maid, is one which appeals to every lover of light romantic opera. To the composer, Reginald DeKoven, it has acted as a tonic, and inspired one of the most melodious scores that talented musician has ever penned. Every number in the opera is a little masterpiece, and the whole score is so evenly balanced that it is a never-failing succession of delights. Manager Savage has given the opera a truly regal production, both in point of scenery and costumes and in the personnel of the company. The opera is in three acts, and each setting is a marvel of beauty. The costumes, too, are nothing if not artistically handsome. A feature of the production is the chorus, both male and female. The male chorus is remarkably large in number, more than two dozen voices. Its singing power has never been equalled on the light operatic stage. The female chorus is made up of a large number of very pretty girls, who sing as effectively as they are good to look upon. The prima donna, Mme. Lina Abarbanel, comes from the grand opera stage and possesses a voice of superb quality. More than that, she has a delightful personal charm and is a vivacious actress. Alexander Clark is the comedian, William Weedon the tenor, and Miss Flavia Arcaro the contralto and comedienne.

The interment was in Calvary cemetery, Waltham.

Flag Presented

A pleasant feature of the regular meeting of Charles Ward Post 62 at Temple Hall, Newtonville, last evening was the presentation of a very handsome hand embroidered silk flag by Tent 2 Daughters of veterans. The presentation was a complete surprise and the advent of a score of ladies from Tent 2 with the beautiful banner was much appreciated by the veterans. The presentation speech was made by Mrs. Alice Burns, and Senior Vice Commander Montgomery responded for the Post. Speeches were also made by Mrs. Ida Allen, and Miss Katherine Flood. The ladies further surprised the Post with a beautiful collation after the business meeting. Among those present was Conrade Waters, of Santa Barbara, Cal., a former resident of Newton and a member of Charles Ward Post since 1871.

Mrs. Almy

Mrs. Harriet A. Almy, widow of the late George W. Almy, passed away at her home on Austin street Wednesday after a long period of failing health. She was an old resident of Newton and was a native of Boston where she was born 83 years ago. She is survived by one son and one daughter. Funeral services will be held from the family residence this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Church Fair

One of the prettiest events of the autumn season, and a success socially and financially, was the fair and food sale which was held in the Hunnewell Club Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and evenings under the charge of the Ladies' Benevolent Society of the Immanuel Baptist Church. The hall was most attractive with its decorations of green, white and pink and the same color scheme was used in the club card rooms where a supper was served both evenings and ice cream and cake afternoons and evenings. The platform was used as a Japanese tea room, with appropriate decorations, and was in charge of Mrs. George H. Wright and Mrs. Edward E. Hayward. The other tables and those in charge were: grocery, Mrs. Prescott; advertising, Mrs. Stephen Moore; fruits and preserves, Mrs. F. A. Leeds; cake, Mrs. F. B. Matthews; apron, Mrs. S. A. Titus; fancy work, Mrs. G. C. Travis; candy, Mrs. Allen; mystery, Mrs. Collins; grab, Mrs. C. W. Bradley; lemonade, Mrs. O. W. Holmes; plants and flowers, Mrs. F. N. March; supper, Mrs. F. J. SERMON

Recently Delivered by Rev. Dr. Prudden

At Union Services of West Newton Churches

11 Peter 3, 11.

"Seeing that these things are thus—what manner of persons ought ye to be?"

That is the practical and natural inference, which the author draws from his teachings. And to draw inferences is the essential thing to do, for, if it is not done, we lose the chief lessons from experience, history, religious truth, or even from sermons. The personal inference is the point of contact between any truth and us, by which it grips us, and without that, we are like disconnected trolley cars, which the most heavily charged wire cannot move. You (for example) doubtless thought last Sunday's sermon timely, eloquent, impressive, but unless you, under the influence of it, asked "what manner of person ought I to be," it did not get hold of you as it might.

And this question throws some light on two or three not always remembered facts. In the first place it reminds us that all of our acts are based on what we think is so, or in other words on what we believe. Is it not so? We go to business because we believe it is for our advantage, or is our duty to do so; we take a train because we believe it will carry us to Boston quickly and safely; we make investments because we believe they will be profitable; and we go to church, or stay away and read the papers, run automobiles, or play golf because we believe it is pleasant or desirable to do so. And this belief is not something that has been demonstrated to be true but is assumed to be true and is acted upon. Life is organized in that way, and religious acts rest on beliefs no more than other or irreligious acts. Therefore, what we believe is important; and the common saying "It makes no difference what a man believes if he acts all right" is as absurd as saying "It makes no difference whether an engine has steam in it or not if it works all right." Of course it makes no difference what a man believes if he acts all right. But men will not act all right unless they believe in right; they will not be faithful unless they believe in faithfulness, nor honest unless they believe in honesty.

And we not only act because we believe certain things, but we become a special manner of persons, religious, generous, selfish, honorable, mean, wicked because we believe certain things which are our working theories, on which our characters are built. If you are the manner of person that is honorable, it is because you believe in honor; if public-spirited, because you believe in the welfare of the public; if conceited or mean, because you believe you and your interests are superior to other people and their welfare.

And such a belief is more than not denying, or thoughtless assenting to propositions. It is a vivid consciousness, which leads to action. Belief in righteousness is not thinking that righteousness is a good thing when you are in church, or out of business, or cannot lose by it, but it is the feeling that right is an imperative law. And such a belief makes us one manner of person, as belief that unrighteousness is profitable sometimes makes us another manner of person.

If religion has sometimes seemed to consist in believing a number of doctrines, I am very sure that whatever doctrines do not touch us personally, and tend to make us a certain sort of men are not very important. And, if, when we are puzzling or doubting or denying or discussing, we were to ask "If this doctrine is true, what sort of a person ought I to be?" or "If it is false, what sort of a person ought I to be?" we should frequently find that we ought to be just exactly the same sort of person in either case. And, if you young men ever find yourselves holding any doctrine which causes you to be a different manner of person from what you honestly feel you ought to be, that is, from good evidence that it is not true doctrine—God's doctrine.

And how true it is that the great and final authority for every man—the only one he needs—is the "I ought" that he feels. So my text does not ask what manner of persons does Christ, or society, or Paul, or the church, or any body else say we ought to be, but what do you personally feel you ought to be? There is no other compelling authority which forces us to accept truth, or pray, or repent, or love God or man, or become good men. Intelligence may direct this sense of obligation; truth must appeal to it, and feelings plead before it. These are the attorneys that present the case, but the judge sitting on the bench clothed with authority is what we feel we ought. Therefore that feeling has right to be called "God's voice." And, if you boys and girls will remember that, I think you will find that God speaks to you as familiarly and often as he did to Samuel or Moses. And I am sure if you do not try to be and do what you know you ought, you are not the manner of children God wishes you to be; and if you do try you are the manner of children He wishes you to be.

Now, we all know that there is a fitting conformity of ourselves to the truth we acknowledge, and the circumstances we are in. And if we believe our house is on fire, we try to save what we can, and because we are parents, citizens, office-holders, we feel it incumbent upon us to be a certain manner of parent or citizen or office-holder, and any thing else seems unsuitable. So there is always a certain manner of person suitable to our opinions or beliefs. Sometimes we judge men who lived one or forty centuries ago as if they ought to have been the same manner of men as we, with our different standards and light, and assume that had we lived in the times of Augustine or Knox, or Calvin, or a belief in witchcraft, we should have been as free from superstition as we are now, and unlike every body else.

It is easy to congratulate ourselves on our better way of thinking, and despise those who thought differently, without once perceiving that the manner of man which conformity to our light demands, is very much higher than the man which conformity to their light demanded. Many gloriously strong, and beautifully Christ-like characters have been formed in Catholic cloisters; many have grown in Puritan homes; many have developed among people who believed God was an awful sovereign, under whose wrath they lived, and that the chief work of Christ was to save them from hell, and that this world was doomed to destruction, and that their eternal welfare depended on their theological ideas. But I think every thought of them should suggest not their errors and our freedom from error, nor their bigotry and our liberality, but "What manner of person ought we to be?"

We, who are gathered here this morning differ about some things, we agree about more. What we do believe is of little account. But since we believe as we do, what manner of persons ought we to be? Every one of us, probably believes that the unseen wisdom and power, ceaselessly active and ever giving, and on whom we utterly depend (whether we call it "God," or "Our Father," or "the power not ourselves which makes for righteousness") is about us and is good. We are inwardly guided by God, may stir our emotions, but in view of them, when we feel them, what manner of persons (we being the judge) ought we to be? Surely not the same as if there were no God, or He were not good, or we were not dependent on Him, or his moral and spiritual laws were not as fixed as his material laws.

Again, we all probably believe in the inborn sense of right and wrong. But discuss it, explain it as we will, the vital question is, what manner of person ought we, seeing we have that sense, to be? Not such surely as we might be without it, any more than a ship with a compass and chart, ought to be the same as a ship without them; not persons who abuse, or do not heed their moral sense, but those who train it, and obey it, realizing that it, like the endowment of a good mind makes special demands on us, and who, therefore, cherish it, develop it, and are inwardly guided by it as the are by their mental capacities.

Again, we all believe in ideals—and probably find the ideal courage, courtesy, strength, righteousness, unselfish sacrifice to the point of heroism, loyalty to duty, religious experience, devotion to a great cause, or beauty of spirit in Christ. Supposing we believe in the Christian ideals, and see them clearly up there ahead of us, undimmed through all the ages, luminous in spite of men's opinions, unquelled in splendor, fitted to take away the sin of the world. What manner of person, ought we to be? If our ideal is a great scholar, or a great business-man, a great statesman, or a great soldier, we unconsciously think that question. What is so fitting with every vision of Christ? How honestly asking that question rips up our moral and spiritual satisfaction, and calls us from less important questions, and from our exclusiveness and selfishness, and appeals to our pluck and courage, and manhood, and grips us like a high ambition, and makes us ashamed of selfish disputes, and a petty spirit, and mean thoughts, and thin excuses, and one-sided interests. These are but illustrations, but how innumerable are the occasions in which this question of my text is most apt.

You see the battle of right against wrong waged every day in society, business, politics, its clash of principles, its drawn line, its opposing sides. Since this is so, what manner of persons ought ye to be?

You see the weak mentally morally spiritually, the youth to influence, the tempted to warn, and YOU are strong—What manner of persons ought ye to be? You see how men are swayed by the public sentiments of a community, and how those of wide influence make that sentiment for, or against reverence, religion, righteousness, and regard for either God or man—Since this is so, what manner of persons ought ye to be?

You see the wide-spread notion that only things material are especially valuable; that Mammon is God, and his demands are too exacting for any other worship; that the moral and spiritual welfare of ourselves and of the community deserves no careful consideration; that breaking many of the ten commandments does not destroy respectability, and voluntary self-sacrifice is absurd. Seeing these things are so, what manner of persons ought ye to be?

You see wrongs done by one individual, or class to another; you see opportunities to comfort, encourage, and fulfill Christ's law by helping other people's burdens; you see organizations for humanity crawling weakly from lack of strength which you could furnish; what manner of persons ought ye to be?

Every age has its distinctive religious ideas and problems, and this one of ours is no exception. Do we realize that there has been no such radical upheaval and change of views about religion probably since the time of the Reformation, as is taking place now in England and America. Every venerable doctrine is being struck to see if it rings true. The Bible is differently used and interpreted. External authorities are gone. And men are seeing new views of God's presence and activity, of Christ's mission, of the kingdom of God, and the sphere of salvation, and the future of society, and the vanishing old and not the advancing new. What manner of men ought you to be in this dimming of former light, and this unfamiliar present light—in the transition from the old to the new? Surely not men who give up religion, or think God has left the world; not men looking backward instead of forward; not men less ready to trust God and work righteousness; not men disobedient to the word of God within them.

God's vastness, laws, wisdom, energy, nearness, purposes—a revelation such as those who thought the earth the center of the universe created by a word, and matter destructible, never had—a revelation that increases as we see Christ's spirit and principles applied to society, homes, government—a revelation that tells that through turmoil and struggles humanity has been and is moving higher—standing on the heights, in the illumination of this wider revelation, what manner of men ought we to be? Men, I think we all say, somewhat different from luxury-loving Sybarites; somewhat better than stern Puritans; something more than wall-in sectarians; something what broader, wiser, freer from mistakes and nearer to the ideal than our Grandfathers and Fathers; men looking towards a better day, higher in aspiration, more conscious of the Divine presence and power, more sure that loving men is loving God, men more certain that greatness consists in serving rather than in being served, more wide-awake to their responsibilities, more filled with Christ's spirit, men more ready to give, more happy, more hopeful, more inclined to reverence, more righteous, more full of the fruits of the spirit, more sure that God, who has ever worked by the ceaseless process of evolution has not retired from activity, but is even now leading humanity into something better than has ever been; Yes, and men who in this new light look for new work, and volunteer to do it, and feel that that work is neither to repeat the past, nor solve its problems, nor hold its views (much less fight over its battles) but to do the present tasks of making themselves, and this earth, and its institutions what God would have them, in a way worthy of their inheritance and strength, being certain that to do any thing else, or to doubt the issue, is to think that God has abdicated His throne and ceased to rule.

WOMAN CHAMPION

Miss Harriet S. Curtis Wins at GolfFitting Climax to Week's Play at Brae BurnA week of most interesting golf on the grounds of the Brae Burn Country Club, West Newton, was brought to a fitting close last Saturday by the win of the national championship of the Woman's Golf Association by Miss Harriet S.
Curtis of the Essex Country Club. The week had witnessed some exciting contests between the women of the west and those from the east but the finals came between Miss Mary B. Adams of the Oakley Club and Miss Curtis both representatives of the east.To one who is not a golfer, the match last Saturday was interesting, not only for the incidents of the game itself, but for the gallery which followed every move of the players. The crowd which numbered some two hundred and fifty at the beginning at ten o'clock grew rapidly larger and at the ninth hole probably reached fifteen hundred. The gallery was well managed from the very start.
Members of the committee and volunteer assistants by the score helped to run the game and at every play the crowd was kept back from one hundred and fifty to two hundred feet. This was quite a drawback at certain holes and prevented a sight of some clever putting on the greens. At the word "stand" every person would stop short in his or her tracks and conversation was carried on in whispers, in order that moving figures or the spoken word might not disconcert the players. In only one instance did the gallery stop a driven ball and that made no difference to the stroke. The writer was fortunate enough to fall in with a golfing friend who knew the leading figures in the sport and it was interesting to hear his comments on the experts as they were frequently passed. Here was a man who could drive a ball farther than any other player in the country and indeed his broad shoulders and muscular frame seemed powerful enough to send a little golf ball out of sight. The champions and ex champions were pointed out and their characteristics commented on in a most interesting manner. This friend also knew all the short cuts about the spacious grounds and many wearisome steps were saved by following his directions and lead.As to the game itself, even one not acquainted with the sport could enjoy the work of these young ladies. Miss Curtis seemed a trifle the steadier player. Her drives seemed to have better direction than those of Miss Adams and her putting was fully as good. It is true that Miss Adams had about all the hard luck of the day, but after the first hole, which she won rather easily, she did not play as well as Miss Curtis. Miss Adams showed the feminine touch in frequently changing clubs, and at the last green, her surrender of the game was delightfully womanly. Miss Curtis won by two up, one to play. Miss Adams received a silver medal as the runner up and the two other ladies who reached the semi finals were awarded bronze medals.Saturday afternoon was a gala event at the Brae Burn. The Eighth Regiment band was in attendance and played during the entire afternoon. Mixed foursomes was the event and attracted 106 players the largest number of entries ever had for this class of play. Miss Ayres and W. C. Chick were the winners with a net score of 81. A regrettable feature of this event was the protesting of the winning pair on the ground that Mr. Chick had thoughtlessly removed a windfall apple while making anapproach. This violation of the ground rule should have penalized him two strokes. The card was handed in as actually played and placed Mr. Chick under the penalty of disqualification for turning in an incorrect score. The Committee considered the matter and as Mr.
Chick was innocent of any intentional wrong, his score was penalized the two strokes, still leaving him the winner.During this event Thomas McNamara, a caddy sent by the Country Club of Brookline to assist, was struck in the head with a golf ball and painfully injured. He was rendered unconscious and was removed to the Newton Hospital for treatment.

A Collision

Two automobiles were badly damaged, one of them being overturned and the occupants thrown out, as a result of a collision Sunday night at the corner of Commonwealth avenue and Homer street, Newton Centre. The occupants of both machines narrowly escaped serious injury.A Stanley runabout occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Waldo D. Putnam of Mattapan was proceeding along the extreme right side of the boulevard at a fair rate of speed when a gasoline touring car occupied by W. H. Golding and Misses Beals and Dennison came into the thoroughfare from the extreme left side of Homer street. Each thinking the other driver was about to turn to one side the automobiles collided. The Stanley car was hit just behind the front wheel of the right hand side and was overturned. Mr. and Mrs. Putnam were thrown out, the latter receiving a severe shaking up. The automobile was badly damaged.The occupants of the touring car stuck to their seats, but Miss Dennison of Newton Centre, received a severe shaking up. The touring car was also badly damaged. Both machines were taken to the garage of Joseph W.
Crowell on Commonwealth avenue, it being necessary to remove each automobile on trucks. The extent of the damage to the Stanley machine is estimated at $300. The touring car will also have to undergo a thorough overhauling before it will again be in condition for use.
The occupants of both machines were able to proceed to their homes unattended after receiving temporary treatment.
No blame is attached to the driver of either automobile.

Tree Afire

There was a hot time in the shade of an old apple tree on the old Walker estate off Washington street, Newtonville, Sunday night, when boys set fire to rubbish stuffed among the branches. A still alarm brought the Newtonville firemen to the scene and they extinguished the aerial fire before much damage had been done.

82 Years Young

City Messenger Joseph D. Wellington observed his 82d birthday last Monday at his home on Washington street, West Newton. While there was no formal observance he received many congratulations."Uncle Joe" Wellington has held the position of city messenger for the past 29 years. He was born in Troy, N. Y., in 1824 and resided in that city until 20 years old, when he removed to Cambridge. Here for nearly a quarter of a century he worked at the pipe organ business, removing after his retirement to West Newton.In 1877 he was appointed city messenger by Mayor Fowle and has since held the office. During the civil war he served in the 45th Massachusetts regiment and saw active service. He is an active Odd Fellow, a member of Charles Ward post, G. A. R., of this city and a director in the Massachusetts city messengers' association.The annual convention of the American Association of Public Accountants will be held at Columbus, Ohio, October 23rd, 24th and 25th. The program follows:—

PRELIMINARY PROGRESS.

Tuesday, October 23rd. Preliminary meeting. Addresses of welcome by Governor of Ohio and Mayor of Columbus.

sociation. Annual meeting. Suspend-tion of rules and adjournment of regular business till 10 A. M. Wednesday.
Debate on the subject of accountants' fees.
Adjournment for luncheon at the Ohio Club on the invitation of the Ohio State Society of Public Accountants.
Meeting of executive committee. Automobile Ride for delegates, visitors and invited guests. Meeting of board of trustees. Dinner at Columbus Country Club, and after dinner reception and dance at Columbus Country Club, by invitation of Ohio State Society of Public Accountants.Wednesday, October 24th. Annual Meeting. Regular business. Luncheon at Hotel Hartman. Annual meeting resumed. Meeting of board of Trustees.
Annual Banquet.Thursday, October 25th. Debates on the subject of advertising by public accountants and of audit companies, at the conclusion of which the annual meeting will be adjourned. Luncheon at Arlington Country Club. Meeting of Executive Committee. Annual meeting of American Association Golf Club at Arlington Country Club.The Association now represents by affiliation all societies of accountants throughout the United States. Its objects are to maintain a high standard of efficiency, both intellectually and morally, among its members, and in this way continually increase the usefulness of the accountancy profession to the commercial community.

HORSE BROKE WOMAN'S LEG

Animal Kicked Over Dasher and Hit Mrs. BrighamMrs. E. E. Brigham of Weston met with a peculiar accident while driving with her husband on Auburn street, West Newton, early Tuesday night, when the horse attached to their buggy kicked over the dasher and fractured her leg.The horse was walking at the time.
The britchen broke away at one end and frightened the animal. The horse kicked vigorously and then started to run, but Mr. Brigham quickly brought the animal to a stop. Mrs. Brigham was attended by a local doctor and later removed to her home on River street, Weston, in the police ambulance.

HAVING SPORT WITH THE TAX RATE.

The editor of the Natick Bulletin evidently slipped up in his issue last week for under the heading "Summer Sports" we find the caption "Selectmen's Doings". Perhaps it is sport for the selectmen to hold meetings these hot nights and do their routine business, but we have never looked at it in that light.
Surely the selectmen in Rockland would hardly call it sport, unless perhaps, the work of trying to keep the tax rate down can be classed under that head.—Rockland Standard.

GOING SOME.

Some newspaper men are terrible liars. In writing of a cyclone out west one of them said it turned a well inside out, a cellar upside down, moved a township line, blew the staves out of a whiskey barrel and left nothing but a bung hole, changed the day of the week, blew a mortgage off a farm, blew all the cracks out of a fence and knocked the wind out of a politician.Here is an effective piece of dramatic criticism, said to have been printed in a rural paper in Indiana. A raw company of the "kerosene circuit" played "Hamlet" and the next day the editor wrote:
"Mr. So-and-So and his company played "Hamlet" in the town hall last night. It was a great social event. There has been a long discussion as to whether Bacon or Shakespeare wrote the play commonly attributed to Shakespeare. It can be easily settled now. Let the graves of the two writers be opened. The one who turned over last night is the author."—New York Tribune.

WHAT A REPUBLICAN LEGISLATURE HAS DONE FOR THE MAN WHO TOILS.

THESE MEASURES HAVE BEEN PASSED BY THE REPUBLICAN LEGISLATURE OF 1906, AND SIGNED BY GOV. GUILD.

The eight hour day has been given to men engaged on a contract in which the state or a county is a party.
The employers' liability act has been extended.
Truant officers have been given the power to enter mills and take children out who are employed in violation of the law.
The rapacity of unscrupulous money lenders who would prey upon the wage earner has been curbed by a new law regulating the assignment of wages.
The weekly payment system has been extended, being now well nigh universal.
Free employment bureaus to aid those out of work are to be established.
The educational qualification for minor workers has been raised, thus ensuring to them that education which is the foundation of success in life.

The state board of education is directed to establish an employment bureau for teachers.
The law relative to the support of wives and minor children has been extended and the penalty increased.
Call firemen may be pensioned by cities which desire to take this course.
There are to be more stringent inspections of steam boilers, so that greater safeguards may be thrown about the people working in buildings where boilers are used.
Foundries are now compelled to provide sanitary conveniences for the welfare of their employees.
Wage earners who are quarantined on account of contagious diseases are to be compensated.
Several important amendments to the savings banks laws, making the savings of the people safer have been enacted.

old flags speak of dead heroes and living heroes." Everywhere that I have met a northern soldier of those old days, I have met a friend, I have met my brother's comrade.

Yours cordially,

Myrtle Lockett Avary.

It may be added that the brother Mrs. Avary refers to was an officer in the 14th Virginia infantry; that he was in Pickett's heroic charge at Gettysburg and with Armistead when the last named fell on Cemetery hill. Mrs. Avary is now living in Georgia and perhaps knows some of those "unreconstructed" women of the south who are endeavoring to erect a monument to the memory of the infamous wretch who so cruelly treated union soldiers in Andersonville prison. If she does know any of these ladies we beg to hope that she will exert all her great influence toward preventing this proposed terrible wrong to her dear brother's friends on this side of the Dixie line.

Funeral of Robert H. Manning

There were many relatives and friends at the funeral of Robert Henry Manning, which took place at the home of his mother, Mrs. Theodore Manning, on Centre street, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. Franklin S. Hatch conducted the service and a mixed quartette composed of friends of the family rendered, "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Abide With Me." There were a large number of floral tributes. The remains were removed to Worcester, later for burial in Hope cemetery.

Professor Ropes' Class

Beginning next Sunday Dr. James Hardy Ropes, Bussey Professor of New Testament Criticism and Interpretation, in Harvard University, will conduct the Business Men's Class at the Eliot church. The first lecture will deal with "The Aim of New Testament Criticism"; following which Professor Ropes will discuss New Testament times subsequent to the death of Jesus, as seen in the light of modern study. As this is a field of inquiry which is beginning to receive the same careful attention of scholars which the Old Testament has lately had, and as some of the prevalent doctrines of the Church had their origin in these early times, the lectures will be of unusual interest, and will be open freely to men from other churches and from the community in general. It is stated that while the course is not rigidly outlined, it will nevertheless follow somewhat the same lines as Professor Ropes' recent lectures under the direction of the Lowell Institute. The meetings are at twelve o'clock in the south transept of Eliot Congregational church each Sunday.

Mrs. Webster

Miss Emily Webster, widow of William Webster of Honolulu and daughter of the late Henry N. and Priscilla I. Hooper, passed away at her home on Fountain street, West Newton, last Friday, after a short illness. Deceased was a native of Brookline, where she was born 70 years ago. She was a resident of this place for 27 years, was an active member of the Unitarian parish and was a woman with a most lovable disposition. The funeral services, which were held from the Unitarian church Monday at 2.30 o'clock, were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, pastor of the church, officiated, and the Mendelssohn quartette rendered, "Abide with Me," "Crossing the Bar," and "Passing Out of the Shadow." At the close of the service the remains were taken to Mount Auburn cemetery for burial.

BELGRADE RUG COMPANY.

Worn-out and cast-off carpets are not useless, after all. The Belgrade Rug Company, at 32 Hollis street, Boston, Mass., have a way of re-making them in such a way that they not only make a beautiful appearance but that they prove durable in the use of them. Don't throw away your old carpets when they seem hopeless. See what the Belgrade Rug Company can do with them, no matter how torn and unattractive. They issue a circular which states briefly what goods make the handsomest rugs, etc., as well as price list and shipping directions.

A BREACH OF PROMISE CASE

Prominent Citizen Charged with Trifling with a Widow's Affections

For some time, it is alleged, one of our prominent citizens has paid more or less attention to a young and beautiful widow of this city forgetting or at least not heeding the advice of the immortal Mr. Weller to his son Samuel to "be-ware of the vidders."

He now claims that he was not serious in his intentions and that he was not attached to her, but however that may have been the widow became attached to him, and as he seems to have lost interest in the matter she has attached his property, which is a form of attachment that he does not enjoy.

The result is, that he finds himself the defendant in a first-class Breach of Promise Case and his questionable attitude towards the widow will be given an airing in the near future.

The parties in the case are so prominent that it is feared no court room will hold the vast crowd desirous of attending the trial, so it will be held in Eliot Hall, Y. M. C. A. Building, on Wednesday evening, October 31st, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association for whose benefit the proceeds will be devoted.

In other words, it will be a Mock Court Trial, and it promises to be one of the most enjoyable affairs of many years, as a large number of our leading people will participate in the proceedings.

The committee having the trial in charge have engaged Col. A. V. Newton, the well-known lawyer-lecturer of Worcester, to attend to the details and personally conduct the entertainment.

Col. Newton has had remarkable success in conducting similar entertainments and without doubt the Breach of Promise Trial will be here, as elsewhere, an event long to be remembered with pleasure.

Surprise Party

A very enjoyable and successful surprise party was given Miss Plant at her Cotton street home last week Wednesday evening, guests being present from Newton, Newtonville, Cambridge and Lynn. Hearts were played until ten, the prizes being taken by Miss Leah Bailey, lady's first, Mr. Coffin, gentleman's first, Miss Gardner of Newtonville, lady's consolation and Mr. Ingalls of Lynn, gentleman's. The table was very artistically decorated with red roses and carnations. Dancing followed and the delightful evening was ended with a Virginia reel.

Read Fund Lectures

The Trustees of the Read Fund call attention of the public to the notice in another column of a course of lectures on Geology to be given in the Bigelow School Hall, Park street, Newton, by Prof. George H. Barton.

The lectures on astronomy last season attracted audiences far beyond the capacity of the hall, proving beyond a doubt that lectures on scientific subjects are appreciated by the teachers, pupils and general public. This encouraged the trustees to carry out the plans formed last season and give this year lectures on Geology as naturally following the lectures of Prof. Pickering.

The course this fall ought to be especially interesting to those who attended last year. Prof. Barton is master of his subject and has one of the finest collection of lantern slides in this country. It is to be regretted that his audience must be limited to the size of the Bigelow School hall.

The Candidate's Daughter

Her father was a candidate,
His daughter was my love;
Her face was morning light to me, Her eyes the stars above—
Her father was a candidate;
This much is worthy note—She came to me, all smiles to state:
"Pa needs the floating vote!"
"My dear," I said, "you cannot get This floating voter's vote Without you give him something first To make this voter float Something to lift him up from earth And spread his joyous wing In a flight of sunny ecstasy Where larks and linnets sing!"

The rogue political, she saw Clean through my anecdote, And blushed a bit, and archly sighed:
"So you would sell your vote!"
Her father was a candidate;
He needed floaters bad—
The sweetest lips I ever—Hush!
I voted for her dad!
—Aloysius Coll in Woman's Home Companion for November.

In his spare moments, from serious literary work our esteemed fellowtownsman, Mr. Henry Haynie, who, as most people know, is a comrade in the Grand Army of the Republic, and at present commander of Charles Ward post, No. 62, writes book reviews for a Boston paper. Thus it happened that Mrs. Myrtle Lockett Avary's splendid volume, "Dixie After the War," was passed upon by him only recently and, although the author is Virginia born, and all her family were rebels, his review of her work brought from her a most delightful letter of which the following is a copy:

Alto, Ga., Oct. 4, 1906.
I feel that I must thank you for that review. I might know, from its spirit, that a soldier of the 60s wrote it. Its generous spirit is that of our old soldiers, who faced each other so gallantly in that horrible war. Their valor, their devotion, shines white amid its gloom.

In New York, I've witnessed military parades. I was proud of our younger American men in arms, as they rode or marched gaily past; and I clapped my hands with my friends of the present generation. But when the Grand Army men came, the veterans carrying the tattered, blood-stained flags, then was I most moved. I cannot explain it, but I felt a strange regard for these; a sense of peculiar, deep interest; of proprietorship. "These," I would be saying to myself, "know what war is. They know us of the South as these young troops cannot. They fought us. They know what war is as our boys know it—these who have suffered in the long marches and borne the brunt of the hard battle. These Francis J. Hartshorne, a Boston business man, drank a quantity of wood alcohol at his home at Newtonville, last Friday afternoon. He will recover.

It is thought that he took the poison with suicidal intent. When he did not come into the house for dinner Mrs. Hartshorne went out of their house on Clyde street to search for him. In the stable she found her husband in agony from the effects of the wood alcohol, which he had drunk a few minutes previously, at about 1 o'clock. She summoned a local doctor, who was able to resuscitate him.

Members of the family know no reason why Mr. Hartshorne should attempt suicide.

About 300 guests from this city and surrounding cities and towns were present at the third annual dance of division 53, A. O. H., held last Friday evening at Mague hall, West Newton. The interior of the hall was artistically decorated in the national colors.

That Newton will cast a splendid majority for Governor Guild is one of the certainties of the campaign, and it is to such cities and towns as Newton that the Governor must depend upon for his re-election. Such being the case the larger the majority given the Governor in Newton the more crushing will be the defeat of sensationalism, vanity and self conceit, as personified by Mr. Moran.
Every citizen of Newton, therefore, who believes in the honorable record of this grand old Commonwealth, who appreciates the difference between such democrats as the late Governor Russell and the present candidate for governor on that ticket, and who believes in respect for the law and the dignity of official position, should leave nothing undone to prevent his casting a vote for Governor Guild on Nov. 6th and to urge his neighbors to do likewise.
The Guild majority will be none too large if every Newton citizen does his full duty.

Governor Guild was literally appropriate in his "Facts and Facts" speech of Wednesday night. Moran is the "Fake" and Guild is the "Fact." Emphasize the "Fact" at the November election.

Church Meeting

At a special meeting of the First Unitarian Society, West Newton, held Monday evening in their new church building two new treasurers were elected, and the Society enjoys the distinction of having three different treasurers within a period of two hours. This was occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Benjamin F. Otis who has filled the office for the past 27 years, the election of Mr. George Hutchinson to the office in order that he might auction off the seats in the new church. Mr. Hutchinson's resignation and the election of Mr. Francis Newhall as the permanent treasurer.

Mr. George H. Ellis was the moderator and appropriate resolutions were adopted on the resignation of Mr. Otis.
The plan of rentals for the new building was accepted and during a recess, the seats were sold by Mr. Hutchinson.
The first seat was bought by Mr. J. E.
Bacon for a premium of $200, and the highest price paid was $250 by Mr. C. P.
Hall. A total of over $6300 was bid for premiums, a figure which is deemed very satisfactory by the church officials.

There was a discussion as to making changes in the church service and music, but informal votes showed that the Society was well satisfied with the present service.

CHANNING QUARTET

The Song Cycle "In a Persian Garden"

At the musicale in the Channing Church parlors Monday evening, Nov. 5 at 8.15 o'clock the Song Cycle "In a Persian Garden" will be given by the Channing Quartet, Mrs. Eleanor Fox Allen, soprano, Miss Alice Mabel Stan-away, contralto, Mr. Allan C. Prescott, tenor, Mr. Robert C. Whitten, bass, with Mr. Henry T. Wade at the piano. The words are selected from Rumiyaat of Omar Khayyam have been set to music by Liza Lehman. The Cycle is well known and ranks among the finest compositions for a solo quartet. Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson will give explanatory remarks preceding the Cycle. Tickets at fifty cents each are on sale at Hubbard's Drug Store.

About Town

The 9th annual meeting of the Newton District Nursing association will be held at the Nurses' Home at the Newton Hospital, Monday, November 5th, at 3. There will be a business session with the election of officers.

The annual meeting of the Mothers' Rest association was held Thursday in the vestry of the First church. Mrs. E.
R. Benton, the president, presided, and prayer was made by Rev. E. M. Noyes.
During the year, 56 mothers and 53 children received the benefit of a vacation.
A wagonette was purchased which proved a source of much pleasure and improvements were made to the property. Miss Winifred Woods, who acted as nurse during the last illness of Miss Creelman, also filled the position of matron. Mrs. C. S. Merrill, the new matron, gave a report of the life at the home and the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. E. R. Benton; vice presidents, Mrs. Samuel Ward, Mrs. H. H. Kendall; secretary, Mrs. Samuel S. Widger; treasurer, Mrs. C. B. Cady; auditor, Mrs. E. D. Burr; directors Mrs. J. H.

FOR SENATOR, FIRST MIDDLESEX DISTRICT

JAMES H. VAHEY
OF WATERTOWN.

Regular Democratic Nominee, endorsed by Independent Republicans Election Day, Tuesday, November 6, 1906.

JAMES H. VAHEY

the regular Democratic nominee for senator in the first Middlesex District, was born in Watertown. He is thirty-four years of age; is married and has four children. Was educated in the public schools of Watertown, and was graduated from the high school in 1888; in 1892 was graduated from the Boston University Law School, with the degree LL. B. Was admitted to the bar in February, 1893, when twenty-one years of age. The first year he voted he was elected a member of the school board in Watertown, and was reelected in 1896.
In 1899 he was chairman of the board.
He was elected to the board of health in 1895; was moderator of the town meeting in 1895 and 1896; in 1897 was elected to the board of selectmen, and served continuously for four years; in 1899 and 1900 was chairman of the board. Each year that he ran for the office of selectman he received the highest vote of any candidate at the polls. He has always been actively identified with Watertown and its interests, and is at present one of the incorporators of the Watertown Savings Bank. In 1904 he was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention at St. Louis from the twelfth Congressional District; has been a member of the Democratic State Committee for three years; has been a member of the Democratic Town Committee for several years, and for two years its chairman.

Mr. Vahey is the senior member of the law firm of Vahey, Innes & Mansfield, with offices at 18 Tremont street, Boston. He has had an extensive practice in the courts; is a member of the bar in the Massachusetts Supreme Court, United States Circuit and District Courts, and the Supreme Court of the United States. He was senior counsel for the defendant in the capital case of Commonwealth v. Charles L. Tucker, the most important murder case in the recent history of Massachusetts. The trial of that case is so recent that it is, undoubtedly, familiar to every newspaper reader. He is a member of the Middlesex Bar Association and the Bar Association of the City of Boston, and one of the proprietors of the Social Law Library. He is a member of Watertown Council Knights of Columbus; Division 14, A. O. H.; Gen. Guiney Council Royal Arcanum, and has just been elected to the Waltham Lodge of Elks.

After his nomination by the Democratic Convention his candidacy received the endorsement of a large number of republicans in the western end of the district. They were so enthusiastic for his candidacy that nearly four hundred of them signed nomination papers in his behalf, so that he will appear upon the ballot not only as the Democratic nominee, but as having received the endorsement of the Independent Republicans.

Samuel Brewer, Mrs. G. E. B. Putnam, Mrs. H. R. Luther, Mrs. Henry J. Ide.

The 1906 Gospel series, Sunday evening sermons, by Rev. J. E. Charlton, Methodist Episcopal church, Newton Highlands, are as follows: October 21, "Lost in a Desert"; October 28, "Found but almost gone"; November 4, "A Young Man's Advice to a Young Woman"; November 11, "The only Joy"; November 18, "A Soul for $16"; November 25, "Thanksgiving—Jesus our Host."

A fine song service for 15 minutes before a short sermon. A chorus under Mr. Chas. Noble will lead the singing —new books of Gospel Songs. You are cordially invited. Services at 7.30.

Mr. John Hermann Loud will give his 11th free recital (the 15th in all) in the First Baptist church of Newton Centre next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. He will be assisted by Mrs. Lura Parks Ridley, alto.

The members of Mount Ida Council enjoyed an entertainment in Dennison hall, Newtonville, last Tuesday evening.
Among the interesting features were instrumental and vocal recitations by Mr. Frank Russell.

Mrs. Alvin R. Bailey of Richardson street entertained the Signal Lantern Society, Children of the Revolution, recently at the first regular meeting. The assisting hostesses were Mrs. C. H.
Bailey, Mrs. E. J. Cox and Mrs. A. R.
Bradbury. Committees were appointed to change the by-laws and to prepare a calendar for the year. Mr. Rice spoke of the Work of the Fathers' and Mothers' Club and a social hour followed.
Mrs. C. H. Bond and Mrs. W. B. Farmer presided at the refreshment tables.
The house was prettily decorated with flags and flowers.

Mrs. Daniel S. Emery opened her beautiful residence, 70 Waterville Ave., Newton, last Wednesday from 3 to 5.30 o'clock for a reception to the members of Sarah Hull Chapter, D. R. The hostesses were Miss Emma F. Barker, Mrs.
Lewis C. Coffin, Mrs. Daniel S. Emery, Mrs. Oliver M. Fisher, Mrs. Frank R.
Stubbs and Mrs. George H. Wright.
Mrs. Ralph C. Emery artistically rendered a group of songs and Mrs. Alva C. Cummings read two selections in a very pleasing manner. Refreshments were served in the prettily decorated dining room and the guests greatly enjoyed the social occasion.

At the annual meeting of the Congregational Society of Auburndale the following officers and committees were elected: Clerk, William H. Blood;

Among Women

The last meeting of the Pierian Club was held Oct. 24 with Mrs. Hemphill of Boylston street. The papers for the afternoon were "Sea Anemone", Mrs. D.
Billings; "Jelly Fish", Mrs. C. R. Brown;
"Coral", Mrs. E. C. Cooper and a poem,
"Apoptrophe to the Ocean" by Mrs. S.
A. Thompson. Two pleasing features of the afternoon were the quotations on the ocean by the members, and a song selection by the club chorus. A few moments were given to current events.

The Newton Ladies Home Circle will hold a whist at the residence of Mrs. Albert Plummer, Lexington St. Auburndale, on Wednesday, Oct. 31 from 2.30 to 4.30 P. M.

At the meeting of the Newton Highlands Monday Club on October 22 the Government of India was presented in three papers. The next meeting will be a celebration of the club's twentieth birthday at the Newton Club.

—The funeral of Joseph Pecci of Border street, who was killed at the Boston and Albany Railroad near Auburndale, was held Thursday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Bernard's Church. Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Charles J. Galligan, assistant pastor of the church, and the interment was in Calvary cemetery, Waltham.

—There was a good audience present at the Lincoln Park Baptist church last evening to hear a paper on "Famous Folk Song," which was given by Mrs. Jessie Inman Gammons. The "Primo Coro," gave examples under the direction of Mrs. Gammons with Mrs. E. F. Snell, organist and pianist, and the lecture was illustrated with views from the stereopticon and reflectoscope.

While operating a milling machine at the Stanley motor shops on Maple street, Monday afternoon, John Hagley, 34, a machinist, had two fingers of his left hand cut off, and but for the prompt assistance of Edward Butler, a fellow workman, would have undoubtedly lost his hand, as it was fast being drawn in to the machine.

Hagley was removed to a nearby physicians office, where his wounds were dressed.

GOVERNOR GUILD.

Governor Guild has answered his critics in the matter of appointment of Hon. William F. Dana of this city as a justice of the Superior Court in these words:—"My opponent's principal newspaper organ states that Judge Dana was rewarded for voting against the overtime bill by a seat on the bench of the Superior Court. This is falsehood No. 9. It is as preposterous a lie as it would be to say that Judge Rugg was appointed by me to the Supreme bench because on one occasion in a libel suit he acted as attorney for the Boston American's publishers.

"One word more in regard to Judge Dana. The overtime bill was defeated on March 23. The first intimation that President Dana received in regard to the judgeship was long afterwards. He was confirmed as judge on June 20. He never asked for this appointment. He never knew I was considering his name. His appointment, now attacked, was at the time commended by legislators in both houses, including members who had been prominent in their advocacy of the overtime bill. I appointed William F. Dana because of a conviction that he possessed those qualifications that will make an honorable, upright, learned and just judge.

"Let me say further, however, that if after this statement, any man pretends he believes that Judge Dana sought or that I offered or granted his appointment to the bench of Massachusetts on political grounds or as a corrupt reward for his action on a matter of legislation. I do not want his vote. A man who would circulate such a story must himself be actuated by motives too contemptible to fit him to vote intelligently on any subject.

THEATRES

Tremont Theatre.—An announcement of more than passing interest to music lovers, is made by Henry W. Savage to the effect that on Monday next, Oct. 29, he will offer the first presentation in English in Boston of Giacomo Puccini's latest work, the beautiful musical setting of John Luther Long's exquisite Japanese tragedy, "Madame Butterfly." The production will be made at the ly's to sing the exacting role. He has also secured enough English-singing artists to give three complete casts. It is the opinion abroad that no one singer can take the role of Cho-Cho-San in "Madame Butterfly" more than three times a week without injuring the voice. Mr. Savage proposes to give eight performances a week and the three prima donnas who will alternate in the role. Most of these singers are strangers to the American stage. Frau Elza Szamosy, the beautiful Hungarian artiste, was

Tremont Theatre and the engagement is for only two weeks. The production, cast, chorus and orchestra, supplied by Mr. Savage for the American presentation of "Madame Butterfly" are without an equal in the annals of grand opera in English. Mr. Savage's agents have visited the principal European opera houses and engaged no less than three "Butterflies" secured on Puccini's personal endorsement. The composer considered her to be the ideal "Butterfly." The second singer of the role is the gifted Danish prima donna, Louise Janssen, who is considered to be the greatest Wagnerian singer in Europe by music lovers of the French capital. An American singer, Miss Rena Vivienne, a pupil of Maurel, completes the list. Walter Rothwell will act as musical director, and he will have the assistance of Albert Feith from the Royal Opera Berlin, and Herr Cornelia Dopfer, of Amsterdam.

Keith's Theatre.—Bandmaster Amers has no reason to complain of the reception Boston has given to himself and his band, while the management of Keith's Theatre should surely be congratulated and thanked for bringing such a superb organization to New England. The program played this week have shown the band to be the peer of any concert band ever heard in this country, while the personal hit made by Mr. Amers has never been excelled by any leader. He is a born conductor. The discipline of his players is perfect, and it is rare, indeed, to hear any body of players, whether band or orchestra, respond to the baton with such faultless precision. Rarer still is the gift, which Mr. Amers possesses in a marked degree, of conducting gracefully. His every movement is expressive, and without indulging in anything even approaching gesticulation, he puts so much suggestion into his beat that merely to watch him is to see the music translated into motion. The coming week will be the last the band can play in Boston, as their tour is now all mapped out up to the time they sail for home. George Evans bids fair to make "Waltz Me Around Again, Willie" as familiar as his "Honey Boy" and "Good Old-Summer-time." He is unquestionably the most popular monologist who comes to Keith's. A more sensational act than that of the Ussesems has yet to be seen in this country. It is simply marvellous. Will Rogers, the cowboy who does interesting stunts with his horse and lariat; Lynn, Faye and Young, three bright girls who are sure to make a big winning; Violet Black and her company in a comedieta entitled "A West Point Regulation"; Josephine Gassman and her cute pickaninies; Dave Mowlin, the versatile vocalist; Cherry and Bates, cycling comedians; the Three Mitchells, "real coon" singers and dancers; the Mozarts in a novel terpsichorean specialty; De Chunt and his educated fox terriers, and the Kinetograph will round out the program. The concert to be given next Sunday evening is for the benefit of the Daily Industrial School for Destitute Children. Mrs. Langtry is announced as a coming attraction.

Grand Opera House.—"Queen of the Highlanders," the new melodrama owned, staged and produced by A. H. Woods, and which will be the next week's attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House, can boast of more surprises, stirring situations, thrilling and exciting climaxes and scenic effects to the square inch than any play of its kind written in the past decade. From the rise of the curtain to the finish of the play, action is incessant. There is no attempt at exaggeration; every scene and incident in this absorbing play being true to life, and a faithful reproduction of the places they are supposed to represent. Mr. Woods has spared no expense in giving the play the setting and cast it is entitled to, and that he will be rewarded for his efforts there is little doubt. Matinees will be given as usual on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Bijou Theatre.—The merriest of the late Charles Hoyt's farces "A Trip to Chinatown" will be on the bill next week at the Bijou Theatre, and John Craig and his company are sure to give a larger measure of delight in this popular play than anything in which they have yet been seen. The piece is a most amusing concoction and is full of those eccentric character studies which Hoyt knew so well how to draw. While many of the Hoyt farces long ago have been forgotten "A Trip to Chinatown" always will live for it is full of life and vivacity from start to finish. Hereafter the patrons of the Saturday matinees at the Bijou will not be allowed the privilege of going into Keith's after the performance because of the enormous crowds; but this privilege will be allowed the first five afternoons of the week as usual.

Fine furs made to order in first-class style by Henry Rebnor, 140 Boylston street, Boston, will surely give you great satisfaction. The best of workmen only are employed, and if you want a good fit and up-to-date styles call on him.

Newton Federation Meeting

The fall meeting of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs was held at the New Church parlors, Newtonville, on Tuesday afternoon, October 23, in accordance with the general spirit of the Federation, to devote time to the consideration of subjects of vital interest to the community, it was decided to present for the program of this meeting a description of the School City as it has been tried in the various public schools of the state. Mr. Ralph Albertson, Secretary of the School City Association, brought to the members the results of "Two Years of the School City in Massachusetts."

He explained that by the School City is meant the organization of the pupils of a school after the pattern of a city government. Where there are a number of rooms, as in the city schools, each room represents a ward or in the case of only one general room, the different rows are considered wards. A mayor, aldermen and other officials are elected by the pupils. Certain other officers, as a chief of police, policemen, etc., are appointed as is customary in real cities and peace and good order are carefully guarded by these officers. When arrests are made a judge from among the pupils hears the case and renders a decision. Back of all this is a charter which is granted by the teachers, the principal standing in relation to the school much as the governor does in actual affairs, while he is also the supreme court. No principal should interfere with the workings of the system unless absolutely necessary. All the successful "cities" are operated under a charter and for the most part these charters are adhered to with faithfulness. These "cities" have been carried on for a year or more in many of the public schools in the state and have been successful in every case where the teachers were truly interested and gave their sympathy to the movement, while failure has come when the teachers did not feel a real interest or lacked a real knowledge of the subject.

The object of the School City, he said, is that the children may grow up into better citizens, that they may gain a practical knowledge of civics and as a result a better state of morals will be developed in the future. There are at present about twenty school cities in Massachusetts and about one hundred outside of this state. Mr. Albertson quoted the opinion of many teachers in regard to it and all who have had success are heartily in favor with the system. A principal from a Connecticut school in answering a set of questions sent out from the Massachusetts Federation relative to the results of this work, stated that the work of discipline had been less arduous for the teachers and the nervous strain much less severe upon them since its adoption, while there had been improvement in conduct in all parts of the school building.

There was a short discussion at the close of the lecture, after which the members adjourned to an adjoining parlor for a social hour, during which tea was served by the social committee. Before the lecture the members were charmed by three songs from the group entitled "A Lover of Damascus," rendered by Mrs. G. R. Pulsifer accompanied by Mrs. Albert P. Carter.

People who insist upon the latest and the most practical in educational methods accord to Burdett College, of 18 Boylston Street, Boston, the leadership. In no other local institution is practical, as opposed to theoretical, knowledge so strenuously insisted upon as at Burdett, by its method of Actual Business from the Start. The atmosphere of confidence, harmony and enthusiasm at this school is almost ideal. That a situation is found for each graduate eloquently testifies to the esteem in which Burdett students are held by business men.—The Boston Traveler, Sept. 28, 1906.

THE CHURCH AND STATE

Speeches at Unitarian Club Meeting

By Rev. Dr. Eliot, Hon. J. D. Long and Hon. J. W. Weeks

President Hutchinson, in calling the meeting to order, spoke as follows:

On behalf of the Unitarian Club of Newton I extend to each person present, a very cordial greeting and welcome. The custom of inviting to our meetings all interested in our topics will be continued.

We shall meet not entirely for entertainment but to make new, and strengthen old, friendships, and to consider with well qualified speakers matters vital to our life, individual and collective.

This evening we are to consider the Church and the State.

Our first speaker is the President of our National Organization. We honor him as our efficient chief executive officer.

Those in a position to estimate his work in detail have gratifying knowledge of what has been, and is being, accomplished as a result of his clear thinking and effective activity.

I present Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, President of the American Unitarian Association.

Address of Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, D.D.

It takes a good deal of pull to get me away from the family fireside of an autumn evening, but when a successful man of affairs, who puts his time and his ability and his money without stint into public-spirited enterprises, into the service of the city and the church and the denomination, comes and asks you to do something, why, that pull is an irresistible one. This club, gentlemen, has been much favored in years past in its presiding officers. You never had a president more reliable and capable and lovable than the one you now have. (Applause.)

You ask me to say a word about "The Church and the State." Not many years ago I stood beside the coffin of a very dear friend of mine in boyhood and manhood days, a man many of you knew and loved, alert, magnanimous, high-minded, public spirited, the very type of New England chivalry, the youngest member of Congress of his day, universally beloved, Sherman Hoar had died of disease contracted in the fever stricken camp at Chickamauga in the Spanish war. With me stood his brother, Samuel Hoar, also now gone over the divide. Sam Hoar turned to me as we stood there together, and said, "Eliot, if that man accomplished anything in this life, if he had any power to serve this community and this commonwealth, he got it out of the teaching of this dear old church."

I ventured to answer that there was something in a good stock, something in good New England blood, something in healthy environment and education. But no, "He got it out of the teaching of this dear old church." I do not know what the gentlemen who are to follow me are going to say, but where did John Weeks and John Long get their power to serve this community and this nation? Why, they got it out of some New England ideals that are in the blood, that are nourished and upheld by the associations of common worship and neighborly life. It is in the church, after all, that we are dealing with the sources of power. The sources of power—the rush of the stream that turns the busy wheel of traffic, commerce, manufacture, but with the beginnings of things, with the fundamental impulses and dynamics of human life and public spirited service.

We are too apt, are we not, to measure national worth and power by the facts of our material prosperity, by the number of bushels of wheat we raise or the number of miles of railroad track that we lay, and so on. Material prosperity, of course, is a mighty good thing. It implies and permits the beauty and the civilization that we crave. But after all, we all know that the higher civilization means more than the accumulation of things, and the higher patriotism means more than the development of our material resources. The last after things of this world keeps a nation half civilized. It is the love of invisible ideals that makes and keeps a state great. When a nation catches sight of an ideal—an ideal of national character and development and opportunity—and then adapts its institutions to the development of that manly idealism in its citizens, then it begins to write history and people begin to read it and draw inspiration from it.

If you were to ask me to sum up in a single phrase the purpose of a church, the mission of these ministers here behind me—I think I should say that it is the turning of sight into insight. The difference between men is that some see facts and some see what facts stand for and represent and predict. Before any fact appeals to us with potency it has got to stir the imagination and energize the will. It is imagination, insight, foresight—it is what, when we come here for Sunday worship, we call faith, that permits people to succeed in business, to cultivate arts and sciences, to interpret history, to sustain the laws and cherish patriotism, to uphold commerce.

Just take it in your everyday affairs; to what is success in business due? Why, it is not to be won without industry and integrity, but most of all, if I mistake not, it is due just to intelligent foresight, to the capacity to frame a picture of the relation of means to ends and risks to prizes, and then to shape that dream into substance. To whom do we owe the triumphs of the scientific habit of mind that seems to us so peculiarly reliable and definite? Never to the men merely of the measuring line; always to the men who have dared to go beyond the things of sense and sound into the realms where what we have to call faith is their only guide. Patriotism—is it just a knowledge of our country's history? Strike out the ideal, the ideal of America that every one of us cherishes—strike that out and make our loyalty material and mechanical only, and all that we like to call patriotism is gone. It needs the touch of the poetic and the imaginative to make it real.

Or take what to my untutored mind appears to be so dry a thing as the law. Does anybody suppose that courts and sheriffs maintain the public peace? Not a bit of it. Our legislative enactments and our sheep-bound law books do not uphold the public order. They are only the instruments. No direct or visible pressure holds in check the brutal elements of human nature, but rather a fine and invisible network of interests and reverences and fears and shames and loves—these sentiments in and through the people—give to our laws their majesty.

Is it not so of history? Dates do not make history, or the records of great battles or movements of population or what not. History is in those things plus what the seer beholds in the chamber of his imagery. There the historic imagination restores the pictures whose colors have faded and the reality and the movement that the annals fail to preserve. I suppose you can reconstruct the essential history of England up to the 16th century out of Shakespeare's plays. I do not know how it is with the rest of you, but I am prepared to say that my knowledge of Scottish history is chiefly derived from Scott's novels and my knowledge of French history is chiefly derived from Dumas. In those writers we find the insight that seizes on the chief points, that understands the perspective of things; and the relation of cause and consequence.

So am I not right in saying that the fundamental impulses of human society are these matters of sentiment, of fear and hope and love, the things that are but nurtured and upheld, though not altogether, in that institution that we call the church. "The value of a nation," said Lowell, "is weighed in scales more delicate than the balance of trade. On the map you can cover Athens with a pin point and Judea with a finger tip, yet in those insignificant places the impulses have been given that have not ceased to direct progressive civilization." You and I may rejoice in the energy which overcomes the brute forces of nature and plows the prairie and harnesses the torrents to its wheel and rivets state to state with bands of steel. These achievements stir our just pride. But the real boast of our generation ought to be, not what the people get, but what the people are. Our patriotism ought to take its supreme satisfaction not in the visible prosperity that our land enjoys but in the moral forces that really make that prosperity possible; not in the consequences but in the causes.

After all, personality, upright, alert, public-spirited personality—that is the real lever of progress. It is possible, I know, to hold that this kind of idealism that I am talking about works most effectively through organization or legislation or the associated action of people, but to my mind it works best through personal insight and sympathy and individual inspiration. Organization indeed magnifies the power of an individual a hundredfold, but the use of the wonderful mechanism of modern civilization is more than ever dependent on the initiative of the individual. The source of the power that makes the mechanism leap into effectiveness is in the vision and the cooperating will of some master mind. Let us lay down, then, our tracks of progress along which our hopes may speed, but let us not forget the essential spark that is going to start the machinery in action and the visions that are going to carry with them the possibility of fulfillment.

What a man is always stands between what he knows and what he does, and it is the church that primarily deals with what a man is. And is there not courage and confidence for us in just that view of the situation?—the remembrance of those individuals, that, trained in the New England churches in the New England ideals, have worthily served the commonwealth? If ever materialism seems to overwhelm us, why then I turn to remember the utter homeliness and simplicity of men like John A. Andrew or Hannibal Hamlin and the thousands of New Englanders who, following the example of the fathers, have of choice sought "plain living and high thinking." If our political life seems an interminable jargon of economic fallacies on silly violence or the effort to arouse class antagonism, then I remember the firmness and refinement of men like George William Curtis and Roger Wolcott. Or if our literature grows feeble and the scandalous gossip of the great city in the newspaper seems about all the intellectual stimulus that people can stand, why, then I remember the pure fire of Whittier and the sparkle of Holmes and the insight of Emerson and the imperial uplift of Lowell. Or if religion itself seems to grow feeble and corrupt, on the one hand the clamor of empty noise and on the other hand a formal routine, then I remember the spiritual insight of Channing and the manly intensity of Phillips Brooks.

What the present age needs, then, what this dear land of ours needs, is what the Prayer Book calls "the sober, righteous and Godly life." The man who hides himself behind what some people call the skeptical and the churchless spirit of this age and makes it the apology for his own indifference or his own sin, believe me, very seriously mistaken in his impression of the times. He is like the man out in the Rocky Mountain country where I used to live, who thinks himself to be standing in the midst of a barren desert when really he is standing in the very garden of the Lord. All he needs to do is turn out on the receptive soil the fertilizing streams which await his guidance and use. The man who throws a "sober, righteous and Godly life" into the activities and the agitations of our own day and generation is contributing just the power that we need and crave. And the hills and the valley about him will shout for joy at their redemption by his practical idealism. (Applause.)

President Hutchinson: Especially speaking for the State, and he also does very well in the Church, is our representative at Washington. Our worthiness to be thus represented constantly suggests our individual responsibility of living up to our representative, which you will agree is no easy matter. The Hon. John W. Weeks of Newton.

Address of Hon. John W. Weeks

With the conversion of Constantine the Great in the early part of the fourth century the Christian religion became thoroughly established in the most powerful nation in the world at that time and gradually the Christian church acquired the control of civil government and for practically a thousand years after that it ruled the world, not only in secular, but temporal affairs, but the reaction came and men returned to the idea that it was the business of Christianity to concern itself with religious rather than civil affairs and very seldom since the sixteenth century has the head of any church organization attempted as such to exercise temporal power, and generally speaking today such controversies have passed away; but we still see that the King of England is nominally the head of the Established church in that country; that the Czar of Russia is at the head of the Greek church and the Sultan of Turkey is practically the head of the Mohammedan church. Notwithstanding this seemingly intimate relation between church and state in the countries referred to, there is no country in the world in which the relationship is as close as in the United States, where we have not and never have had an established church, for nearly all the churches of this country and especially in those acting under the Congregational form the people themselves are the church, it being an essentially democratic form of church government. In those early periods referred to the Government was vested in a King and an aristocracy, the people as such having nothing whatever to do about making or administering laws, but we have changed all that; we have no aristocracy or inherited rulers and never have had. The people themselves are the government and very briefly I am going to attempt to demonstrate that the same qualities are required in the right-thinking man connected with a church and the good citizen and to show, incidentally, that they are, generally speaking, one and the same person.

There will not, I am sure, be dissent from my assumption that every church in this country, whatever may be its denominational belief, stands for intelligence, respect for law and properly constituted authority, honesty, truth, love and service, and especially that these qualities shall not be distinguishable on particular occasions, or at some definite time, but that they shall be the ground work of Christian life in full force and exercised at all times. In other words, the church provides the moral code which not only governs our church relations, but our whole existence. If this is true it is essential that men identify themselves with the church. When they drift away from it they lose, to a certain extent, this influence. It is not sufficient for a man to say that he sympathizes with the church or he believes that the church has good influence in the community, unless he in some way connects himself with it he will neither get for himself the entire benefit which the church can give, nor will he do for the community all that he should do as an example of reasonable doing and right thinking.

If a man, for instance, said that he believed the Masonic order was doing a good work in the community and he sympathized with that work, but did not join the Masons, he would neither get the benefit of the association which, joining would give him, nor would he be able to assist in the good work which we will presume that order is doing. Another man may say that the Newton Hospital, for example, is an organization distinctly beneficial to all the people of this community, but unless he is willing to connect himself with that work by contributing to its support or in some other way assisting its operation, he is not benefiting that work which he believes is for the best interests of this community neither can the church, representing as it does, the best moral life of the community, exert its best uses unless people identify themselves with it, so I say, let us in some way connect ourselves with some church organization.

Now I intend to try to show that there is the same necessity in political life for all of those virtues which the church represents and that man must exercise them in order to make himself a good citizen. He must be intelligent. As I have said, the people of this country are the government; they are organized for purposes which will be beneficial to all. They elect representatives who make laws which are intended to provide such results that our society will be an orderly one. Indirectly, the administration of the laws is in the hands of the people. This being the case, how essential it is that every citizen should be not only educated for the ordinary duties of life, but that he should be especially educated in political and social questions. For these reasons we not only provide that children may be sent to school, but we insist that they shall be sent to school and we have provided all the machinery of government which compels the child being taken from its taskmaster if necessary and placed where it belongs in a public school. Any other course on our part would be flying in the face of Providence, for while a King might possibly be an ignorant, unintelligent man and still conduct a reasonably good government, a community of kings who were ignorant and vicious would be a hopeless combination to organize or conduct an orderly government. There are people who have a notion that our government is a good one because it is democratic, but it is quite apparent to anyone who thinks of the subject that it will be better to be governed by one ignorant sovereign than by a million such. Therefore, we have, as I have stated, provided that man shall be intelligent; that man must be intelligent; in other words, we must have an intelligent government.

He must have respect for law and constituted authority. In other words, while he is himself a part of the government, he must show obedience to the government. It is not sufficient for a man to say that he does not believe in certain laws; his individual judgment does not exempt him from his obligation to obey them. For instance, he may live in a community where a majority of the citizens have said that the liquor saloon is a menace to the best life of the city. He believes that this is not a good law; that banishing the saloon infringes on his personal liberty. Is it right for him, under such circumstances, to evade the law, to encourage and to patronize the selling of liquor in a secret way for the purpose of evading the law? On the contrary, of course no man can be a worthy citizen whatever may be his judgment on the right of the individual to drink liquor, if he does such a thing.

A matter of fact, every form of government is to a certain extent, an infringement on personal liberty. Whenever a man joins a community he must submit to the restrictions which that community places on the liberty of all. That is the privilege which he pays for living in society. If he does not like these restrictions he is privileged to do what he can to change them by argument or otherwise, but in the meantime he must surrender his personal rights and abide by the law of all the people as expressed in the laws of the land.

He must be honest. Every man is a unit of the government. He receives from it the protection of all his interests, the opportunity to educate his children and equal privileges in all that goes to make up our complex life.

Under such circumstances is a man honest if he neglects to do his share of the work in such a community? Take for example the man who neglects to pay his taxes. In order to carry on the organization which we have mutually agreed to form and to maintain, it is necessary to raise money to pay for all of the numerous requirements of civilized society. There is a man in this community who has given his assent to this organization, who is a citizen by birth, is a qualified voter and has property valued at $100,000. The protection which he has received has enabled him to accumulate this, but notwithstanding these obligations he deliberately deceives the tax assessor, so that instead of paying what his pro rata should be he is paying one-half that amount. He may possibly boast of having accomplished such a result and consider it a smart thing to do, but what is the result? It is necessary to raise for all purposes in this city a million dollars and if he pays one-half of what he should pay if he were paying his just proportion he is cheating the State or the city to that extent and if he cheats the State he is cheating the other members of the community in which he lives, because they are the State. In other words, he is deliberately avoiding his responsibilities to the State and putting the obligations which are his on the shoulders of others, for of course if he does not pay his pro rata others must pay more than theirs. In this instance, therefore, this citizen who is part of the State, while he may be honest or think he is honest in his dealings between himself and other men as individuals, cannot be an honest man if he does what I have outlined and he is deliberately turning away from one of the very essential qualities which go to make up the good citizen, and which the church prescribes.

He must know the truth. It is a puzzling question in our complex life to differentiate the true from the false. There is naturally an infinite number of standards. What is assumed to be a truth in one locality may be considered of little value in another. We hear the expression—"When in Rome do as the Romans do." That is based on the thought that even if the standard of the Romans is not our standard we should accept their customs when we are enjoying their hospitality. To determine, however, what truth really is, one must develop the moral sense, must have earnestness of purpose and desire to do the things which are true and he must at the same time have intellectual capacity developed and must have ability to think. Young men, especially, must be greatly puzzled to know in social and political life whether the standards which they have learned at their own home, which, quite likely, are not the standards where they complete their education or where they start in their business or professional careers, are correct, and it would be much too difficult and too prolonged a process for me to attempt to point out what is true and what is not true.

We are constantly in this country in the midst of political discussions. Men exploit themselves and their friends as reformers, as seekers after the truth. Their opponents deny this and claim that the virtues which they or their candidates possess are the truth. The only suggestion I can make is that a man must have sufficient clearness of perception to separate the false claimant from the true; that he must determine whether the things which a man claims are inherently and everlastingly right or the reverse. No man can base his standard on any other foundation. If experience and previous record show that a claimant or a principle has been for the best interests of all the people, then it may be reasonably presumed that they, to a large extent, at least, represent the truth and it is most important in our political life to determine the true from the false if we are to maintain the standards on which the Republic was founded and which have lived down to the present day.

He must have love.—and when I say love in this sense, I mean patriotism,—love for his country, and it is essential that this quality of patriotism be not determined by false standards but by true standards. The man who is commonly reputed to be a patriotic man is the man who is ready and willing to engage in the defence of his country in time of war. We associate patriotism with war and its surroundings and undoubtedly this is one essential form of patriotism; on the other hand, it may be quite the reverse. There are professional fighters who are brave men, going from one country to another serving under any standard provided that standard furnishes the excitement of strife. It would be ridiculous to call such men patriots simply because they love to fight and moreover it is just as essential that one should be prepared to live for one's country as to die for it if he is a real patriot.

The man who builds a railroad, developing untitled areas, opening up new territories on which to build homes, who irrigates a barren and waste country and thereby develops large areas of tillable land, who develops any new industry furnishing remunerative employment for men and women, who finds in the weed or the plant which has been a thorn in the flesh a means of furnishing food and nutriment for man, who literally makes two blades of grass grow where one has grown before,—is quite as much a patriot, may have quite as much love of country as he who is prepared to die for his country under the most heroic circumstances.

He must do service.—which means that he should do for others those things which others cannot hope to do for themselves. I have in my mind men in this audience who are not only willing to perform the stipulated duty which as citizens they should perform,—that is to say, pay their just taxes, vote at caucuses and elections, etc., but these men do more than that. They give their time and their ability and their money to aid those institutions in a community which are established for the benefit of others having less time and money and ability and who need assistance in various ways. I can see in my mind's eye now a man who, although he may be busy in his own private enterprises, gladly turns aside to become, for instance, a trustee in the Newton Hospital, devoting valuable hours to that work without any compensation whatever. He becomes, at the solicitation of his friends, an alderman of the City of Newton, an honorable position in itself, but in addition, a position which gives him an opportunity to do valuable work for the city and he devotes his time which he would, perhaps, he glad to devote to his family and his friends to this work. He does not limit his activities to these particular things which I have instanced, but extends them to the whole field of operations which organized society has brought to bear on the necessities of mankind. More than that, for he gives of his private means to support these institutions. Now that kind of a man exhibits service of the highest order, because he sacrifices his personal wealth, which is too dear to many men,—he sacrifices his own leisure and the comfort which he might get from social relations with his neighbors and friends. He sacrifices that brain and will power which God has given him all for the benefit of those who live about him,—his neighbors, his fellow-citizens, in fact, the State. One more thought in this connection. It is essential that the citizen shall have these qualities if we are to obtain the best results from Government. If the material used to make the cloth for the sails on a large ship were such that it had been condemned,—if the fibre were rotten before it was woven into the cloth, we can be quite sure that while the cloth itself might look well and when it were made into sails it might stand the strain of ordinary conditions,—if the hurricane arose, the cloth made of such poor quality or material would not withstand the strain,—the sails would be blown out of the bolt-ropes and the ship would inevitably be wrecked.

In the same way it is essential that these units, these citizens who make up the State shall be of such material that the whole structure shall be of a standard sufficient to withstand, not the prosperities and pleasant conditions which we are so apt to meet in our life, but the strains which come in a financial and in many other ways.

Governor Long can readily corroborate me in the statement which I make that a discerning man looking over the National House of Representatives can pretty nearly tell the locality from which a man comes and the kind of people which he represents. We frequently see in the newspapers that the House of Representatives is not a strong body, that many of its members are men of low mental calibre and exhibit a low standard of morality. I deny this assertion, for from my own observation I think directly the contrary is true; but it is equally true that if there is a man in the House of Representatives who is not of the quality which he should be, who has low public ideals, you may be equally sure that he comes from a section where the citizens, the units, are not alive to their duty, where they leave things in the hands of irresponsible men who work the public and the public treasury for their own personal benefit. Such being the case, their acts and their ideas are quite sure to be reflected in the man who is sent to Washington to represent them.

Furthermore, the church teaches that man shall not have one standard of morality for today and another tomorrow, but that he shall base his action on such a standard that he is inherently right and that he shall follow that standard because it is right every day and at all times. Exactly the same condition is applicable to our citizenship and consequently to our State. We very often see a community get into the hands of bad, if not irresponsible men; the result is graft and debauchery of every kind. Finally, after this sort of thing has been condoned until the feelings of right-thinking people are outraged, they get together, organize some kind of a reform association and proceed, if possible, to overcome the representatives of evil doing and put the government into the hands of those who will administer it for the benefit of all. These men are spasmodic reformers; they are the kind of men, who, to a certain extent, approve of good government, believe that it is right, desire to live in a well governed community, but do not join the organization itself to any other extent than to give it their personal approval. Ordinarily, these men do not vote, take no part in public discussions, they have no interest in politics because they say that all politics are more or less bad, so that they have themselves to blame if the government gets into the hands of irresponsible and unreliable men. Once having put the government back in the hands of those who are competent to manage it honestly and efficiently, they go back to their own personal duties, satisfied that they have done their full duty by the community. The grafter who lives on the public is watching for just such an opportunity as this and no sooner is the hand of the honest citizen off the throttle than he once more commences to work the community and in a short time the same bad elements are back in places of power and the work has to be done over. It is unnecessary to say that men even of the quality which I have described, whose thoughts and acts are right when they are aroused, are not the best of citizens. They are apt to be the kind of men who occasionally go to church, who generally conduct themselves properly on the Sabbath Day and possibly for one day after, but having done that they think they have done their full duty and in their private relations with mankind, they drift into those acts which are not for the benefit of all, but which are essentially selfish.

Very often we see a whole community neglecting the opportunities which it has to benefit itself and posterity. I remember when I was a boy living in Northern New Hampshire, across the White Mountains, that those mountains were covered with that beautiful growth of spruce and pine timber which has since been the foundation of so much wealth, not even the people in that section did not appreciate the value of this growth or the magnificent beauty of the mountains themselves of which this growth was an essential part, or its value as a conservator of moisture, so the State of New Hampshire sold large areas of this mountain section at the nominal price of 25 cents an acre, without a single protest as far as I have been able to learn; the citizens of New Hampshire were not thinking of the future, they were not thinking of what was best, in any sense, for themselves or posterity, but were neglectful of their duties to such an extent that they left such an important matter in the hands of officials who were not alive to the best interests of the State but frittered away the assets of the State as I have described. That was only forty years ago, but now we have an entirely different state of affairs. These lands have passed into the hands of men who have discovered that they represent great value and they proceed to turn that value into money and then the neglectful people and their descendants awaken and discover that things are being done which are not beneficial to the State, that a great opportunity for benefiting the whole community has been thrown away and they raise an unwarranted cry, denouncing the owners of the land as vandals, even if they do not use more disagreeable terms. That is simply an illustration on a large scale of the opportunities which may be lost unless we have a community made up of citizens who are thinking not of self alone, but of what is for the best interests of the State at present and for all future time.

It is entirely unnecessary for me to cite additional instances of this kind. I trust that the one I have given is sufficient to show that the quality of the church which sets little store by spasmodic virtues, but demands that men shall be governed by moral principles which are the same Monday, Wednesday and Friday as they are on Sunday, applies equally well to the relations of the citizen to the State; that those things which the church teaches, which substantially all men admit are just and right whether they are church attendants or not, are exactly the things which the citizen must have instilled into his being if the State is to be maintained on the highest possible plane; and if you will look about you and think of the men who are doing the best work in the community, who are unselfish, self-sacrificing, liberal, public spirited, I believe you will see that they are the very men who are doing the best work in the church, who certainly are connected with some church and are doing their part to maintain an efficient church organization as well as a high standard in civil life.

President Hutchinson: Every person within our Commonwealth, either in official or private life, will endorse the sentiment if I present our closing speaker with the assertion that we have no citizen who more fully or more creditably combines a record of extended and valuable service to both the church and the state than does our beloved Gov. John D. Long, who will now address you.

Address of Hon. John D. Long

I was really very much afraid when the president of the evening said that after the next speaker had finished he would ask you to remain, that he was going to add that the contribution box would be passed. (Laughter.) It seems to me that one of the fundamental principles of church and state is that every good man and woman should be home and in bed at nine o'clock at night (laughter), and I have grave question whether I shall not be false to my duty both to church and state if I keep you after that hour, which has now arrived. You can, however, feel easy. The most serious part of the meeting is over. (Laughter.) You have had the oysters and the roast beef, and nothing is left for me but the unsubstantial ices. These allusions will be appreciated by the gentlemen who are in the front pews and who in the earlier part of the evening were engaged in the more serious and spiritual portion of the occasion.

You have heard the church represented; you have heard the state represented. I represent neither. (Laughter.) One speaker suggested that it was very hard for him to come away from the delights of his domestic hearth and it required a very strong pull to bring him here. That seems to be a new name for an electric automobile. (Laughter.) The other speaker also expressed his great unwillingness to be present. I suspect that neither of these gentlemen would have been hired at any price to stay away. (Laughter.) I want to be frank with you and tell you that I was very, very glad to come, even if I had not an automobile nor a carriage next door, but had to walk all the way from Hingham. (Applause.)

Speaking of the pulpit, I am here under a little bit of a misapprehension. I had supposed it was to be an informal gathering of gentlemen in a dining room and that I should be called upon to speak from the dining table, to which I have been somewhat accustomed, and not from the pulpit, to which I trust I never shall be accustomed. (Laughter.) It is somewhat embarrassing to find myself under circumstances which I did not anticipate. A gentleman not a thousand miles from here at present tells me that he was once caught under similar circumstances. He was invited, as he supposed, to address a class of boys who were preparing for commercial life, but when he arrived at the place where he was to speak he found the town hall packed from floor to ceiling. He suddenly recalled a sermon which his minister had preached the Sunday before and which had made such an impression upon him that he remembered it almost word for word. He repeated it and was overwhelmed with congratulation. (Laughter.) I am not intimating that any of the addresses which have been made tonight were obtained in that way (laughter), although they are both so excellent that they might have been written by the very best of preachers.

"The Church and the State." I hesitate a little about approaching that question. I undertook it a couple of months ago at Plymouth, at the three hundredth anniversary of the establishment of the Pilgrim Church, and I involved myself in considerable difficulty. (Laughter.) Myself a descendant of the Pilgrim, Elder William Brewster, I spent something like half an hour in eulogizing my Pilgrim ancestor, whom nobody admired more than I; but in order to impress the lesson of the day and to show that modern times are not much worse than the old, I referred to some of the evil with which the Pilgrims had to deal, and the judicious press published only that portion of my discourse (laughter), and I have led an unhappy life ever since. It was very much as if I had spent an hour in eulogizing George Washington but toward the close of my remarks, reminded of this new spelling fad to which the President has given his sanction, I had suggested that George was a somewhat indifferent speller and had immediately been accused of representing him as an illiterate man.

The fact is that we have the union of the Church and the State in the Pilgrim colony almost to perfection. There was the true union of the church and the state. There was a little party of something like a hundred people, half of whom died the first year, led by leaders unsurpassed in history for their devotion, their common sense, their practicality, their Christian earnestness—our earliest churchmen and statesmen, who have given tone to our whole civilization and who are the founders of that splendid American democracy, this constitutional government, under the blessings of which not merely we live but by which the whole world is benefited.

They had no creed. The only written statement they made was the compact which they drew up in the Mayflower, which was even more a constitution of government than it was a statement of religious faith, although they prefaced it with the remark that it was wrought in the fear of God and in the love of country—country and religion, the church and the state.

They had no clergyman. William Brewster, who officiated in that capacity, although a layman, had himself been trained in statecraft, having been in the employ of Queen Elizabeth under the Secretary of State at that time. It was, as I have said, a perfect type of the union of church and state.

In the old times, of course, there was bitter competition between church and state for the supremacy, and later there came a reaction, so that church and state under all modern systems of Anglo-Saxon government are separate, absolutely separate, and it is well. I think we are coming now to a feeling that should be a union of church and state—not in governmental polity, not in any way within political lines, but in the spirit which has been so well developed by the two previous speakers, the spirit of the church and the spirit of the state.

I undertook in that discourse, in evidence of the fact that modern times are not worse than the old, that we really are not going to the dogs in these days, to show that the Pilgrims had to contend with very many of the same evils that we have to contend with. Some of them arose from members of their own original flock; most of them came from elements which were thrust in upon them after they had made their settlement; but they had them to contend with, and they overcame them, as I showed by quoting from Governor Bradford's journal both the evils they had to meet and the success with which they met them. And they overcame them by this union of church and state—religious conviction, sound practical common sense in the government. For it is a great mistake to think of the Pilgrim Fathers simply as religious enthusiasts. They were here to be free in the exercise of their religious opinion; they were also here in connection with the partnership which they formed with certain merchants in London for the purpose of carrying out a great commercial enterprise—great to them, although it seems simple to us—and in both they were successful. While they were true to their devotions in the religious life they were also very clear sighted and shrewd in all material things. They were not fanatics.

walking with pebbles in their shoes, but they were practical business men who out of the smallest beginnings gradually enlarged their circumstance until they were able to buy out their partners on the other side of the water and conduct their enterprise to the success the flower of which we have today.

Now when we have evils to contend with. While I am an optimist and feel that the modern times are not worse than the old, I realize perfectly well the terrible problems which are upon us at the present time—the problems which come from the rapid growth of our country, the great increase in material wealth, the problems which come from those sources, the inundations which come to us from foreign immigration, filling up our country and exhausting its fields and its resources. I recognize this spirit which is upon us today, the spirit of discontent which is abroad—after all, not so much abroad, perhaps, as we think, but still a striking spirit of discontent which is in the air and which is arraying men in classes and one class against another. This discontent arises not from the fact that people are not better off than they were—they are a great deal better off. It arises from the fact that one man is better off than another. No matter what a man's circumstances may be—ample food, shelter, clothing, opportunities for education for his children equal opportunities at the ballot box—if that man is conscious that somebody else is better off in material things, rides while he walks, has leisure while he works, that man is discontented. And that spirit of discontent, of course, is inflamed very often by selfish men for motives of their own are using it as a means of their own promotion or getting themselves advanced in the race of life.

That is the problem which we have to face today. That is the evil with which we have to contend. And what I undertake to say is, that not merely as a matter of theory but as a matter of practical common sense, the conservative people of this country ought to begin to make use of every agency that they can find to allay discontent, to create right sentiment among the people at large, to produce that happiness which comes not from possessions but from the contented spirit and the contented heart and the feeling of brotherhood and of Christian commonwealth. And one of the agencies which it is their duty to employ is the church.

There is no question but what the attendance on our churches has relatively fallen off. Ecclesiastical forms do not have the force which they once had. The ecclesiastical bond, the terrors of the church, the attractions of the church have not the weight which they formerly had. They should have. These beautiful temples, these brilliant men who speak from our pulpits, these good women who maintain the church, these dear old New England associations that go with a church and a church congregation and the old New England Sabbath —they alone ought to be enough to maintain the interest in the church and the effectiveness of the church. But whether that be so or not, to return to what I was saying, it seems to me that the business, material and conservative interests of this country ought to wake up to the fact that the church may be made a most powerful factor and influence in creating a better state of things, a higher degree of content among all people, a more powerful influence for that general citizenship to which Mr. Weeks has referred. I look at the men who gathered below the tables, the very fibre and sinew of your city, men in middle and in younger life. I look at this congregation, every one here a person of influence and of power, everyone accomplishing something, and I think, What an infinite power you might bring to bear if shoulder to shoulder, organized, banded together, you made your church an active, real, vital element in the civilization of the time, in the reform of evils and in the advancement of good, in the allaying of discontent, in the extension of the simple principles of Jesus Christ which are the foundation not only of the church but of the state.

We Unitarians are apt to say to our friends of the Evangelical churches that they give more heed than they should, perhaps, to mere doctrinal points, to theological metaphysics, that they are more troubled with the question of faith while we have in mind the question of works. That, to a certain extent, is true; to a certain extent it is not true. My experience with the Unitarian clergy—students, men of fine qualities, fine intellectual ability—is that they are dealing quite as much with the mystical problems as anybody else, and I lift up my hand in honor as I witness the splendid work which our friends of the Baptist or the Methodist or the Congregational or the Episcopal church are doing in the Christian life, in their missions, in their helpfulness, in the great charity buildings which they erect. The fact is that when you get beyond a few metaphysical questions which are a mere matter of mental constitution, and come to the living precepts of Jesus Christ, we all in every denomination stand on the same footing. We have got this great work of the citizen to do, not only as a religious work but as a work which we owe to the state, and if any occasion come we rise to it. Think of that terrible calamity in San Francisco, that destruction of life, that infinite destruction of property, that terrible earthquake, that shock that came over us all—and yet if you could only leave out the physical suffering and pain and death in our human brothers and sisters it would almost be worth while in view of the unlimited and unrestricted and undenominational universal uprising of the public heart, the generous outpouring from every hand. How all other questions faded out of sight for a moment or two. We forgot all about railroad rates and corporations and trusts; we forgot all about our local quarrels. It was worth while to see that magnificent outpouring of the human heart.

Then think of something that aroused us all in another direction—the revelations with regard to the conduct of the insurance companies in New York; the fact that men high in position were false to their trust. What a splendid exhibition there was then, what a revulsion of feeling, what a united protest from every heart in the community and every mind and every conscience against such falsity to duty. We arose in our might. We executed capital punishment. There is no more doubt that one or more presidents of insurance companies died from the popular criticism and condemnation than if their heads had been chopped off on the block. And yet they were men such as we are; exactly such men as belong to our great clubs and sit in our churches and help on all good things.
They were men who did not belong naturally to the criminal class. They were men who were tempted, having things in their own hands, first, to increase their salaries beyond anything like reason; second, to advance the fortunes of their own relatives and friends; third, to use the funds of these great institutions as they thought most beneficial to interests of the institutions or to their own interests. But the real significance of it all was the moral protest of the community; the evidence that the public conscience, when aroused will not permit even those who have been gradually falling into temptation, who are in many respects like the rest of us, who at first intended no evil, to be false to their trusts. It will not permit in political, in social or in commercial life any falling down from the high rule, the simple Christian standard of honesty and truth.

One of the good signs of the times is that all these revelations which shocked at the time are suggestive of the standard which now measures them. We are coming to hold people to that personal responsibility of which you have heard.
During the Revolutionary War our minds were all directed against an enemy over across the water. We were struggling for national independence. And in that great struggle and in that enmity towards a nation which we thought was oppressing us we were blind to faults among ourselves, to dishonesty and corruption at home, to failures of duty which shocked and hurt the heart of Washington. In our Civil War, the circle narrowing a little, we were feeling much embittered against our Southern neighbor—a bitterness which fortunately has now passed away. We were interested in the great struggle for human freedom and for union, and in those great days, under those great impulses of feeling, we were entirely neglectful of the fact that even under the administration of Abraham Lincoln there was more corruption, more fraud, more falsity to trust, more cheating of the soldier and of the sailor, more misappropriation of public funds that we have ever had since, and that it existed not only with us but on the Confederate side just exactly the same.

Since then, the circle narrowing still more, the public mind has been interested in the contest between political parties, and in the desire to overcome this party and to defend the other, individual responsibility has sometimes been neglected. It is the striking fact that today we are measuring men personally.
There are important issues at stake, issues of policy, issues of finance, issues of government, but the difference in that respect between the leading parties is not as great as formerly. All good men and true are looking for the common welfare, but our minds today are directed especially to the matter of personal character.

One good thing in the administration of our President is that he has held the individual so closely to responsibility that it has not been the arraignment of another country, it has not been the arraigment of another section of the country, it has not been the arraignment of a great party—it has been the arraignment of the embezzler, of the thief, of the man who has been false to his trust—of the individual.

That is the influence of the principles for which the church stands as well as of those for which the state stands. There again the interests are actually identical.
I was present last night at the meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, a noble organization. I think we heartily appreciate the work it is doing.
I was particularly struck with the fact that at the banquet the women made such admirable speeches—better than men could make on such an occasion.
But I was also struck with the quality and the character of the women of Massachusetts who are engaged in that great union, not merely for the promotion of the special virtue of temperance but for the promotion of all that makes for noble manhood and womanhood, for social purification, for purity and sweetness of life, of conduct and of character.

There were representatives from most quarters of the civilized globe. The nobility of England was represented in the person of Lord Carlisle and Lady Howard. A baroness was there from Germany, a very intelligent woman from the great empire of Japan, a brunette from Greece, suggestive of "The isles of Greece, the isles of Greece,"—

who spoke for us first in her native language and then translated it into English; women from Texas, women from the Bahama Islands, women from the Hawaiian Islands—cultivated women, intelligent women, bringing to bear just what you are attempting to produce in your churches upon great questions of state. I am not here to argue their cause, but I say that we should not be indifferent whenever such a body of citizens, such a body of intelligence, representing the home, representing the church, combining the word "Christian" with the special word which denominates their special effort, gather together in such a cause as that.

Now that is the church and the state —that body representing hundreds of homes and families, not merely in Massachusetts but in every state in the Union, in England, in Germany, in Italy, in Greece, in Japan,—all over the world.
That is a union of church and of state.
That is what I meant in the beginning to suggest to you business men, you conservative men, you who wish to preserve the conservatism of good business, the stability of property, the stability of society,—that is an illustration of what may be done if you will band together, if you will come into this church and fill it every Sunday, if you will sustain your minister, not in preaching politics merely—for that won't do in these times,— but sustain him in connecting his church with the interests of the community in which you live, in advancing the civilization of this community, of this city, of this commonwealth, of this nation, in creating throughout the community the spirit of common Christian brotherhood which is the best panacea you can possibly have for discontent, for turmoil, for friction between classes and for all the social dangers that threaten us at this time.

It is worth your while to consider whether you cannot utilize this church and every church in town, Unitarian or anything else, as a part of the civil government of the city of Newton, of the civilization, the character of its people.
It is a consideration not to be thrown aside but to be thought of. I believe if a hundred men here in this temple would determine that this church, Mr. Jaynes' church, Mr. Brown's church and all the other churches should each be a combination of church and state in that sense they could make it one of the most powerful agencies for reform that the age has seen.

And there is another direction, if I may say one word more, in which church and state are one. They are both pure democracies. Before the altar of God all men stand free and equal. Under our American system all men stand free and equal. It is the one great point where they are a unit—the democracy of the church, the democracy of the state. Not merely the men who hold highest position, but the rank and file—all one. I should like sometime to preach a sermon on "The Unrecognized People." I have had some experience of it. In Washington, when I was Secretary of the Navy, I saw a few men standing at the head receiving all the applause, knew that it should have been distributed all down the line. It is not the general alone who wins the battle—it is the soldier who carries the musket. It is not the man who sits in the Secretary's chair alone; it is the head of the bureau or a clerk in this or that department who is doing the work. There never was a grander or more romantically heroic event than the coming of the Oregon from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast during the Spanish-American war. With what interest we watched for its coming; how glorious has been the record ever since; what fame surrounds the men—the man who was in command, the men who were with him. But who remembers the voyage of the little bit of a gunboat Marietta, following along behind, encountering the same storm, the same dangers off Cape Horn? Who remembers the crossing of the Pacific by the monitors Merrimack and Monadnock carrying aid to our forces in the Philippine Islands? Those little monitors, the seaboard almost level with the water, washed over by the seas in stormy weather, in hot weather blistered with the sun, the heat so intense that the pitch boiled from the planks, while the men were subjected to a heat of 110 or 120 degrees for hours together; little frail boats that a wave might swamp? None of you ever heard of it; you do not know about it. So it is in our government; so it is in our State House; so it is in our church. It is not alone the clergyman in the pulpit, it is not alone the deacon in the pew; it is the great body of the people of the country, it is the great body of the people of the church.
And I trust that as they are all one in their democratic organization, so may they become one, shoulder to shoulder, in earnest to meet the problems of our time, and that your church and other churches may take active part in that great work of making not only the Christian worshiper but the faithful citizen of the state. (Applause.)
